Britain Studies Plan to Close Strait.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—The dispatch of more German and Italian warships to Spanish waters and indications that Premier Mussolini is in an ugly and intractable mood again stiffened the tension of the European situation tonight and led to suggestions in British naval circles that the strait of Gibraltar should be closed.

Closing of the strait as yet is only a suggestion, but it was put forth in admiralty circles as a measure required pending further discussion of the crisis created by the Spanish bombing of the German pocket battleship Deutschland and the subsequent German shelling of the Spanish port of Almeria.

Admiralty circles seemed to be concerned about today's dispatch of four more 500 ton German submarines to Spanish waters, together with the newest cruisers Leipzig and Nuremburg, and Germany's decision to leave the Deutschland and her sister ship, the Admiral Scheer, there.

Germany Mobilizes Fleet.

Germany's third pocket battleship, the Admiral Graf Spee, is reported on its way to the Mediterranean. Six torpedo boats, the Albatros, Greif, Seeadler, Luchs, Jaguar, and Panther, are on duty in the Mediterranean with three submarines. These warships, added to the Italian fighting ships on the Spanish scene, make a formidable force.

The presence of this imposing force in the Mediterranean supports the view among diplomats that, while Germany has withdrawn from the nonintervention committee, she will continue to control ships approaching the coast held by the Madrid-Valencia government more energetically than ever.

Duce Not Coming Back Soon.

This theory is supported by the communique of the Italian government explaining that the "withdrawal of Germany and Italy from the nonintervention control does not mean that Red Spanish ships can do as they please. Political circles in Rome hold that this is announcement of a blockade against all trading vessels which are transporting arms and ammunition for the Valencia Reds."

In fact, while the French and British were making frantic efforts to hammer out a new plan to get the Germans and Italians back into the Spanish nonintervention committee, Premier Mussolini made it clear that he was not going to come back as soon as they expected, and alarm appeared to be felt in British circles lest both the Germans and the Italians were going to give more active aid to Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel commander in chief.

Not Subject to Control.

In any case, the admiralty's concern with the Italian and German naval reënforcements and the proposal to close the Strait of Gibraltar to any additional German ships going there is based on the following points:

FIRST—Contrary to reports from Berlin that incidents now are at an end, German warships are sailing with orders to take whatever action is deemed necessary against republican Spain.

SECOND—With Germany and Italy no longer subject to nor participating in the international control scheme, there is no moderating influence on their activities.

THIRD—Should an incident arise involving naval action, units of the present British fleet in the Mediterranean would be at a disadvantage, faced by the entire Italian and reenforced German fleet—and, once in, ships of those nations cannot easily be removed.

Suspect Recent Aid to Franco.

There also is a large body of opinion here that the Germans and Italians even recently have been landing war materials and aid to Franco's forces.

Some officials here are urging that the British and French fleets take over the entire patrol of all Spanish coast lines, as was the original plan. The question is whether the British feel that their rearmament program is far enough advanced to risk this.

It is feared here the Germans and Italians have some scheme up their sleeves to take advantage of the pres-

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—Advocates of women serving on juries in Illinois were elated today by a sudden turn of events in the state senate. Almost by a mere wave of the hand that chamber struck from Representative Pierce Shannon's bill the provision believed to have made the measure unconstitutional.

That provision would have exempted from jury service all mothers and girls less than 25 years old. It was inserted as an amendment before the passage of the bill in the house. This morning the senate passed a motion by Senator Harold G. Ward [D., Chicago] eliminating those exemptions.

Some Exemptions Unchallenged.

In its newly revised form the bill still exempts women who are pregnant or who have to care for children or infirm or aged persons. No serious challenge of its constitutionality in this form has been made. It follows the form of the law invalidated by the State Supreme court several years ago on grounds that that law was made subject to a referendum.

The fact that the Ward amendment met with no opposition was considered an indication that the bill will pass the senate tomorrow or next week. Then it will be sent back to the house for concurrence in the amendment there.

A battle is expected to ensue, and if the house refuses to accept the senate change the bill will go to a conference committee. It was the house that put into the Shannon bill the exemption of mothers and women under 25. Representative Roger J. Branson [R., Centralia], who successfully advocated that exemption, admits he is opposed to the whole bill as a matter of principle.

Look to Horner for Aid.

Nevertheless the quiet coup in the senate reheartened the delegation from the Women's Bar Association of Illinois, led by Attorney Grace H. Harte of Chicago, which persuaded Senator Ward to take up their battle. When the battle returns to the house they are counting on more active support from Gov. Henry Horner than he gave when the bill was acted on there last March. In his inaugural address in January the governor said he "would like to see this last relic denying woman their full rights of citizenship disappear in this state."

Legion Fights Sale by Posts of Fireworks

American Legion posts in Cook county were requested last night by the Legion's Cook county council to aid in a county-wide movement for a safe and sane observance of Fourth of July by refraining from the sale of fireworks. The request was made in a strongly worded resolution, which was adopted with only a few dissenting votes.

The council's stand is regarded by advocates of a safe and sane Fourth as aiding materially in their campaign. It gives notice to all Legion posts that the council is opposed to the custom, that has been an obstacle to the program in some suburbs, of giving Legion posts licenses to sell fireworks although prohibiting any one else from selling them.

A Loophole in the Law.

In the past this practice has partly nullified the prohibition on the sale of fireworks in other sections of the county. Chicago has a city ordinance forbidding the sale of fireworks. Similar laws are in force in Oak Park, River Forest, Cicero, and Willow Springs, and other suburbs. The county board endeavors to ban sales in unincorporated territory. But fireworks enter these places through a few communities which take advantage of the state law permitting sales from June 27 to July 5.

The council justified its resolution by reciting that a great many children are injured annually by the indiscriminate use of fireworks. It pointed out that the Legion is deeply interested in the promotion of safety, and called attention to the display of fireworks sponsored by the council on July 4 at Soldiers' field as its part in promoting a safe and sane celebration.

Police to Enforce Law.

Chicago police this year will again enforce the city's ban on the sale and unlicensed display of fireworks, Commissioner of Police Allman announced. An order will go out soon to the district captains directing them to notify storekeepers of the penalty for violation and to warn parents of children seen with fireworks that they, too, will be subject to prosecution.

EDWARD AND WALLY UNITED BY VICAR OF ANGLICAN CHURCH; BISHOPS FOILED

HER GRACE

THE DUKE

Ecclesiasts Angry; Move to Disown Wedding Parson.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—The Church of England, in consternation over the project of the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, known here as "the poor man's parson," to marry Edward, the duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield [Simpson] with the Church of England religious service, today took immediate steps to repudiate the clergyman and declare his officiation at tomorrow's wedding unauthorized.

Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, the archbishop of Canterbury, who crowned King George VI. three weeks ago and who frequently has bitterly criticized Edward in past months, summoned the bishop of Fulham, the Rt. Rev. Basil Staunton Batty, for a conference at Lambeth palace. The bishop of Fulham has charge of the Anglican church in France.

Bishop Is Angry.

After their conference a statement was issued on behalf of the bishop of Fulham. It said: "If it be true that the Rev. Mr. Jardine has undertaken to perform a religious ceremony in connection with the marriage of the duke of Windsor, the bishop of Fulham, who has jurisdiction over the Anglican church in France, wishes it to be understood that this action on the part of this clergyman has been without his consent and without his knowledge."

In an interview the bishop of Fulham said Jardine has "no authority whatsoever to bestow the church's blessing."

"The Rev. Mr. Jardine is what is known as a presbyter vagans [wandering priest]," the bishop added. "His position in the ceremony is that of a private person who has been invited to say prayers. He is incapable in the circumstances of legally solemnizing the marriage."

The bishop of Fulham, with the concurrence of the bishop of London, sent a telegram to Jardine protesting against the vicar acting without episcopal license or consent at the wedding.

On the other hand there is no process of ecclesiastical law, apparently, by which Jardine can be restrained from doing what he or his host desires in a private house which is not within the territorial jurisdiction of a bishop of the Church of England.

Put One Over on Archbishop.

It is for this that the bishop of Fulham's telegram takes the form of a protest and not a prohibition. It apparently is on this technicality too that Edward's political friends, within and without the church, put one over on the archbishop of Canterbury and got Jardine off to France.

Orthodox churchmen, however, argued that laws of the Church of England do not permit the rites of the church to be used to solemnize the marriage of a person who has been married previously and has a spouse living. But, it seems, they can't do a thing about it.

HERE'S PICTURE OF PASTOR WHO DEFIED BOYCOTT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, the smiling, round faced little man who caused today's commotion and upset thin lipped Church of England leaders by defying their orders and going to France to unite Edward, the duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield in wedlock has had a remarkable career. Known as "the poor man's pastor," he also has been called "an intrepid sort of a fellow."

This is not the first time he has been at odds with his bishop. Five years ago he was publicly rebuked by the bishop of Durham because the Wheatley Hill Parochial church council had protested against the pastor preaching in a poor Wesleyan chapel.

A letter was sent to the bishop by the church council. The message complained that while their vicar was holding confirmation classes and assisting candidates to choose between Methodism and the Church of England, Jardine was preaching at the Wesleyan chapel. The letter said this "caused great indignation and distress among the loyal church people."

Jardine, it was stated, also had just completed a mission at the Methodist church at Thornley, resulting in the Methodist church being full and the parish of the Church of England empty.

Both Wheatley Hill and Thornley were centers of militant Roman Catholicism and Methodism, said the council's letter. It added that the Church of England paid Jardine a large stipend to teach the Anglican faith.

"If he did his work and thus earned his stipend, the Rev. Mr. Jardine had no time to spare for conducting missions among people entirely and actively opposed to the Church of England's teaching," the letter concluded.

The protest was read at the Durham diocesan conference and the bishop's chaplain said that such conduct, while not a legal offense, was a grave breach of propriety and as such the bishop regretted and condemned it.

In 1930 Jardine received considerable notice as an advocate for a trade union for the clergy, whom he described as "the most hopeless and defenseless lot of people in the world."

Criticizing the system of paying the clergy every three months as "diabolical" and "eating like iron into the souls of thousands of the clergy," the preacher wrote:

"I have a dream, the vision of a day when the clergy will be united and come together to discuss its own problems untrammeled and unhindered by so-called ecclesiastical traditions."

The little preacher's gross income at Darlington is $2,090 a year. He has served there for ten years.

Here is a brief sketch of Jardine's early career:

After a college education he became apprenticed to a firm of booksellers. He declined his father's wish to go on the stage. He was an agnostic early in youth, but at 19 years he was converted to the church.

He attached himself to a mission in Liverpool and worked in the slums where he became known as "the poor man's parson." From Liverpool he went to a coal mining village in Yorkshire. Then he went to Darlington.

YOUNG LONDON RUSHES TO WED ON WALLY'S DAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 2.—Romantic Londoners apparently want to be married on the same day as the duke of Windsor. The marriage license offices will be nearly as busy as they are on bank holidays.

One west end registrar says that three couples had called one after another asking to be married at exactly the same hour as the duke.

"I have done my best," he said, "and wedged in about a dozen other couples during the day. I do not remember such a rush on an ordinary day before."

Religious Marriage Ritual Preceded by Civil Ceremony.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTS, France, June 3 [Thursday].—The world's most famous lovers—Edward, duke of Windsor, and his American born sweetheart, Mrs. Wallis Warfield [Simpson]—were married today at brief civil and religious services. It was the climax of the royal romance in which all of the civilized world had evinced a great interest.

The civil ceremony uniting the former king of Great Britain and the commoner for whom he renounced his throne was performed at the Château de Cande shortly after 11:30 a. m. [5:30 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time]. Mayor Charles Mercier of Monts officiated. Only two official witnesses were present. The service was held in the main living room of the château.

Married by Country Parson.

When the couple had been married in the eyes of man they moved into the music room. There they were married in the eyes of God by the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, a shy little country parson who defied the powerful Church of England in performing the ritual.

The abdicated king and the lady of his choice stood before an old wood chest that had been converted into an altar for the wedding. A white cloth and a decoration of flowers made the lowly chest more presentable.

In this setting, with no ostentation or frills of any kind, the duke realized his great and almost lost desire—a marriage according to the rites of the church of which he once was the titular head. There was an altar and prayer book and everything else.

The short and middle aged vicar, who consulted "only my conscience" in breaking the British boycott against a religious ceremony for the couple, read in a timid voice the ordinary service of the Church of England according to the old prayer book.

Ritual Carries Word "Obey."

The ritual carried the word "obey" and other phrases somewhat strange to modern ears.

The religious ceremony began at noon [6 a. m., Chicago time] and lasted about twenty minutes. About thirty persons were present.

The bride carried a prayer book, but did not wear a bouquet. However, she did wear "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue."

The something old was lace sewed into her lingerie. Something new was a gold sovereign, about the same as the American five dollar pieces. The sovereign was one of those coined for Edward's coronation, but never issued from the mint. She carried the coin in the heel of her slipper. The something borrowed was a handkerchief of her "Aunt Bessie"—Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman of Baltimore, Md. Her wedding dress was the something blue.

Maj. Edward D. Metcalfe, long the duke's aide-de-camp, was best man and Edward's witness. Herman L. Rogers of New York, close friend of the former king and Wally and their spokesman at the château, gave the bride away.

The wedding ring was placed on Mrs. Warfield's finger at both the civil and religious ceremonies. The Rev. Mr. Jardine did not make an address and the couple did not take communion after the ceremony.

The civil service was even more simple. Mayor Mercier stood back of a big table covered with a pale velvet cloth instead of the usual green baize. Edward donated the cloth to the town hall of Monts after the ceremony.

Eight Watch Civil Service.

Those present at the civil service were Maj. Metcalfe, W. C. Graham, the British consul at Nantes, who acted as an official English witness; Rogers, and five newspaper correspondents.

The civil ceremony was thrown into the background with the sensational eleventh hour appearance of the Rev. Mr. Jardine after the English bishops had cracked the whip over every clergyman in Great Britain to frighten them from even the thought of uniting the duke and his fiancée in wedlock.

It had been announced that even the optimistic Edward had abandoned the idea of a religious ceremony because it appeared that he could not find a clergyman in all England who would marry him.

Then up popped this obscure little vicar from the county of Durham, in England, a $2,000 a year preacher from one of the poorest districts in his native land, which he had never left before he made the trip here. But his sudden spurt to fame proved his characterization as "an intrepid sort of fellow" was not an idle one.

Ready to Start Honeymoon.

When the two ceremonies were completed the duke and duchess of Windsor posed for newspaper photographers. Then they enjoyed their wedding breakfast.

After the breakfast the newlyweds prepared to go on their honeymoon. The duke and duchess were scheduled to leave the château between 6 and 6:30 p. m. They will travel by automobile to a railway station on the other side of Paris and board an express train and go straight to Castle Wasserleonburg, Carinthia, southern Austria. They will travel in a special coach.

Vicar Becomes Famous Man.

The performance of the wedding by the Rev. Mr. Jardine, vicar of St. Paul's, Darlington, noted railway center, was the sensation of the day. He came unheralded and unsung yesterday. Now he is a famous man.

Blinking with watery blue eyes into the sunshine, the Rev. Mr. Jardine soon after his arrival said:

"No, I haven't met the duke of Windsor before—not exactly. But I have always had a tremendous admiration for him and always shall have. I think he is the finest gentleman alive."

The Rev. Mr. Jardine is a short, round shouldered man of slight build, but he is getting a little paunchy. He has a sloping forehead, thinning sandy hair, rather close set eyes and a long pointed and slightly upturned nose. He apparently had slept in the train and looked rather seedy even for a country parson when he arrived at nearby Tours yesterday morning.

Wears Embarrassed Grin.

He appears to be in early middle age and talks low with a timid voice. When he was confronted by reporters and photographers—he doesn't look like he ever has been photographed or interviewed—the vicar wore an emberrassed but happy grin like a child who is cutting up in front of company.

Lid Blown Off Story.

The parson's canonical boss, the bishop of Durham, issued a fulminous statement to the London press about him, and Fleet street [London's newspaper row] went into hysterics. Correspondents of the more respectable British newspapers, who had received instructions from their editors to write "adequate but inconspicuous" stories on the wedding, suddenly received frantic telephone calls to send columns.

The lid was blown off the story, and whenever a story of such interest has been censored the way this one has in England it is a grave political event when the lid is blown off.

Edward still has powerful friends in England who have been trying to blow the lid off for weeks, but they couldn't get anywhere until this unheard of country parson turned up and did the trick.

Here's How It Happened.

It is a strange story as well as a colorful one and here is how it all happened:

Up to 11:30 o'clock yesterday morning, as far as the world knew, only Mayor Mercier would marry Edward and his bride in a French civil ceremony.

At 11:30 o'clock Rogers received the press at the gates of the château for the usual morning conference and told the hundred slightly bored reporters present that he had a little announcement to make.

"The civil ceremony," Rogers dictated in an expressionless voice, "will be followed by the marriage service of the Church of England, conducted by the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, vicar of Darlington."

Nobody present had heard of the Rev. Mr. Jardine, and few of Darlington, but Rogers refused any comment.

By much digging it was learned that the Rev. Mr. Jardine had written the duke last Friday offering to officiate at the marriage despite the ban of the British government and the Church of England. The offer was immediately accepted. The vicar was the only Anglican churchman who had offered his services. The duke of Windsor had never heard of him, but that did not make any difference.

The Anglican parson arrived at the château yesterday morning and met the duke and Mrs. Warfield. He was there while Rogers was pulling his rabbit out of the silk hat for the press. Edward must have been a little surprised to discover that the only man in England who had the ccurage to defy the entire hierarchy of the church of which Edward himself once was the head was this inoffensive, countrified little figure.

Later THE TRIBUNE correspondent spotted the Rev. Mr. Jardine in the lobby of the Hotel de Univers at Tours and asked for a statement. The preacher hesitated, grinned, and was about to answer when A. G. Allen, the duke's lawyer, appeared from nowhere and said:

"I am afraid Mr. Jardine cannot say anything to the press without the duke's permission."

Bishop Speaks His Word.

A little later Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, who is in Tours in the dual capacity of friend of Edward and reporter for the London Daily Mail, allowed his colleagues to utilize an interview which he had obtained from the vicar. The interview was neatly typed out, like a communique, and was prefaced by a statement from the bishop of Durham which Churchill had gotten over the telephone from London. It read as follows:

"Statement by the bishop of Durham: The Rev. Mr. Jardine has no authority whatever to officiate in any diocese but Durham unless he has obtained sanction of the proper local authority. If the marriage had been taking place in my diocese, I would have considered myself in duty bound to inhibit any clergyman within my jurisdiction from officiating, but I cannot control Mr. Jardine on the continent. Presumably Mr. Jardine has received permission from a responsible Anglican bishop."

Statement by the Preacher.

Then followed the interview with the preacher:

"Statement by the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine: Mr. Jardine, after returning from the château, said:

"'I volunteered to conduct this ceremony.'

"When asked if approval had been given by the ecclesiastical authorities, he said: 'No permission has been asked or given. I did not consult any ecclesiastical authority. I only consulted my own conscience. I knew both the duke of Windsor and Mrs. Warfield strongly desired a religious ceremony. When I made my offer it was accepted by the duke of Windsor. It was a voluntary offer on my part.'"

After lunch the Rev. Mr. Jardine, accompanied by Allen, appeared again in the lobby of the hotel. A sudden telephone call pulled his watchdog away and the preacher cheerfully submitted to questions from several reporters, while an alert photographer instructed him how to pose. Jardine seemed to be enjoying himself hugely.

Asked if disapproval of his bishop might invalidate the marriage, the parson replied:

Rules Against the Bishop.

He went on to explain that if the marriage had been performed in England, authorization of his bishop would have been necessary to make it legal, but since it already was legalized in both France and England by the French civil ceremony, the religious marriage has purely a spiritual significance, which in the eyes of the Anglican church is not dependent upon a bishop as an official of the church. In other words, Mayor Mercier married Edward and Mrs. Warfield in the eyes of man, and the Rev. Mr. Jardine in the eyes of God, and no decree by a bishop can annul the spiritual tie knotted by a simple minister.

Jardine said also that on account of the French civil ceremony no license is necessary to make the marriage legal, as in England.

When asked if any efforts had been made to prevent him from coming to Tours, the pastor said "No."

The interview ended abruptly at this point by the return of the watchful Allen, who whisked the parson away in an automobile after contributing the information that it is the bishop of Fulham who has jurisdiction over all the Anglican diocese in France. Jardine did not even know which bishop it was, and evidently did not care.

Duke Invites Him to Dine.

Later in the evening THE TRIBUNE correspondent caught the preacher rushing back to the hotel and, eluding the eagle eyed Allen, got into an elevator with him. In the elevator the pastor expounded his admiration for Edward and for the first time there was a real ring in the little man's voice.

But he had even bigger news. Imagine it! The duke had invited him to dinner! Along with Sir Walter T. Monckton, legal adviser to the duchy of Cornwall, Baron and Baroness Eugene Rothschild of Austria, Maj. Metcalfe, and all these other distinguished persons, seventeen in all, including himself and the duke and Wally! His eyes bulged and he was almost breathless as he broke the great news.

"Naturally, we are dressing for dinner," he added, in what was intended to be a nonchalant tone.

"Have you ever been in France before?" the pastor was asked, as he opened the door of his room.

Saw Duke as Prince of Wales.

"I have never been out of England before," was the answer.

"Have you ever dined with royalty before?"

"No, but I once saw the duke of Windsor as prince of Wales—at a distance."

"Are you married?"

"Yes, I have two grown up daughters and a son."

"What do they think about all this?"

"I am sorry, I must rush off to dress now."

It was understood that Jardine confidentially said to one intimate friend of the duke:

"It seemed unthinkable to me that any member of the royal family should get married without the Church of England service. That is why I came here. I prefer to die rather than see my king [Edward] married outside the church."

Pastor Not a Worried Man.

Jardine appeared unconcerned about what will happen to him for his defiance of the British government and church. Over the telephone he said:

"If they want to take my charge away from me, it is up to them."

When Jardine returned from the gala dinner at the château, he beamed. Asked what he was going to do about the telegram of protest which the bishop of Durham sent to him, he said that no telegram or telephone message of protest had been received from any one in England.

"Furthermore," he said, "it will not make any difference if I do."

Asked whether he was disturbed by the action of the bishop of Durham, the minister replied:

"I know I am doing my duty and that makes me happy. I have had a pretty full day and I am worn out, but you can say for me that this is one of the happiest days of my life."

Edward's legal advisors, it was said, made an inquiry as to what penalty Jardine would likely incur before advising the duke to accept the clergyman's offer. Their conclusion was that he does not face anything worse than a rebuke from his bishop. It was pointed out that under the Discipline of Clergy act, a minister can only be expelled for immorality. It was further pointed out that the vicars of two well known London dioceses, Savoy chapel and St. Ethelberga the Virgin, continually marry divorced couples without consulting their bishop.

Finish Special Highway for Duke at Honeymoon Castle

KLAGENFURT, Austria, June 2.—(AP)—Workmen today put the finishing touches on a twelve-mile highway improvement which will permit the duke of Windsor to drive in comfort to the Woertersee golf course from the Wasserleonburg castle where he is to spend his honeymoon. All was in readiness at the castle, although the time of the duke's arrival with his bride was not disclosed. It was understood that some time during the summer they would visit the Dalmatian coast.

MONTS, France, June 2.—(AP)—Mme. Mercier, first lady of Monts, remembered today how the duke of Windsor—he whom Mayor Charles Mercier unites in marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield—once kissed her long ago. The mayor, she said, is not even jealous.

"It was on the battlefield of the Somme twenty years ago," she said. "It was at Doullens, headquarters of the British army. We lived there and my father entertained many of the officers. When we learned the British king, George V., was coming, I was chosen to present him with a bouquet of flowers.

"After I presented the bouquet and curtsied, King George asked his son, the prince of Wales, to express his thanks. The prince stepped forward, shook hands with me and kissed me on the cheek. I am sure the duke of Windsor must remember that kiss."

Mme. Mercier is 45 years old and the mayor is 46. Edward will be 43 June 23.

BRITISH BISHOPS 'DISOWN' DUKE'S WEDDING PARSON

ward and Mrs. Warfield came as a complete surprise to church circles. It was understood there would be no religious ceremony in view of the attitude of the church toward divorce. But the parson's action now appears to have stressed the deep lines of cleavage in the Church of England leadership.

Earlier in the day the bishop of Durham, Dr. Herbert Hensley Henson, in whose diocese Jardine holds office, issued a statement passing the buck about the preacher leaving his post at Darlington to go to France to marry the duke. The bishop said he had no knowledge his vicar was out of the diocese.

"No Authority to Officiate."

"The Rev. Mr. Jardine has no authority whatever to officiate in any diocese other than Durham unless he has the sanction of the proper local ecclesiastical authorities," he declared. "He holds office within the diocese of Durham and there he can only administer within the limits of the law. If the marriage of the duke of Windsor were occurring within the diocese, the bishop of Durham would consider himself in duty bound to inhibit him or any other clergyman within his jurisdiction from officiating at the marriage.

"But the bishop has no jurisdiction outside his own diocese and cannot, therefore, control the Rev. Mr. Jardine's actions on the continent. English clergymen on the continent are under the control of a responsible Anglican bishop and presumably the Rev. Mr. Jardine secured his permission."

But Jardine did not secure such permission.

Church Circles Stirred.

The Darlington vicar's action in agreeing to marry Edward and Mrs. Warfield seems the more significant in view of the fact that he is vicar of one of the poorest areas of England. The duke of Windsor as King Edward VIII. and prince of Wales frequently expressed his sympathy for the nation's "depressed areas." Jardine also was a preacher in the distressed Rhondda valley of South Wales where Edward paid a visit last November and expressed himself vividly about its distressed condition just before he lost his throne.

The deep concern which the archbishop of Canterbury and other high churchmen were showing about the vicar's spiritual aid to the ex-king gave the impression that church authorities are uneasy lest this manifestation of loyalty to the duke provoke a division in the church. Nonconformist sects, which include perhaps one-third of the population, have resented the power and monopoly of the Church of England in religious affairs. Furthermore, they did not like being excluded from King George's coronation ceremonies.

The cleavage in opinion about divorce between the archbishop of Canterbury's stand and that of the majority of citizens is illustrated by the fact that, despite furious opposition by the church and bishops, the new divorce bill has just been passed in the house of commons on third reading. The measure extends causes for divorce from adultery—now the sole ground—to desertion and insanity. The bishops are trying to kill this bill in the house of lords.

A HEDGE PRIEST RISES AGAIN TO HELP HIS KING

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Students of English history last night pointed to the offer of the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine to marry the duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield [Simpson] as in line with traditional attitudes of country clergy toward a king of England. Over the centuries the clergy, often harried by lords, bishops, and powerful county families in their ministrations to the common people, could usually count on the king, or the king's judges, for justice.

When the Rev. Mr. Jardine was described as a presbyter vagans [wandering priest], the medieval hedge priests were brought to mind. These hedge priests, because they went too far in trying to protect rights of common people against lords or bishops, had been deprived of their livings or orders.

Old Custom Recalled.

Despite this deprivation, these vagrant priests surreptitiously continued their ministrations among the poor and depressed. The Right Rev. Dr. Staunton Batty, who is the lord bishop of Fulham and in north and central Europe, called Mr. Jardine a presbyter vagans. Today's wedding at Cande will take place in Bishop Batty's jurisdiction.

The Rev. Mr. Jardine's declaration that he would go to France to his former king's spiritual aid is reminiscent of English parish priests in the pretender days of the first half of the 18th century who would secretly propose toasts to their king "over the water." But the king to these clergymen was none of the four Georges who were first to reign under that name, but the older and younger pretenders to the throne, descendants of James II. of the house of Stuart, living in exile in France. In the toast "to the king" the wine glass was passed over finger bowls of water to signify their king no longer was in England; that the Georges of the Hanover line reigning in London did not command their allegiance.

Changes Resisted.

Country clergy such as the Rev. Mr. Jardine, his recalcitrant predecessors the hedge priests and the later adherents to the exiled pretenders, generally were radical in their social views but conservative in their attitude toward the crown. When a king such as former Edward VIII., or a line such as the Stuarts, gave protection against the lords and the powerful for their work among common people, these clergy tended to resist changes in kingship or lines. When both king and powerful county families failed them, the trend of clerical interest was toward allegiance to the Roman Catholic church.

Commentators on recent events in England, in which a king who was favorable to interests of poor people and country clergy was caused to abdicate, point to a twofold trend they say will ensue in the Church of England. One trend will lead toward increasing numbers of clergy making their obedience to the Catholic church; the other toward a new nonconformity within the established church as illustrated by the Rev. Mr. Jardine's action.

JEWELER PUTS SOUL INTO PEN TO REGISTER DUKE-WALLY WEDDING

BY MAY BIRKHEAD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTS, France, June 2.—The Windsor-Warfield marriage tomorrow is to be registered in the town hall of Monts—and how!

The duke and duchess are to sign the registry book with a specially made pen, a real triumph of the jeweler's art, its tip gold, the holder silver and near the top of the holder is a band of gold. This gold band is inscribed with the names of the principals and the word Cande and the date, June 3, 1937.

The color scheme is significant. The edges of the gold band are lettered in royal red, the color of the house of Windsor, while the letters of the inscription is done in Wallis blue. This pen will rest as a historic souvenir in the mairie or town hall of Monts where the names of the parties to the local marriages and their witnesses, the officiant and other essentials are always inscribed.

HUNT SIX MEN AS INSTIGATORS OF FATAL RIOT

Plot Hatched Beforehand, Police Charge.

The Memorial day attack upon police guarding the Republic Steel corporation plant in South Chicago had been studiously planned at meetings of the strikers' strategy committee, police said last night.

Moreover, agitators went among the strikers at the massmeeting which preceded the attack on Sunday, according to James L. Mooney, supervising captain of police, telling them:

"We'll get those cops, knock them over, take their guns away from them, and go right into the plant."

The plans were laid, the police said, at two meetings of the strategy committee in Indiana Harbor, one on Friday and one on Saturday. The method of the attack and the technique of arousing the workers were plotted, according to police evidence.

Regard Evidence as Vital.

As they began a search for six men, blamed as the most important figures in the plot, the authorities revealed that they regard such evidence as vital to their effort to punish the agitators they accused of sending the workmen out to do mob violence which cost six lives and sent 90 persons to hospitals.

State's Attorney Courtney's men said they already have evidence upon which to base charges of riot conspiracy and perhaps charges of conspiracy to murder. The investigation is in charge of Alexander Napoli and Morris Meyers, assistant state's attorneys.

Meanwhile, more information regarding the work of communist agitators in provoking the riot was found by the investigators.

Thirteen Rioters Communists.

Lieut. Make Mills, head of the industrial detail of the police department, said that thirteen of those who took part in the riot were communists, many of them active workers in the party. A number of other communists, he believes, helped stir the strikers up and then hurried off to safety as the strikers marched on the plant.

A number of the known communists involved had been arrested previously for radicalism. Among them was Joseph Rothmund of 2857 Belmont avenue, a Works Progress administration employé, slain in the riot, who was revealed at the coroner's inquest Tuesday as a communist leader.

Mayor Starts Inquiry.

Mayor Kelly stepped into the strike situation last night by ordering an investigation to determine whether the company is violating health department regulations, after he was told the loyal employés still working in the plant are being housed there when off duty.

The mayor's investigation was begun by Joel Connolly and John J. Aeberly of the office of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, and Robert Knight, deputy building commissioner.

Mayor Kelly explained that he intends to enforce the law impartially, and that he wishes to know if the company is obeying regulations. A report was expected soon.

While the strike territory was comparatively quiet in the Chicago area, there was activity in Ohio in the labor controversy that has halted the work of more than 70,000 steel workers from Chicago to Buffalo.

Two planes carrying food into the Republic plant at Warren, O., crashed during the day. Company officials said that one of the pilots had been frightened by snipers and that a bullet had pierced the strut of the other's plane. Both pilots escaped injury.

The company spokesmen said that because of the snipers they would fly no more food into the plant, which is besieged by strikers attempting to starve the 2,000 loyal workers into joining the strike. The spokesmen said that food would be taken in by truck today, and that if municipal authorities refused to protect the trucks the company would protect them.

Freight Train Stopped.

Food was going into the plant at South Chicago without interruption, although Pennsylvania railroad police complained that one freight train entering the plant had been stopped and searched by men who said that trains found to be carrying in food would be blown up.

A threat of bloodshed was voiced last night by Leo Krzycki, a leader high in the councils of the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, of John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization. Speaking before 350 strike leaders in Croatian hall at 95th street and Commercial avenue, he said:

"We are going to fight on to victory regardless of the cost in lives of our martyrs. We have gone half way to meet the Republic Steel company and right now we are half way on the road. If they are on the square, there will be no trouble.

"If they are not, we are ready to spill our blood in large quantities in the middle of the road."

Although there had been no more peace negotiations in the general strike situation, Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio announced that he was hopeful of an early settlement. He revealed that he had been conferring with officials of the Republic and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube companies and that he planned to confer tomorrow with representatives of the S. W. O. C. Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic, and S. C. Argetsinger, vice president of the Youngstown company, were the steel executives with whom he talked today.

Bittner Issues Challenge.

In Hammond Van A. Bittner, regional director for the S. W. O. C., made a radio address in which he challenged the steel companies to place the controversy in the hands of President Roosevelt.

Thirty-eight men and two women, who took part in the riot in South Chicago, were arraigned yesterday before Judge Frank M. Padden in Felony court on charges of conspiracy to commit an illegal act. Judge Padden set bond at $500 each, refusing to grant no-schedule bonds, but released an expectant mother and a man with a wounded leg. He set the hearing for June 23, when it is expected that the rest of the 65 against whom charges have been filed will be out of hospitals.

Twelve Freed on Own Bond.

Judge Edward B. Casey of the Municipal court late last night approved bonds provided by the International Labor Defense for 18 of the prisoners. Judge Thomas B. Green in the South Chicago court early yesterday released on their own bond 12 of the rioters with the comment:

"What the police should have done was to have arrested Leo Krzycki, as he is the one who incited the entire affair, according to my belief."

A group funeral service will be held at 2 p. m. today for five of the slain rioters in Eagles hall at 9233 Houston avenue. Services were held yesterday for the sixth, Kenneth Reed of 3921 Deal street, Indiana Harbor, in the chapel at 3438 Fir street, Indiana Harbor.

Mayor Kelly yesterday received in his office a delegation which asked the removal of Commissioner Allman of the police and Capt. Mooney for their action in protecting the Republic company's property. Members of the delegation, all employés of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company, were officials of the Carnegie-Illinois locals of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate.

INSURANCE KEPT UP BY STEEL PLANT PAYS ON 3 RIOTERS' DEATHS

A $2,000 insurance benefit will be paid to the beneficiaries of each of the three employés of the Inland Steel company at Indiana Harbor killed in the Sunday riot at the Republic Steel plant at South Chicago, according to a company official. The payments, he said yesterday, will be made under the group life insurance plan maintained by the company. The company has kept the group insurance in force despite the strike.

The dead Inland employés for whom the policies were carried were James Handley, Albert Causey, and Kenneth Reed. They were not steel workers but were employed on the plant construction program at Indiana Harbor.

FOUND SHOT DEAD AS BON VOYAGE GUESTS WAIT HIM

Friends arranged a farewell party last night for Otto Swedberg, 34 years old, who had planned to sail tomorrow for a visit to his boyhood home in Sweden. His wife, Hilda, and their daughter Elizabeth, 10 years old, arranged to meet him at Barry and Ogden avenues and go with him to the party at 1011 Barry avenue. He did not appear at the appointed place and they went on to the party. Swedberg also failed to appear there. His wife and daughter then went to their home at 3252 North Clark street, where the family operates a confectionary. They found Swedberg dead on the floor, shot through the heart A pistol lay near his hand.

Causes Chemist's Arrest; Charges Shooting May 9

Benjamin D. Mitchell, 29 years old, 1400 East 53d street, was arrested last night on complaint of Joseph Guinan, 33 years old, 4655 Lake Park avenue, who said he recognized Mitchell as the prowler who shot him in the chest last May 9 at his home. At the Hyde Park station he signed a complaint charging assault with intent to kill. Mitchell denied the charge. He said he was a research chemist for a packing company.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Fifteen women were injured at Little Falls, N. J., today in a battle between police and detachments from a mob of 1,000 pickets that swarmed about the strike besieged Little Falls Laundry company.

The fight raged for nearly an hour but the pickets were finally driven back and dispersed by successive barrages of tear gas and effectively wielded police sticks.

Three women were cut when a stone smashed the windshield of their automobile. They were taken to Paterson General hospital. Laundry company officials said a dozen young women were treated for injuries in the plant hospital.

Appeals for Police Aid.

Mayor James B. Young appealed to Gov. Harold Hoffman for state policemen to prevent a repetition of the rioting which he feared.

The strike at the laundry has been in progress for two weeks. The plant opened last Friday, however, after a week's suspension of business. The Textile Workers Organizing committee recently threatened a general strike in the Passaic textile area in an effort to force settlement of the laundry strike.

Shipments of gold and silver bullion into New York were paralyzed today by a strike of about 400 armored car drivers and guards. Their union, an A. F. of L. affiliate, seeks higher wages, a 40 hour week, closed shop and union recognition.

Pickets Bar Workers.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 2.—[Special.]—Employés of the National Electric Products corporation were barred from the concern's plant in Ambridge today by several hundred pickets from the United Electrical and Radio Workers' union, a C. I. O. affiliate. A union leader said a strike was called because the company recognized the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, an A. F. of L group.

Movie Strike Continues.

Hollywood, Cal., June 2.—[Special.]—The strike of movie studio craftsmen was still on today. The Federated Motion Picture Crafts, which started the month old strike, repudiated a settlement announced by its bitter rival, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés.

The striking makeup artists, painters, hairdressers, and draftsmen had been expected to return to work today. The settlement arranged by the nonstriking stage employés union, which has been accused by the federation of being a company group, would have meant collapse of the walkout.

Father Is Freed

Mrs. Dennis O'Neill, whose father was freed in death of her husband.

Norristown, Pa., June 2.—(AP)—The Montgomery county grand jury today refused an indictment against Joseph J. McGinley, who was arrested last Saturday after his son-in-law, Dennis A. O'Neill, was found with his throat cut with a razor. O'Neill was cut in his home after he had quarreled with his wife. He died a short time later. McGinley was arrested and charged with murder. He later was released in $25,000 bail.

Marguerite Eustice Moves Before Evictors Get There

Miss Marguerite Eustice, whose shotgun marriage to Assistant Corporation Counsel Quinn O'Brien was annulled recently, foiled the sherif again yesterday when two deputies and a moving van came to evict her from her apartment at 3202 Sheridan road for nonpayment of rent. On previous attempts Miss Eustice was not molested when she maintained her approaching motherhood meant she must not be disturbed. Yesterday her own movers took the furniture to a warehouse. The sherif's men, who arrived during the removal, expressed satisfaction with the arrangement and left.

MARRIAGE TEST AND PAROLE BILL ACTION DELAYED

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—Action by the Illinois house of representatives on two important measures from the senate was delayed today by pressure of other business. The Schnackenberg-Ward parole bill, awaiting concurrence in a senate amendment, is scheduled for a vote tomorrow.

At the request of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher of Chicago, Benjamin S. Adamowski introduced a new bill in this field, one for the creation of a court of three judges to replace the present parole board. It was sent to the judiciary committee and is expected to stay there.

At the suggestion of Gov. Henry Horner, Edward P. Saltiel agreed to amend his marriage license bill to provide that city health departments as well as the state department of public health will make free laboratory tests for syphilis and gonorrhea when they are requested by physicians. The change will have to be made in conference, a process that delays final action on the bill until next week.

DEMAND DEFEAT OF ALL PLANS TO CONTROL COURTS

Buffalo, N. Y., June 2.—(AP)—Delegates to the annual congress of the Sons of the American Revolution passed a resolution today urging representatives to defeat President Roosevelt's Supreme court plan and any other proposal to impair court independence.

In another resolution, the organization asked congress to pass legislation making "the advocacy of the overthrow, by force and violence, of the government, and the advocacy of killing its officials, a felony."

PATIENT KILLED AS GAS IN HIS LUNGS EXPLODES

Baltimore, Md., June 2.—(AP)—Dr. Winford Smith said today that gas given a patient as an anaesthetic had exploded during an operation, killing the patient and burning two nurses.

Dr. Smith, director of the Johns Hopkins hospital, said the accident occurred yesterday at the hospital. Benjamin Taylor, 34, of Belnew, Md., was undergoing an operation for removal of a carbuncle, and had been given a mixture of oxygen, nitrous oxide, and ether.

An electric cautery was being used on the wound when the gas in the patient's lungs exploded, Dr. Smith said. Taylor was killed and two nurses beside the operating table suffered burns. The operating surgeon was not injured.

"The gases used in the mixture ordinarily are not explosive," Dr. Smith said.

J. P. Morgan Boards Ship for Home; Goes to Bed

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 2.—(AP)—J. P. Morgan boarded the Queen Mary today to return to the United States and went at once to bed. The New York banker was ill throughout his stay in England but his doctor said today he was in much better health.

129 NORTH WABASH AVENUE

65 GO ON TRIAL FOR CONTEMPT IN FANSTEEL STRIKE

Accused of Violating an Order for Eviction.

Sixty-five men who took part in the unsuccessful sitdown strike at the Fansteel Metallurgical company of North Chicago last February went on trial yesterday in Waukegan on charges of violating a court injunction which ordered their eviction from the plant.

Judge Forby.

The men are all members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel, and Tin Workers of North America, an affiliate of John L. Lewis' radical Committee for Industrial Organization. On allegations of prejudice, Judge Ralph J. Dady of the Lake county Circuit court, who issued the original injunction, granted a change of venue to City Judge Theodore Forby of Zion, sitting in the Circuit court.

Adelman a Defendant.

Chief among the defendants is Meyer Adelman, 330 pound one time chef from Kentucky, and never a steel worker, who is Waukegan-Milwaukee director of the steel workers' organizing committee, the C.I.O. shock troop front which set off the fatal battle with police at the Republic steel plant in South Chicago last Sunday.

Leo Krzycki, Polish born Milwaukee Socialist, and assistant regional director of the S. W. O. C., whose oratory preceded the Republic strike riot mob, is involved in another phase of the Fansteel case. Although not charged with contempt, Krzycki with Adelman and several local union leaders, is awaiting trial on a criminal charge of conspiracy to block the court evacuation order.

65 of 105 Respond.

The names of 105 men cited for contempt were called yesterday, but only 65 responded. Bonds of those who failed to appear were ordered forfeited.

Also named were Philip Murray, national chief of the S. W. O. C. union drive, and Van A. Bittner, the big boss in the Great Lakes region. But because they took no active part in the North Chicago battle company attorneys said they would be dismissed from the case.

On Feb. 17 sitdown strikers seized the plant, which is engaged in the fabrication of rare metals. Judge Dady on the following day ordered the sitdowners to evacuate the plant. When they refused he cited them for contempt.

Two pitched battles with deputies of Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle ensued. In the first, on Feb. 19, the strikers repulsed the law forces by hurling acid. In the second, on Feb. 26, police drove out the strikers with a fierce attack of tear and emetic gas.

Wakem Sued for $10,000 in Fatal Auto Accident

Wallace S. Wakem, 21, 1448 Lake Shore drive, was sued for $10,000 damages yesterday as the result of an accident when his automobile crashed into one driven on Ogden avenue by William J. Malone, 26 years old, 3940 West Monroe street, killing Malone. The suit was filed by Jacob Stagman, attorney for the Malone estate. Wakem is a son of the late Wallace S. Wakem, wealthy warehouse operator.

AUTO UNION GOES TO COURT IN EFFORT TO FORCE NEGOTIATIONS

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 2.—(AP)—The United Automobile Workers went into court as a minority stockholder in a strike closed company today in an attempt to compel the management to open negotiations.

The U. A. W. A., as the owner of five shares in the Macey company, obtained from Circuit Judge Leonard D. Verdier an order for a court hearing at which the company shall show cause why the court should not rescind its order of Tuesday authorizing the receiver of the Macey company to resume operations to fill existing orders and why Earle S. Irwin, receiver, should not enter into a collective bargaining conference with representatives of the workers.

The union acquired the stock last week to contest a petition for dissolution filed in Circuit court by the Macey company. The petition alleged that labor trouble has made profitable operation impossible.

CENTRAL LABOR IN N. Y. SUSPENDS 46 C. I. O. LOCALS

New York, June 2.—(AP)—The Central Trades and Labor council tonight announced the suspension of 46 of its locals affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The suspended locals, of which the council had 456 members, were branches of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, the Transport Workers' union, the Bookkeepers and Stenographers' union, and the United Textile Workers.

UNION SUES FORD; CHARGES UNFAIR LABOR PRACTICES

Judge Opens Inquiry on Fight at Dearborn.

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—[Special.]—The filing of unfair labor practice charges against the Ford Motor company was announced in Washington by officers of the United Automobile Workers' union today as a one man grand jury opened an investigation of last week's fighting at the big Ford plant in Dearborn.

Edsel Ford.

Homer Martin, president of the U. A. W., asserted that more than 150 specific cases of alleged company violations were cited in the charges.

Subpenas were issued in connection with the inquiry here for Edsel Ford, president of the motor company, and Harry H. Bennett, his personnel director and head of the Ford "police," but process servers were not able to find either of them.

Six Witnesses Appear.

Six witnesses appeared before Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph W. Liddy, who is conducting the grand jury investigation on the petition of Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne county prosecutor.

They were Mayor John L. Carey and Police Chief Carl A. Brooks of Dearborn and four Ford employés. The four were James Brady, member of the Ford service department; Oscar Jones, former boxer; Wilfred F. Comment, and Burt S. Scallen.

Appeal on California Case.

An appeal to the national labor relations board was also made by the U. A. W. today in connection with the strike at the Ford plant in Richmond, Cal. A petition was filed with the labor board at San Francisco asking that a ballot be taken among Richmond employés to determine what union shall represent them.

Striking Richmond workers charged that machine guns, ammunition and tear gas are being sent into the plant there, which has been closed since last Wednesday by a walkout.

Makes 321 Mile Flight at 17,000 Feet in Hour

Dayton, O., June 2.—(AP)—Alexander de Seversky, Long Island, N. Y., aircraft manufacturer, yesterday flew from Scott field, Belleville, Ill., to Wright field in one hour even, averaging 321 miles an hour, air corps officials announced today. The former Russian army officer said the flight was made at an altitude of 17,000 feet.

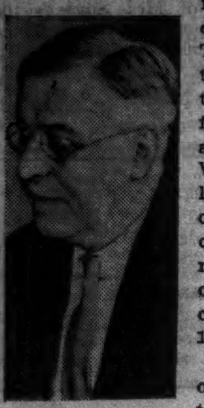
TELL OF MALONE CASH SQUEEZE ON SURFACE LINES

Lawyer Admits Splitting Fee to Aid Campaign.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The political art of applying the squeeze and the kick-in to lawyers' fees was expounded yesterday by Thomas D. Huff, tax attorney for the Chicago surface lines in 1930, at the trial of William H. Malone on charges of evading income tax payments of $59,000 on $330,000 concealed income in 1929 and 1930.



Thomas D. Huff.

Huff, a picture of legal dignity, told a jury in Federal Judge William H. Holly's court that in 1930 the surface lines paid him a fee of $20,000 to represent them before the state tax commission, of which Malone was chairman. He testified that of this sum he turned over $10,000 to Malone, in $1,000 bills, at the latter's solicitation to help finance Malone's campaign for governor. Malone ran in the Republican primaries of 1932 and was defeated for the nomination by Len Small.

An Old Custom, Court Hears.

The testimony developed that the kick-in was something of an established custom. Huff was a member of the firm of Huff & Cook, which was retained by the Chicago surface lines in 1927 and served until along in 1930.

Until his death in 1930, Horace W. Cook, other partner in the firm handled tax services for the surface lines, Huff testified. The firm had been retained because the late Leonard A. Busby, head of the lines, was an old college friend of Cook. In 1930, Huff took over these affairs, and went to see Malone.

"I argued the assessment against the companies was too high," said Huff. "Malone told me he would make no change. I made up some figures and went back, and he said: 'I assume the matter will be handled as before.' I said: 'What do you mean?' He replied: 'Mr. Cook has made campaign contributions and we'll expect the same from you.' He said Mr. Cook made a campaign contribution of $15,000 the year before. [The firm in 1929 had a $20,000 fee from the surface lines.]

Testifies to Campaign Demand.

"Malone told me he was going to run for governor on his tax program. He said: 'I'll need a lot of money for the campaign.'"

Huff spoke of a later visit concerning the assessed valuation of the lines.

"Malone," he said, "refused to give any reduction. We both got hot under the collar. I said: 'You're a hell of a friend, as cold blooded as a fish.' He said: 'I'm not going to do anything for you. They're watching me like a hawk catching chickens.' When I went to the door he called me back.

"Malone said he would give me a deduction of only $100,000 in the valuation of the Chicago Railway company. I said we would take it into court."

This reduction meant a saving of $6,000 in actual taxes to the surface lines which had paid Huff a fee of $20,000.

Cashed into $1,000 Bills.

"What did you do with the $20,000 check?" asked Austin Hall, assistant district attorney.

"I deposited it in my bank and drew a check on it for $15,000. I expected to make a campaign contribution to Malone. I got fifteen $1,000 bills and later went to see Malone. I told him I was starting from scratch building up a practice and all I could do was $10,000.

"Malone said: 'Well, for old friendship's sake, that will be all right.' That was the only campaign contribution I made." Huff said he walked away with five of the $1,000 bills still in his pocket.

A smile went around the courtroom as Huff remarked that if Malone had asked for the $5,000 he kept, he would have handed it over, too.

In 1927, Huff said Henry L. Blim, who had been special tax adviser to the old state board of equalization of which Malone was a member, was associated with Huff & Cook in the surface lines litigation, and got $12,500, or half the fee of $25,000 that year. A firm check was produced by Huff made out to H. W. Cook for $7,500, but he said he had no knowledge of where it went. Later, Blim on the stand testified that on Oct. 20, 1927, he withdrew $7,500 in currency and gave it to his wife who was then in a hospital. She returned the money, Blim said, and it was spent on house furnishings.

At this point District Attorney Igoe presented records of the Jefferson Park National bank showing that on Oct. 21, 1927, the day after Blim withdrew $7,500 from his bank, Malone's account was credited with $7,500.

Earlier in the day John R. Guilliams, general counsel for the Chicago Surface Lines, identified checks paid by the companies to Huff & Cook. These were for $25,000 a year in 1927 and 1928, $20,000 in 1929, and $20,000 in 1930 to Huff.

$60,000 Contributions Listed.

During the morning Frank L. Tuttle, former tax attorney for the Pullman company and the North Shore Gas company, testified that he turned over $60,000 to Malone as contributions to political campaigns. This came from $70,000 he got in fees in 1927, 1928, 1929, and 1930.

He said he received $15,000 a year during those four years from the Pullman company and turned over $13,000 of each check to Malone. In the same period he got $2,500 a year from the gas company, of which he always turned over $2,000 to Malone for campaign funds. He testified he handed the money in big bills to a messenger sent by Malone.

"Malone said he hoped I would get a pretty good fee," said Tuttle. "He said to hold his position it was necessary for him to raise a lot of money for Gov. Small's campaign."

For Gov. Small's Campaign.

Q. [by Igoe]—Did Malone ask you what you were going to get from the Pullman company? A.—I told him $15,000 a year. He said when I got the check I should cash it, get it in currency, and let him know. When I did he said I ought to make a contribution of $13,000. I said it was all right with me. Gov. Small was running for reëlection and Malone's job depended on it.

After Small was beaten in the Republican primary by Emmerson in 1928, Tuttle said Malone told him he believed he would be reappointed by Emmerson if he made a good showing in raising funds to meet a deficit in the Republican campaign fund for that year.

Dancer Wins Son

Mrs. Sonya Dawson Grover.

Mrs. Sonya Dawson Grover, 29 years old, former burlesque dancer, won a point yesterday in her fight to regain custody of her son, Ronald, 6, when Judge John C. Lewe permitted her to have the boy until Sept. 15. The question of permanent custody will be determined at that time. Mrs. Grover's former husband, Sterling Dawson, 317 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, opposed the motion, stating Ronald was happy in school in the suburb. His attorney, Randolph Bohrer, charged Mrs. Grover was not a suitable mother. Her counsel, Norman Becker, countered with the plea that Mrs. Grover, now married to a railroad freight manager, has settled down to the domestic duties of a wife and mother.

Found Guilty of Selling Car Safety Test Stickers

Michael De Maro, 41 years old, 3148 South Wells street, was found guilty yesterday of selling safety stickers to motorists whose cars had failed to pass safety lane tests required by city ordinance. Municipal Judge Francis J. Borrelli fined De Maro $200 and when he was unable to pay he was sent to the Bridewell to work out the fine. De Maro, formerly an attendant at the Jackson park testing lane, was arrested when he attempted to buy a number of stickers from his supervisor.

Ex-Public Enemy No. 11 Rates No. 1 on Wife's List

Mrs. Agnes Gilbert La Rue, 29 years old, 5905 Princeton avenue, filed suit for divorce yesterday in the Circuit court against Edward La Rue, former member of the Klutas gang, now serving a ten year sentence at the federal prison at Alcatraz for violation of the national stolen automobile act. The bill, filed by Attorney Michael F. Zlatnik, charges La Rue with deserting his wife two months after their marriage, June 26, 1929. La Rue is described in the bill as former Chicago public enemy No. 11.

Fugitive Building, Loan Secretary Is Indicted

The grand jury yesterday returned an embezzlement indictment against Sigmund Majewski, 62 years old, former secretary of the old 16th Ward Building and Loan association, who disappeared last December after it was learned his accounts were $35,000 short. Majewski is still a fugitive.

MEMORIALS THAT MATTER

By CALEB

THE three million dollar Jefferson Memorial which it is proposed to plant in Washington in place of some of the cherry trees causes many people to question the whole idea of "static" memorials.

How far should an individual, a family, a city, a state, or a nation go in devising memorials which are nothing more than expensive piles upon which the public may gaze in wonderment?

If Thomas Jefferson himself could name today the kind of memorial by which he would wish to be remembered, we have a sneaking suspicion it would be something vastly different from a classic Grecian pile of static stone.

Thomas Jefferson might propose the endowing of a college to teach statesmanship.

He might endow an institution for research in political economy.

It is barely possible he would want to do something to insure through research and education a perpetuation of democratic principles in this country he loved.

A hospital might appeal to him—or a useful library—or training in the fundamentals of architecture for government officials who approve the plans of buildings to be built here and there over the country.

Perhaps a good museum in which people could be edified would be his choice.

But hardly a cold and silent, vaulted, useless sort of place! We believe Thomas Jefferson, with his simple tastes, his regard for economy, and his forthright practicality, would vote "no" to a pillared Roman resting place for his effigy.

Most great men would rather be memorialized in a place where people can come and gain something, than in a place where people are simply expected to come and pay homage.

Sometimes we have an idea that among the greatest memorials of the world are honorable businesses which creditably and constructively perpetuate the ideals of men deceased.

HANDS OFF WAR IN SPAIN, POLICY OF WHITE HOUSE

Roosevelt to Let Italy and Germany Alone.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—After a White House conference this afternoon, the executive secretariat stated that the President will pursue a course of watchful waiting, for the time being at least, in connection with the European crisis.

Those who conferred with Mr. Roosevelt were Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Undersecretary Sumner Welles and Norman H. Davis, the President's ambassador at large.

Mr. Hull, it was stated, "brought the President up to date" on the events producing the current war scare in Europe. Mr. Davis, just home from Europe, reported particularly upon the efforts of Great Britain, France and the league of nations to confine the war to the Iberian peninsula and to end the intervention of Hitler and Mussolini on the side of the Spanish rebels and of Stalin on the side of the loyalist government.

President Under Pressure.

The President is being subjected to great pressure by liberals and radicals in and out of congress to proclaim a state of war between Germany and Italy on the one hand and loyalist Spain on the other, and thereupon extend the embargo, now applying to the Spanish factions, to Germany and Italy.

Proclamation of a state of war would call not only for an embargo on the export of arms and implements of war, but for a ban on financial transactions with the belligerents and a prohibition of American travel on ships flying the flags of the belligerents. One of the immediate effects would be the ruin of the American tourist business now enjoyed by German and Italian steamship lines.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, gives every indication of a determination to move cautiously in this affair. He is represented as realizing that if he were to proclaim a state of war existing on the basis of the present situation, he would only incur the ill will of Germany and Italy without advancing the cause of peace.

Recalls Ethiopian Fiasco.

It was such an experiment in neutrality diplomacy in the African war that caused Mussolini to pronounce Mr. Roosevelt's attempted oil embargo an unfriendly act, whereupon Mr. Roosevelt beat a quick retreat.

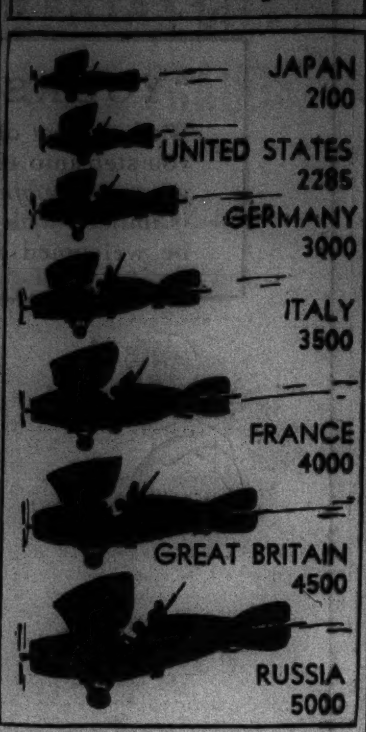
The President is keeping in close touch with Great Britain in a desire to coöperate with British efforts to maintain peace and is not likely to make any move that might be considered provocative by the British government.

The senate foreign relations committee at a meeting today put the brakes on the agitation for neutrality action against Germany and Italy. The committee discussed the European crisis but took no action. After the meeting Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman, said the committee would make no move to invoke the neutrality act.

OVERDOSE OF SEDATIVE FATAL.

Mrs. Cora Bowman, 53 years old, 370 Main street, Glen Ellyn, died yesterday in the Parkway sanitarium, 2616 Prairie avenue. Her death was ascribed to an overdose of sleeping powder.

Air Forces Compared



This chart illustrates the comparative strength of the air forces of seven leading nations, from Japan's 2,100 planes to Russia's 5,000.

U. S. ARMY BUYS 85 MODERN TYPE COMBAT PLANES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The war department today announced the award of a contract to the North American Aviation company for 85 basic combat planes and spare parts equal to ten additional planes at a total cost of $1,372,255.

The planes are low wing cabin monoplanes with tubular steel fabric covered fuselage and will attain a speed of more than 190 miles per hour. They will have an endurance of 3½ hours or more and a service ceiling of 18,000 feet. The planes will be capable of operation from small unimproved fields and will be able to cruise at a low speed for observation purposes.

Carry Crew of Two.

Each plane will carry a crew of two. They will have two way radios, all necessary instruments, landing lights, and provisions for mounting aerial cameras. They will have retractable landing gear, automatic controlable pitch propeller and flaps, and will be powered by Pratt & Whitney single row radial engines of 450 horse power.

Today's order will add 85 planes to the American air force of approximately 2,200 planes. The United States is far behind other nations in the development of air strength. According to the latest available figures—those for 1936— Russia leads the nations of the world with 5,000 planes. Great Britain has 4,500; France, 4,000; Italy, 3,500; Germany, 3,000, and Japan, 2,100.

Not to Replace Larger Type.

The plane was recommended to the department some months ago by the air corps to give the army a plane for such auxiliary training as instrument flying, aerobatics and the like.

The department made it clear that the incorporation of basic combat planes is not being done with a view to curtailing either the number or activity of the combat places already planned for use by the general headquarters air force.

Britain Considers Closing Gibraltar Strait.

ent situation. The waters off the east coast of Spain are the principal weakness of the Spanish government side. If the government loses Bilbao and also a naval battle and Barcelona and Valencia are exposed to attack or blockade, the Spanish loyalists would be in serious straits.

Work continued in the British foreign office on a draft plan for immunity for war vessels taking part in the nonintervention patrol from attack. The broad lines of these proposals are:

FIRST—Filling the gaps in the patrol zones caused by withdrawal of Germany and Italy.

SECOND—Extension of safety zones to which ships engaged in patrol activities may withdraw for rest and refuelling.

THIRD—Guarantees from the Spanish government and rebels that those safety zones will be respected.

Both the Spanish government and rebels will be asked to define and strictly respect these safety zones.

SEEK WARTIME ALLIES

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 2.—While Germany is concentrating the greatest part of her navy in the Mediterranean, her diplomats and ministers are working overtime to make alliances and treaties which will provide her with allies and foodstuffs of all kinds in case of emergency.

Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, and Hungary, rich agricultural countries, will receive a visit next week from German Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath. He will endeavor to make them sign treaties with Germany which have been prepared by Colonel General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, reich director of the four year plan, for more than a year.

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today discussed the German-Spanish crisis before Nazi party leaders from all sections of Germany in a closed gathering.

In a two hour speech Der Fuehrer declared that not only Germany's armed strength but the strength of her leadership are prerequisites to the reich's recovery of world prestige and power.

DUCE ASKS GUARANTEES

ROME, June 2.—(AP)—Italy, her navy virtually blockading the eastern Spanish coast to keep out "communist contraband," confirmed tonight her readiness to rejoin the European nonintervention committee if she gets a guarantee her fleet will not be molested.

That declaration by a high Fascist official followed a long conversation between Premier Benito Mussolini and Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German war minister, in search of a common military point of view toward Spain.

The Fascist official ridiculed any suggestion Italy would intervene directly in Spain, alone or with Germany, in an effort to clinch a victory for the Spanish rebels. If Italy is assured her ships will not be troubled, she will return to the nonintervention committee, he said.

Von Blomberg conferred with Mussolini at the Palazzo Venezia after he arrived here by airplane.

It cannot be doubted that they were thoroughly studying Italy's and Germany's military situation in the Mediterranean.

The meeting will doubtless lead to an understanding for immediate concerted Italo-German action. What the Italian and German governments propose is to bring about a union as close in the military field as is already achieved in the political field by the Rome-Berlin axis.

CAPTAIN OFFERS $100 A PLANE SHOT DOWN MENACING U. S. SHIPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VILLEFRANCHE, France, June 2.—The commander of the United States cruiser Raleigh has offered $100 to any member of the gun crews who shoots down any airplane appearing to menace the ship, THE TRIBUNE was informed today. THE TRIBUNE correspondent learned of the offer from sailors and interviewed the skipper, Capt. Charles H. Maddox, who did not deny it.

Capt. Maddox said, "Obviously I would not make such an offer officially without communicating with my admiral. I might have made this statement to my gun crews, but it cannot be interpreted as a formal one." He resumed, "However, I will not tolerate any planes menacing my men or ship. If at any time I am the object of fire I shall certainly exercise the right to fire back without hesitation."

Capt. Maddox and his ship arrived April 1 from the United States and has been busy bringing war refugees from Spain to French ports, with Villefranche as its base.

BITTER MOUNTAIN FIGHTING SLOWS MADRID'S DRIVE

Loyalists March Around Rebel Stronghold.

BY HENRY BUCKLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 2.—The fighting on the mountainous front north of Madrid today was marked by extreme violence with the rebels offering the strongest resistance to the government offensive which started Sunday.

Government troops continue to fight the rebels around La Granja, 50 miles northwest of Madrid, where the Fascist machine gunners hold almost impregnable positions in the tree hidden ancient royal palace in the northern part of La Granja and a number of buildings adjoining.

March On Despite Siege.

Nevertheless, government troops continued to march past La Granja and along the Segovia road on the left side of the besieged town. They are reported to have reached about seven miles from Segovia, which is the next rebel military base and is famous for its Roman aqueduct and artillery academy.

With the efficient help of the air force, the government troops are pressing rebel positions between Segovia and Revenga while, according to reports, government guns from Cabeza Grande—an important position recently captured by the loyalists—continue to shell Segovia.

The rebels are launching one attack after another in an attempt to capture the hill, Cabeza Grande, which commands the road to Segovia, but all efforts so far have failed. Constant artillery duels are taking place day and night.

Eighteen government bombers and fifteen pursuit planes were engaged in bombing rebel positions on the Segovia road while another government column was marching on Balsain, a half mile behind La Granja. It encountered strong rebel resistance.

NEW LABOR BILL IS ATTACKED AS HEARINGS BEGIN

Charges of Similarity to NRA Are Denied.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Hearings on the administration's new labor standards bill began before a joint committee of the senate and house today with persistent assurances from Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general, that it would not destroy the collective bargaining guarantees of the Wagner act or, as some labor leaders fear, result in making minimum wages the maximum.

Mr. Jackson was equally bland in assuring the two dozen members of congress present that the bill was not in any sense another NRA. They made it plain from the outset that they wanted no part of that discredited experiment and later, when a bird likened by some to a small Blue Eagle fluttered into the hearing room, they didn't know what to make of the omen.

NRA Question Raised.

"Doesn't this bill seek to do in a mandatory way what the NRA sought to do in a voluntary way?" asked Senator Rush D. Holt [D., W. Va.].

"This bill is not even related to the NRA except in respect to the labor objectives," Jackson replied. "Their objectives may be the same in that respect but there is no delegation of power for the industries to write their own codes."

Senator Allen Ellender [D., La.] wanted to know whether the bill wouldn't conflict with or supersede the Wagner labor relations act, but Jackson assured him it would not.

"Suppose," said Senator Ellender, "the employers and the employés reach an agreement, by collective bargaining, on minimum wages and maximum hours and it is below the standards fixed by the board. What would happen? How could the board determine that something was unfair if both the employer and labor agreed that it was fair?"

Might Raise Minimum.

Jackson said it was conceivable that in collective bargaining the agency representing the employers, "through lack of zeal" or for some other reason, would arrive at an agreement below a fair standard. Later, in response to a question by Representative William P. Connery [D., Mass.], chairman of the house labor committee, he said:

"It might be possible for the board to raise the minimum fixed by collective bargaining but it would not be possible to lower the minimum. The whole purpose of this bill is to elevate the floor, so to speak, below which wages cannot go."

"There seems to be a tendency among labor," said Connery, cosponsor of the bill, "to worry about the minimum wage becoming the maximum wage. Isn't the purpose of this bill to fix th minimum wage for the lowest paid group and leave it up to labor to get the rest? Do you feel that there is any danger of the minimum becoming the maximum?"

Jackson said he didn't see how there could be any such danger with collective bargaining.

Assails Geographic Wage.

Representative Glenn Griswold [D., Ind.] objected persistently to the provision of the bill under which the federal board could establish geographical wage and hour differentials within industries. He recalled that, under the NRA, an arbitrary line was drawn across the country to mark the differentials in the garment industry, and the result was that manufacturers promptly moved across the line and paid a dollar a day less.

Jackson was asked repeatedly whether the purpose of the bill was to regulate the labor conditions of purely local enterprises, such as the retail and service trades. He said that, as a practical matter, such was not the purpose of the measure but that a local retailer might be regulated if his practices resulted in unfair competition with an interstate concern such as Sears Roebuck and company.

Jackson gave a detailed analysis of the bill and called it "airtight" on constitutional grounds with the exception of the provision excluding the products of child labor from interstate commerce. Unless this could be distinguished from the act of 1916, he said, its validation would require a reversal of the Supreme court's ruling in the 5 to 4 Hammar vs. Dagenhart case.

WOMAN ENVOY, NOW SILENT AS DIPLOMAT, SAILS FOR NEW POST

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and two other members of the diplomatic corps, George S. Messersmith and Frederick A. Sterling, departed for Europe today on the S. S. Washington, which sailed with a considerable list of passengers for Cherbourg and Southampton.

Mrs. Harriman, who somewhat upset diplomatic precedent when, after her appointment as minister to Norway, she disclosed that a trade pact was under discussion, seemed on guard with interviewers today. She made a formal statement paying tribute to the country to which she is accredited, but beyond this would only say, "I am leaving with the usual instructions which are given ministers by the state department."

She said she was not eager to have any scare headlines and, when one reporter asked whether that meant she felt she had had enough such headlines already, she replied: "To that remark I don't want to be quoted as saying yes or no, but you know the story."

RAPS OFFICIALS OF KANSAS CITY IN VOTE FRAUDS

U. S. Judge Cites Flaunting of State Laws.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—(AP)—Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves pounded his bench for emphasis today as he assailed county authorities for ignoring "a perfect catalog of state crimes" now disclosed by the government's purge of November election frauds.

"There is somebody, some influence, some system, back of all this," he declared in his court.

He referred to testimony regarding wholesale vote thefts and ballot tampering developed since the government began its sweeping investigation last winter. Five defendants sentenced by the judge today brought to 45 the number of politicians and precinct workers who have received sentences ranging from probation to five years in prison.

Points to Violations.

"Defense attorneys in the cases I have heard have admitted wholesale violations of state laws," the judge declared. "When I have instructed the juries I have set forth a perfect catalog of state crimes.

"Yet the pathetic cry of an oppressed people has fallen on heedless and deaf ears. . . . Those who are elected to protect the people from oppression and prosecute violations have not acted. There has not been a move to prosecute. Not a word has been said in protest.

"Let us save Kansas City from the odium now resting on the city. . . . I wonder how long the people will remain apathetic in the face of such staggering crimes?"

Heaviest Sentence Given.

Judge Reeves ordered the heaviest sentence of the prolonged investigation—five years' imprisonment—for Robert Strohm, a Democratic precinct captain, today. Other sentences were:

Thomas Audley, Democratic challenger, there years in prison; Gene Riley, Democratic judge; two years in a federal reformatory, and Mrs. Irene Ervin, Republican clerk, 60 days in jail.

George Arnold, a Democratic judge who pleaded guilty and testified for the government, was placed on two year's probation.

OVERCOME BY GAS; REVIVED.

Gus Schmidt, 30 years old, 5835 North Paulina street, was overcome by coal gas yesterday while working at the bottom of a chimney at the United States Appraisers stores, 610 South Canal street. He was revived and sent to St. Luke's hospital.

7 Battalion Chiefs Raised to District Fire Marshals

Commissioner Michael Corrigan announced yesterday that seven battalion chiefs have been promoted to division fire marshals. They are William Brown and John Moynihan, 5th division; Thomas Clyne and Thomas Gaffney, 4th division; Michael Cody, 1st division; and Thomas Scanlon and Jeremiah Sheehan, 6th division. Division Marshal Edward F. Green was appointed department inspector to succeed John J. Costello, retired under the age limit law. Seventy-seven rookies were also transferred from the drill school to companies.

HOUSE REFUSES QUICK APPROVAL OF U. S. TAX QUIZ

Amendments Planned by Committee.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—A resolution providing for the most spectacular congressional investigation in many years ran into opposition in the house today.

John J. O'Connor, New York Democrat, chairman of the rules committee, attacked the measure as an unprecedented delegation of power to an inquisitory body.

The resolution provides for the appointment of a joint committee of the senate and house to hold hearings and subpena tax dodgers who by legal stratagems have avoided the payment of large amounts in income taxes. The prospect of a series of diverting hearings, with perspiring millionaries as the center of attention, had aroused glee in the senators and representatives who have made a profession of "investigation."

Rushed Through Senate.

Whipped through the senate yesterday immediately after reading of President Roosevelt's message citing instances of tax evasion by wealthy men, the resolution immediately encountered trouble when attempt was made today in the house to give it speedy approval.

Referring almost contemptuously to the senate for its hasty action, O'Connor forced a reference of the resolution to his committee.

He was supported by Representative Maury Maverick, Texas Democrat, who shouted that he was getting tired of voting for administration supported bills before he had a chance to read them.

"Some of these bills that come in here do not look like they were ever written in the United States, much less in Washington," declared Maverick.

Clashes with O'Connor.

Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] of the ways and means committee, who sought to obtain the unanimous consent of the house for immediate consideration of the resolution, clashed heatedly with O'Connor. He mentioned the President's name in urging action without a minute's delay.

"This resolution is probably the greatest surrender and delegation of congressional power which has ever been suggested to the house of representatives," O'Connor retorted. "One section provides that an employé of the treasury may hold hearings by himself on behalf of and representing the joint committee of congress. He may issue subpenas, holding hearings anywhere in the country, with a single member of congress being present. Such a section, of course, was never concocted by any member of congress."

Bars Immediate Action.

An objection by Maverick prevented immediate action on the resolution. The rules committee met later and finally agreed to report the resolution to the house tomorrow, but with a number of amendments. The section giving treasury employés the right to hold hearings was eliminated by vote of the committee.

The resolution as it passed the senate provided merely that the joint committee should have the "right" to report back to congress. The house committee amended the resolution to make such a report mandatory.

Several Democratic leaders conceded privately that the resolution was suggested by the administration as a means of attracting public attention to the tax-avoiding schemes of a few rich men and thereby to divert the spotlight from the embarrassing situation in which the treasury finds itself as a result of lowered tax receipts.

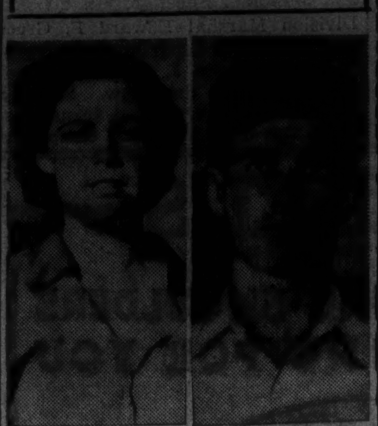
Wants Real Reason.

"I am tired of people coming up here and giving us some mysterious reason why we should do something without time to think it over," Maverick told the house in an explanation of his objection. "I want to know the real reason."

"I think the gentleman is right," agreed Representative Thomas A. Jenkins [R., O.]. "Was this resolution considered by any committee of the senate?"

"It was taken up there by unanimous consent and passed with the usual expedition that happens to things over there," remarked O'Connor, sarcastically. "I think the house should not surrender its powers without at least thinking it over."

Held as Slayer



Mrs. Guy Osborne. Guy Osborne.
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Gallup, N. M., June 2.—(AP)—An ex-convict who attempted flight in unorthodox style on a horse was held in a rickety county jail today for the slaying of a federal agent.

A veteran of the saddle, whose eye was caught by the rider's buckled knees, caused by too short stirrup straps, arrested Guy Osborne, 24 years old, accused Oklahoma automobile thief, a few hours after Agent Truett E. Rowe was shot.

His captor, Police Chief Kelsey Presley, said that Osborne resignedly remarked, "I guess it's all up with me," after being informed of Rowe's death.

Presley and Rowe earlier had gone to the ranch home of Osborne's brother to arrest Guy on automobile theft charges.

"He was a good husband," said Osborne's 17 year old wife.

BUYS ADMIRALS DRINKS; WANTS U.S. TAX CREDIT

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—An American consul argued today that when he buys drinks for visiting admirals, the government should let him deduct the expense from his taxable income.

Perry N. Jester, now consul at Southampton, England, informed the board of tax appeals in a brief that he spent $351.17 on beverages and $153 on entertainment in 1935, when he was consul at Barbados, British West Indies.

It was, he said, the "usual customary hospitality to local government officials, prominent members of the community, and visiting naval officers, including the rear admiral and his staf."

Such entertainment, he said, is necessary to maintain a consul's prestige and further American interests. He declared the bureau of internal revenue erred in refusing to let him deduct the expense.

Supreme Court Upsets Poll Official's Sentence

The state Supreme court yesterday dismissed a contempt of court charge against Peter Bendix, 30 years old, 846 West 33d place, an election judge who was sentenced to a one year term on July 2, 1936, for allowing April ballots to get out of his possession. Holding there was a want of jurisdiction, the Supreme court allowed a motion by Attorney General Otto Kerner to dismiss the sentence imposed by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

FLOODS CAUSE MILLION DAMAGE AND TEN DEATHS

Roswell, N. M., June 2.—(AP)—Floods were held accountable today for ten deaths and more than a million dollars damage in New Mexico and the marooning of a train in Texas with thirty-six passengers aboard.

As waters returned to the Berrenda and Rondo rivers, Roswell was left with a heavy layer of silt. A flood here last night was higher than that of Saturday when damage was estimated at half a million.

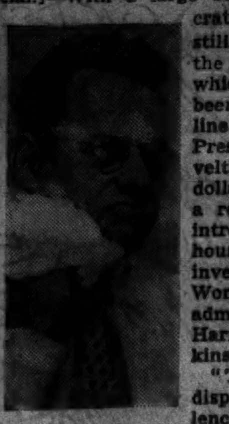
CALLS ON HOUSE TO INVESTIGATE WPA ACTIVITIES

Figures on Unemployment Are Demanded.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—With a large body of Democrats in the house still sulking over the manner in which they had been lashed into line in behalf of President Roosevelt's 1½ billion dollar relief bill, a resolution was introduced in the house today to investigate the Works Progress administration of Harry L. Hopkins.



Rep. Maverick.

"The ten days' dispute and violence on the relief bill indicates that unemployment can no longer be passed off as a superficial emergency matter," declared Representative Maury Maverick [D., Texas], author of the resolution.

Committee of Five.

The resolution provides for a committee of five to determine the number of employables who are unemployed, the number of unemployables in need of relief, and to investigate in general "the manner in which the relief of unemployment has been handled."

The extent of politics in the WPA would also be inquired into under the resolution. The administrative costs of furnishing relief through the WPA should also be investigated, Maverick declared.

Two other resolutions proposed by the Texan would create a regular house committee on unemployment and the appointment of a national unemployment relief commission.

Would Face Facts.

"We can no longer debate these matters in ignorance," Maverick declared. "We have got to come to roost, establish permanent policies, meet the issues of unemployment, destitution, public works, and social security face to face. The resolutions I have introduced will at least set up the machinery for meeting that situation."

Evanston WPA Beach Job Ends Up in Porcupine Hunt

A porcupine aroused several WPA employés from their accustomed calm yesterday when they were cleaning up the Davis street beach in Evanston. Policemen Walter Egebrecht and Daniel Woodruff, two of the members of the porcupine squad, were summoned. The animal sought refuge in a cavity under a stone, but Mr. Woodruff deftly pulled him out by the tail and dropped him in a sack.

U. S. JUDGE REBUFFS MOTION TO CUT YEAR OFF CAPONE'S TERM

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson rebuffed an attempt yesterday to shorten the eleven year sentence imposed on Al Capone for evasion of income tax. He declined to entertain a motion to vacate the one year term in the Cook county jail, which Capone must serve after his release scheduled for September, 1938, from Alcatraz penitentiary.

Capone's attorney, Abraham Teitelbaum, argued that the one year sentence is void because the verdict on that count—a misdemeanor charge that Capone failed to file a tax return in 1928 and 1929—was inconsistent with the jury's verdict on other counts of the indictment. Assistant United States Attorney Warren Canaday said the motion should have been made at the time of Capone's original appeal.

Judge Wilkerson allowed Attorney Teitelbaum two additional days to cite authorities in support of the motion, but he indicated he would not enter any order in the case.

IMPEACHMENT OF WILSON GOES TO EXECUTIVE GROUP

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—Impeachment of Judge Edwin L. Wilson of the Will county Circuit court, because he restrained local officials from interfering with slot machines in Joliet, will be considered next week by the house executive committee.

Representative Joseph Sam Perry [D., Wheaton], who presented the impeachment resolution, attempted to have it sent to the judiciary committee today, but was defeated on a voice vote.

The executive committee several weeks ago killed another resolution in which Perry sought to have Judge Wilson's conduct investigated by a house committee. This was before dissolution of the slot machine injunction by Judge Wilson.

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Nine sidewalk cleaners who got their pictures in the papers when the Clean Sidewalks' association started its campaign to clean up New York's chewing gum wads filed claims against the association today with the state department of labor, demanding $4 each for four hours of watching the birdie.

ROOSEVELT PENS MESSAGE URGING PARADE OF TVA'S

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt drafted a special message to congress this afternoon which will recommend the creation for the nation of a series of power and flood control authorities similar to the Tennessee Valley authority.

It was reported that the President will suggest a twenty year program which will include the related subjects of irrigation, reforestation, and soil erosion, as well as power and flood control. Senator George Norris [Radical, Neb.], father of the TVA, will introduce a bill which will incorporate the suggestion of the message shortly after its reading.

Establishment of a series of power authorities will further the administration's campaign against private enterprise in the public utility field. The power message will follow hard upon his assault on tax dodgers and constitutes another phase of the administration's attack on persons of means. The White House said the message will contain about 1,700 words.

COMPLETE JURY TO TRY M'KINLAY ON BRIBE CHARGE

Selection of a jury to try Robert W. McKinlay, a federal court receiver, on a special charge of bribing a juror in the first trial of Frank V. Zintak, ousted Superior court clerk, was completed yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Robert Jerome Dunne.

Observers were surprised that only two days were necessary to complete the jury in such an important case, when usually a week or more is taken. Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan and Defense Attorney Benedict J. Short examined the veniremen on their political affiliations. The jurors are:

CHARLES ENGEMAN, 55 years old, 5255 South Marshfield avenue.

FREDERICK PICHON, 29, of 4137 Ellis avenue.

AMOR E. SANDBERG, 36, of 6625 South Campbell avenue.

FRANK KEMPF, 55, of 1535 Jackson boulevard.

BARNEY POLK, 43, of 3211 North avenue.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT STOPS ITS MAILS.

While Chicago has been out in front in the steel strike Youngstown and Warren, O., have been offering some curious exhibits of lawlessness and of governmental aid to it.

In Chicago, the police doing their duty threw back two determined attacks directed at steel company workers remaining within the plants. These attacks had been incited by agitators who fled from the scene as soon as they saw the consequences of what they had urged the men to do.

What would have happened if these unfortunately misguided and inflamed men had broken through the police line and reached the property can only be imagined. We have Herrin as a memory of something this state never wants to happen again.

The responsibility for this violence, causing many injuries and some deaths, many policemen being among the injured, is upon the agitators who started the two marches and upon government officials who had encouraged strikers to believe that no laws applied against them in any enterprise they undertook.

In Youngstown and Warren the affair has been without bloodshed, but it has presented exhibits of lawlessness involving the federal government in a violation of its own laws which should be sharply commented upon and long remembered.

In the earlier Michigan automobile strikes the strikers were within the plants, trespassing upon property, preventing the use of it, and defying authority to remove them. They not only insisted upon remaining there as the exercise of a right apparently conferred by the department of labor and other federal officials but they demanded that food be sent to them, that the companies keep the plants heated, and that their illegal occupation should be without discomfort or interruption.

In the Youngstown and Warren affairs the occupants of the plants have been the workers, there at the request of the employers and endeavoring to do their customary work in their normal fashion. The strikers are outside. They refuse to permit food and material to be sent into the plant and they interfere with the delivery of United States mail by turning away mail trucks. An attempt to send parcel post food packages to the employés legally occupying the plant was stopped by the postoffice itself.

The Youngstown postal officials said that on orders from Washington they would accept no packages of "an unusual nature." No parcel post package conforming to the postal rules can be regarded as of an unusual nature and the refusal of the department to permit deliveries to a besieged plant when such deliveries would be made anywhere else puts the federal government officials in a conspiracy with the strikers to make the destruction of the law complete.

The postoffice officials at Warren refused to allow food packages to be sent into the picketed plant of the Republic Steel company. In Washington, Jesse M. Donaldson, first deputy assistant to Postmaster General Farley, said that a new service rule had been adopted which prohibited the delivery of food parcels into plants where there are strikes. There will be no deliveries to such plants except of letters. The pickets halted the mail trucks and when company officials asked the postoffice to protect the shipments the protection was refused. A mail delivery of newspapers was turned back by massed pickets.

The postoffice department has stopped the delivery of its own mail. The federal government has entered a conspiracy to starve out persons lawfully occupying productive plants and it has denied the use of the postal service to law abiding persons who want to send parcel post packages to feed their friends and relatives. The state of Ohio does not protect its citizens and the federal government attacks them.

What Grover Cleveland would have said to this cannot even be imagined. What any other administration than the present one would have done if a mail truck had been stopped by any one can easily be imagined.

John Lewis is collecting dollar for dollar for the campaign money he gave Jim Farley. The average American citizen may be asked to observe these proceedings and reflect upon them. It can happen here but it never happened before. There is ground for the prosecution of every federal official involved in the conspiracy with lawlessness.

INEXCUSABLE DELAY.

The city council's delay in enacting a new building code is hurting all the citizens of Chicago and one group in particular—the men in the building trades. For lack of a modern code, building costs are needlessly high. Cheaper and better materials than those now on the permitted list are barred from use. When construction costs are high, few buildings are erected. Thousands of carpenters, masons, plasterers, electricians, painters, and other building tradesmen are out of work today because the city council is asleep.

The need for revision was forseen ten years ago when the council first gave consideration to the question. A commission of architects, contractors and engineers was appointed to modernize the building laws of Chicago. The work has long been completed, but the code still is in the hands of a subcommittee of the city council and Ald. McDermott, chairman of the subcommittee, is in no hurry.

Meanwhile thousands of building mechanics are on the relief rolls. Meanwhile, too, tens of thousands of families in Chicago who might be living in new houses and flats are living in old ones and rents are mounting because the demand is great and the supply does not increase. There is a shortage of industrial buildings and for lack of them Chicago's growth is retarded and Chicagoans who might obtain work in new manufacturing plants are unemployed.

Meanwhile, too, the officials of the local governments in Chicago are finding their financial problems increasingly difficult to solve. Because few new buildings have been erected to replace the old ones which have been torn down in recent years, the cost of government is being divided among fewer instead of more properties. That means higher taxes and increasing tax delinquency.

The enactment of a new building code will help all the people of Chicago. There is no excuse for the delays. If Ald. McDermott's committee will not report the new draft it is the plain duty of the city council to take the matter out of the committee's hands.

WE NEED A SHAKESPEARE.

THE TRIBUNE feels that it owes an explanation to some of its readers who are tempted day by day beyond their intellectual self-control into reading stories concerning Mrs. Wallis Warfield and the late Edward VIII. We know if these readers were not tempted they would put the matter out of their minds. They would try to forget that there was a Mrs. Warfield and the duke of Windsor would become of no more importance to them than the duke of Norfolk. They probably blame THE TRIBUNE as the tempter more than they blame themselves as the victims of a species of curiosity which is the oldest in the world.

We give such readers our assurance that we can no more resist printing these stories than they can resist reading them. We concede that when the announcement that an American woman will not be known as her royal highness, even when married to Edward VIII. of England, makes the front page for a column, we have departed considerably from what underlies our respect for Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Jefferson, and George Washington.

We plead mitigating circumstances. No other newspaper generation ever had such a yarn offered to it. Who could have imagined that Hollywood would move into Buckingham palace, 10 Downing street, and Westminster abbey? Who could have imagined that the most preposterous of scenarios would take its sets out of the entire British empire, present as its lead a young king of England, not yet crowned, with an American lady, once divorced and about to be again, as his support, with the prime minister a hooded figure making secret night approaches to the bachelor king's residence at Belvedere and the great figures of the Church of England showing in the background in postures they have not assumed since the day when they were trying to convince the pope that the first marriage of Henry VIII. was invalid?

Here's the greatest empire in the world having successive fits of imperial ague because an American woman, born in the state of Patrick Henry, is worth more to the king than the crown, the throne, the dominions, and all that the royal institution represents in history, sentimentalism, politics, and the social life of the British people.

In extenuation for the first page announcement that Mrs. Wallis Warfield will not be known as her royal highness, and we hope that if Patrick Henry is uneasy where he rests he also will understand this, we ask how could such a situation be resisted either by the newspaper or its readers? Probably what we lack is a Shakespeare who could strip for the occasion and do the story as it unfolds. We confess the lack of such a genius but must concede that the material is at his disposal if he could be reincarnated.

We all of us like stories of intrigue and romance, and even a stout republican cannot truthfully say that he is not interested when he sees an imperial institution shaking to its foundations and its greatest characters trying to dispose of its future according to their liking. Even Sam Adams would have bought the early edition.

No one knows what the future of this story will be. In old English law only God can make an heir. The heir to the British throne is wherever Edward, once the VIII., now Windsor, may happen to be. All this great Christmas cake was handed to the newspapers, entirely unexpectedly and most astonishingly. We confess that we are unable to refrain from slicing and serving it. We hope you like it.

Editorial of the Day

IF THEY REALLY WANT STATE RIGHTS—

[Des Moines Register.]

Those southern senators who were so badly shocked by the federal anti-lynching bill because it invaded "state rights" had better get together in a hurry and vote Gov. Bibb Graves of Alabama a medal.

The governor had sent the attorney general after a sherif who permitted a lynching in his county, but the grand jury refused to indict. Thereupon Gov. Graves instituted impeachment proceedings against the sherif, and he sounds like he means business.

Says the governor:

"To say that lynching has anything to do with protecting womanhood in Alabama is pure poppycock. . . . Those unlawful hoodlums who imagine themselves heroes when taking part in lynchings have a distorted idea of patriotism."

Now there are two things that need to be said about such conduct by a governor in the "deep south." One is that, if this particular sherif gets bounced because he let a mob have one of his prisoners, the sherifs of Alabama are likely to acquire a sudden and healthy respect for law and order. And about nine-tenths of the lynching in the south could be stopped instantly if the law enforcement officials simply put up a serious show of resistance.

The other thing is that no one would be crying for a federal anti-lynching statute, and there wouldn't be any real need for one, if every governor in the traditional "lynching states" got on his high horse about the abuse, and "cracked down" on it.

It is because the responsible officials in these states haven't given a whoop, haven't considered the mutilation and murder of Negroes by mobs a very important matter, that the indignation of the rest of the nation has been aroused.

As we were saying, the southern senators had better slip Bibb Graves a bouquet. And they might, meanwhile, whisper the word around to the rest of the brethren that Bibb's example is worth following. If they could convince the governors at home of it, they would be saved a lot of sweating on the senate floor.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

STEEL MILLS.

Gigantic mills stand stark against the sky;
Ore freighters plow the lakes, and flats of coal
(Kentucky Elkhorn), northward bound, pass by
The lands of early buffalo—the goal
Of each mill's ingot molds a warship's keel,
A sword, the rails that span the nation's girth,
A piston ring, the wires that link the earth,

Take off your shirts, cheap gangsters and wise guys;
It's guts that pig iron takes; this damn hot spot
Death rides the molten ore; Death's sunken eyes
And yours would twitch in sulphur fumes together
Until the furnace seared your skin to leather.

THUNDERED INTO SILENCE.

There's one argument older than the one about labor and capital . . . which is the more necessary? It's whether the husband or the wife is more valuable to the marriage union. Hillbilly Joe, who lived down near my home town, Viola, was good in that debate. He picked cotton for a living and it wasn't much living because he didn't pick much. But when he'd argue with his woman she might as well have talked back to a police radio. (Nobody ever wins an argument; arguers keep talking till one says something so ridiculous it flabbergasts the other into silence.) "If 'twan't fer me a-skimpin' and a-sewin' on buttons," Joe's woman would say, "you wouldn't look fit to work." . . . Joe would retort: "If 'twan't fer you I'd only have to bring in half as much." . . . "If 'twan't fer me gettin' you up you'd never bring nothin' back," she'd say. . . . But sooner or later Joe would get in his joker: "If 'twan't fer you women a-bringin' in this cookin' bizness us men would go right on eatin' our meat raw and satisfied with it—wouldn't have our faces all cut up usin' forks and knives nohow."

Sir: Some years ago, when I was office manager for a Chicago company, we mailed out several thousand circulars to our customers. One cent stamps were all that were needed, and I explained this when I found one of the office boys attaching two cent stamps to the envelopes. Later (and his name was not Farley) I caught him pasting one centers over the two cent stamps.

Harvey T. Woodruff is dead. The most genial gentleman we knew, and one of the most modest, he would not have wished elaborate obituary notices. His was an elfin humor, and we can't recall his writing a word that gave pain to any one. The wide audience he reached in the sport columns and, at intervals, in the Line o' Type or Two, and the contributors with whom he had such pleasant relations will find their world not quite so cheerful since he has gone away.

SHALL INSECTS RULE?

CIVILIZATION keeps just about one jump ahead of the insect hordes which, if allowed to propagate freely and undisturbed, would wipe out every source of food. It has been estimated that while there are—on the average—approximately 50 human beings per square mile in the United States, the insect population of the same area is 25 million or more.

The rapidity with which they may reproduce is indicated by the fact that the descendants of a pair of gypsy moths—if permitted to breed uninterruptedly with no deaths—after a period of eight years would destroy every particle of vegetation in the United States. The female wood tick—the agent which conveys Rocky mountain fever—will lay 2,000 to 18,000 eggs in a single season.

Fabulous figures are quoted to emphasize how fast plant lice will increase. Grasshoppers, under favorable conditions, may appear in great numbers so quickly as to endanger the crops of a large section of the country. In 1876, west of the Missouri river, a hopper plague swept the region of visible vegetation; trees were left leafless and fields laid bare.

Man, therefore, must pit his intelligence against the circumstances which favor insects. In other words, nature must be kept in balance. The story is related that in one of the islands of the Caribbean sea the mongoose was imported to clear the land of reptiles. These rodents multiply speedily and soon the snake menace was a thing of the past. With snake food unobtainable the mongoose attacked in turn birds and wild life of all sorts; later, the young of domestic animals. In other words, the weasel-like animal proved a greater menace than were the reptiles originally.

It is generally believed that if all species of bugs were allowed free rein the world would be deprived of vegetation within five years. This offers us a great test as to man's supremacy; as to the desirability of maintaining certain factors which will help eliminate living parasites which would filch away the staples of human existence. Many of our states can boast of five insect eating birds per acre. Charles K. Read states that Massachusetts alone has a bird population of 24 million, using for food 2½ billion bugs daily.

It is desirable to control these forms of life not only from the standpoint of protecting vegetation but because many of them are definitly disease carriers. Mention has been made of the part played by the wood tick in Rocky mountain fever; of the mosquito in the dissemination of malaria, yellow fever, and other infections; and of the African tsetse fly in the transmission of sleeping sickness.

Sleeping sickness and tularemia are spread by biting flies; and the common house fly—always contaminated because it lives on filth and garbage—has been convicted on numerous occasions of distributing typhoid fever, cholera, dysentery, smallpox, erysipelas, and many other maladies. There are several kinds of ticks, and one variety is responsible for the conveyance of Texas cattle fever; another, tularemia. Lice scatter typhus and trench fever, and fleas carry bubonic plague and other infections.

While the bedbug has not been found guilty absolutely and positively, yet it is probable that it, too, may harbor septic organisms. Certain it is that its proboscis is infected with bacteria and that its bite will inoculate microbes into the skin.

There are a few instances, however, of helpful insects. For example, spiders—only a few of which are dangerous to man—will eat more pernicious vermin. So will dragon flies, ants, bees, and wasps. The attractive ladybug is particularly fond of the San José scale, a parasite which blights certain fruit trees.

All in all, we have a fight on our hands to keep free from noxious flyers, stingers, and crawlers, not only for the protection of our crops but for the maintenance of health.

FIBROID TUMOR.

Mrs. F. writes: 1. About three months ago a physician told me I had a small fibroid tumor and that I should take X-ray treatments. I went to another physician and he too said that I had a fibroid, but that as long as it didn't bother me I shouldn't look for trouble. He said ten or more years can elapse before it will cause symptoms. I am 39 years old. Which doctor is correct?

2. I am underweight and very nervous and sometimes feel so weak and shaky I can hardly walk. What can I do to help my nerves?

REPLY.

1. Both are right. Fibroid tumors—if small—are usually harmless and unless they grow so as to cause pressure symptoms they may not need to be treated.

2. Cultivate mental poise, rest all you can, and keep your mind occupied with useful things. Rest and diet should increase your weight. We have a fattening diet that you can get by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ALLERGIC TO EGGS.

C. V. L. writes: Is there anything that can be done to counteract or cure an allergy to eggs? One of our relatives loves this food, but for years has not been able to eat anything that has even the suggestion of an egg in it. It acts like a poison to him. I have thought that inasmuch as this man is now between 50 and 60 perhaps he is better off without eggs anyway on account of their cholesterol content. Am I right?

REPLY.

A series of egg immunization treatments will relieve the allergy. But why use eggs at all? The yolk contains considerable cholesterol, which one can well do without after middle life.

IN THE MORNING.

K. M. writes: I have a lot of trouble getting up in the morning. I should feel rested after seven or eight hours' sleep, but am always drowsy in the morning.

REPLY.

Most of us share your trouble. As a rule drowsiness wears off with action. Take a cool to cold bath, followed by a brisk rub with a Turkish towel. If the symptom persists have kidneys and digestive tract investigated.

ENLARGED NOSE.

W. G. writes: What causes a nose to grow large? I am 19.

REPLY.

Noses are inherited. Unless the appendage has suddenly become larger the growth has not been caused by disease.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—The stage is now being set for the general election in the Irish Free State. Candidates have been selected by all parties, and by means of week-end meetings throughout the constituencies the electors are being worked up to the requisite degree of enthusiasm.

President Eamon de Valera will seek an expression of confidence in his accomplishments of the last five years, and especially on the new constitution which he is asking the populace to approve coincidentally with the election of deputies. The chief opposition party, led by William Cosgrave, will counter De Valera's claims by alleging that the president has during his term of office made conditions worse in the country by his failure to make a settlement with Great Britain which would lower the tarifs against Irish agricultural and other produce going into the British markets.

Cosgrave contends De Valera's policies have increased greatly the cost of living, and that unemployment is so widespread that nearly 40,000 young people are going to Britain every year.

The new constitution is regarded by the opposition forces as entirely futile and they assert that it does not advance in any way the national claim to complete independence. They charge it brings no nearer the reunion of the whole country, but in fact makes that reunion more difficult by its attitude toward the king and the British commonwealth.

In this election the attitude of the Labor group of eight deputies will be different from that of the last election when they were in friendly alliance and coöperation with the government party. Labor's attitude now is definitly hostile.

While its members invariably vote with the government it has been obvious for some time that President de Valera no longer regards them as indispensable to his retention of office, and so they have not been consulted on matters of policy. It appears that De Valera is convinced that Labor as a force in the country has reached its limit and that at the coming election it will get only a negligible representation. This is the common belief. A good deal of its loss of caste may be attributed to the fact that in its attitude to communism it has not shown that determined front which as a predominantly Catholic body might have been expected.

As to the prospects of De Valera's return to office there has been a curious change of view. Three months ago no one would have cast any doubt as to the certainty of his victory. Today no outside observer would back him as a certainty.

EXECUTOR'S BOND.

Chicago, June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Father died leaving a will in daughter's name only. In will the words "no bond" are not mentioned.

1. Is it necessary to get a bond before probating?

2. When a will is left is it necessary to get a lawyer and have it go through Probate court? A. Z.

1. Yes, in the sense that the executor will be required to furnish a bond in the course of the proceedings.

2. The presence or absence of a will has no legal connection with the necessity for probate. The necessity for probate depends on the nature of the assets, whether they can be reduced to possession, etc.

TO SET ASIDE WILL.

Chicago, June 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died six years ago leaving all his savings and property to his nieces by four sisters of mine and nothing to the sisters, only the nieces, but left me $100 as my share of his property. He had $3,500 cash besides his property. I would like to know if I could get my share, other than the $100. He died in Minnesota. Is there any way of breaking the will? N. T.

If the will is properly executed the only way to set it aside would be by proving undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HOW SCHOOL PRINCIPALS ARE CHOSEN.

Evanston, Ill., May 29.—In view of the stress which is now being put on the principals' examinations given last fall as the basis for promotion in the Chicago public schools, it might be profitable for both sides in the controversy to know a little more about the examinations themselves, in content, method of grading, and results. Inasmuch as I was one of the large group of teachers from universities in this district who were asked to read the papers, I believe that I can speak with a fair degree of authority on the subject. Since, moreover, I have previously communicated my opinions to Supt. Johnson by both speech and letter, I feel that I am violating no confidence in making these matters public.

Although I can deal directly only with the examination in my own subject, English, I have talked with enough people in other departments to know that the experience of the readers in English was pretty representative. The English examination was divided into two parts, one consisting of several groups of questions of the so-called "objective" type, and the other of several of the "essay" type.

Although most of the first section was reasonable enough, some parts—such as those dealing with literature—were to my mind both nonessential and over-difficult. In fact, for an experiment, I tried some of these questions on a few of my colleagues and graduate students, who might be presumed to know something about them, since several of these people had been teaching English for periods running between two and thirty-five years. As I expected, the grades which these people made were depressingly low. In the contemporary literature group this was especially the case; indeed, one of the senior members of my own department would have graded less than 25 per cent in this group. These people, remember, might well be regarded as experts, since English was their specialty; they were not simply aspirants to grammar school principalships, from whom only a general knowledge of English literature might properly be expected.

The second section of the examination consisted of "essay" questions; that is, of questions which called for both information and a connected presentation and discussion of it. This section, however, dealt with professional matters, concerned with the problems and technique of teaching in the grammar schools. These are subjects which the college teacher of English would only rarely know anything about. Yet, when the first meeting of those who were to read the papers was held, it was immediately discovered, to the consternation of all, that only this part was to be graded by them; the other part, since it was purely objective and factual, was to be marked by a clerk who had been furnished with a key list. Yet this other part was the only one which the "experts" deemed themselves really qualified to pass on.

Supt. Johnson, who presided at the meeting, had apparently not realized that college teachers of English would scarcely know what were the ten specific reading deficiencies in the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades, or what was the proper remedial program for them. The only solution of the situation, therefore, was for the readers to go to members of the departments of education in their own schools and ask what the right answers might be, inasmuch as the people who made out the examination had not been asked to provide answers to their own questions. The situation was not improved when in some cases we learned that there was not always a right and a wrong answer. However, because the examinations had already been given and because there were not enough specialists in education who might be called upon at this late juncture to take over the grading, we were asked to go ahead and do the best we could.

When Supt. Johnson was asked whether the papers should be graded partly on English composition, he replied that they should not, implying that this was too minor a matter to worry about, even in an examination in English. Nevertheless, the group of English readers agreed privately among themselves that in spite of this interdiction they would consider English composition count heavily in this one examination even if it were disregarded entirely in all the others. This resolution was quickly justified, since it was discovered that a distressingly large proportion of the papers were written in a style which would have placed the candidates in a class for remedial treatment if she had been a college freshman. The reason why so many children are defectively trained in written and oral composition at once becomes apparent.

The conclusion I reach, therefore, is that although the theory behind the system of selecting new grammar school principals may be excellent the actual operation is highly inefficient.

THE TAX IS ON RETAIL SALES.

Chicago, May 29.—Can any one give me a sufficiently good reason why our state should collect sales tax three or four times on the same article?

Recently I have had occasion to observe that if an automobile is sold and resold again each time a sales tax is charged. Why? SALES TAX WORRY.

COUNTY USES U. S. SECURITY LIST TO BOOST TAX LEVY

Large Personalty Roll Increases Listed.

Personal property assessments of several hundred wealthy residents of Cook county have been increased as a result of a study of their reports to the federal security and exchange commission, it was disclosed yesterday.

Assessor John S. Clark and the members of the board of tax appeals, Emmett Whealan and Paul Drymalski, have been at odds for some time about the 1936 personalty assessment, and several months ago the assessment for E. A. Cudahy Sr. brought the difference into the open.

Differ on Cudahy Figure.

Clark assessed Cudahy's stocks on a valuation of $467,850. The board reduced this to $75,000. Clark asked the board for a rehearing and asserted his valuation was based on Cudahy's report to the SEC. Whealan and Drymalski then began to compare tax returns with the SEC reports, and the three tax officials cooperated in revising assessments in the list announced yesterday.

In making assessments on securities holdings, Clark and the tax board first take 20 per cent of their market value, then fix the assessment at 37 per cent of that figure. The tax rate for 1936 is about $9 for every $100 of assessed valuation.

An assessed value of $100, therefore, is placed on securities worth approximately $1,350 on which the levy is about $9. Following are some of the larger assessment boosts from the list announced yesterday:

ILLINOIS HOUSES SHADOW BOX ON DRIVER LICENSE

Each Waits for the Other to Do Something.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.] —The house of representatives and the senate watched each other today while each made gestures but no real progress toward concurrence in the other's drivers' license bill. Enactment of the life saving measure was still hampered by the rivalry of Gov. Horner and Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes for the new patronage to be created.

The governor's bill, passed by the house yesterday, was referred to the senate executive committee, which will meet tomorrow morning. The bill passed by the senate a week ago, which would place the administration in the office of the secretary of state, was referred to the house committee on public welfare.

Changes in Committee.

The house committee, headed by Representative Ray O'Keefe [D., Chicago], approved amendments which would make the senate measure's provisions the same as those in the governor's proposals with three exceptions: first, Mr. Horner wants his highway department rather than the secretary of state to administer the act; secondly, the governor's bill provides for a 50 cent fee for three years but the senators would eliminate the fee; and thirdly, the senate measure has eliminated examination requirements.

Representative Thomas A. Bolger [D., McHenry] then presented another amendment to the senate bill, to substitute the highway department for the secretary of state wherever the name of the administrative agency appeared.

After a motion to table this proposed amendment was lost by a vote of 8 to 4, Representative Leo D. Crowley [R., Peoria] raised a question of a quorum before a vote could be taken on the adoption of the politically inspired amendment. Chairman O'Keefe adjourned the committee subject to future call.

Doubt About Senate Plans.

In the senate, where anti-Horner Democrats with the Republican minority are in control, President pro tem George Maypole [D., Chicago], who is also chairman of the executive committee, said that the governor's bill would probably be placed on the floor of the senate if the house committee would give the senate bill the same consideration.

Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski [D., Chicago], majority floor leader in the lower chamber, said he was waiting to see what the senate would do.

Both branches favor a drivers' law. The senate passed its bill, 37 to 0, and the house passed its bill, 128 to 6. Leaders in both branches agree that the measure is too important to be killed by the patronage squabble within the Democratic party, but no one is taking the lead toward breaking the deadlock.

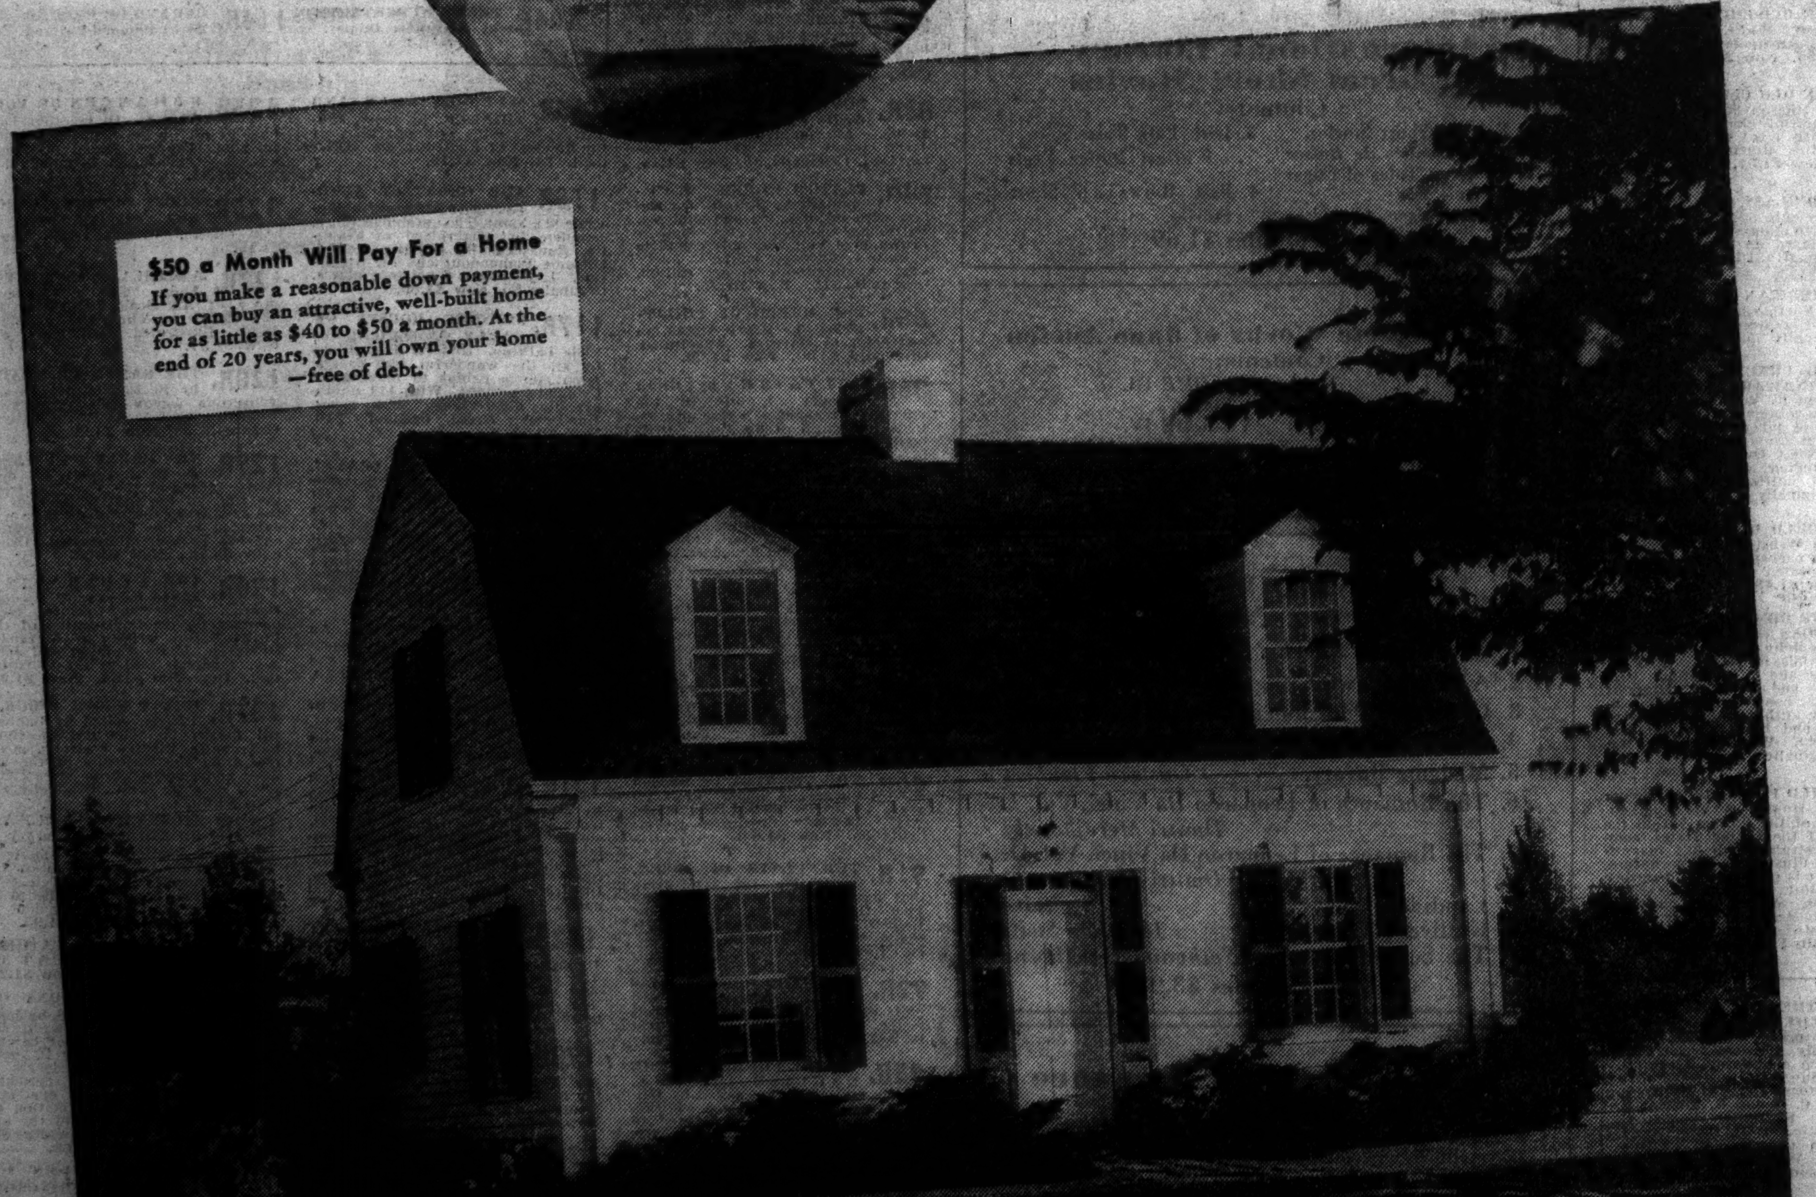
Hugh McCarthy of the Stockyards police, was injured seriously yesterday when struck by a car driven by James G. McFadden, 30 years old, 2326 Farwell avenue. "How much cash do we need to Buy a home?"



● Haven't you often said to yourself that nothing would give you such lasting satisfaction, so many hours of happiness, so much freedom and comfort for your family as a well-chosen home? What, then, has kept you from getting a home of your own—the thought that you couldn't finance the purchase?

Perhaps you've been wrong there! Many attractive, well-built homes can be purchased today with a relatively small down-payment. In some cases, this may run as little as $500 on a $5,000 home. Such favorable terms put home ownership within the reach of almost every family with a few hundred dollars in savings and a steady income.

Suggestions to Home Buyers
What you owe after making your down payment you can pay off in convenient monthly installments. These may turn out to be no more than you are now spending every month for rent. But suppose your payments should be somewhat higher? Wouldn't you be justified in making a slight sacrifice to make your home really yours that much sooner?

The following suggestions should be helpful when you select your home. Examine carefully the property you buy—from all standpoints. You are making a very important purchase. You want it to fit your needs and your income. Choose a payment plan which you can readily handle. Deal through your real estate broker. He can help you in many ways—in selecting your home and in arranging the financing. Lastly, insist on a Title Guarantee Policy. It will protect you against defects in the title to your investment.

Why don't you begin now to examine properties for sale in the community where you want to live? Your broker will be glad to help you make a selection and to tell you how you can conveniently finance your purchase.

Protect Your Title As You Protect Against Fire
When you buy a house, you protect it against fire hazards. When you buy a piece of real estate, you should protect your title to the property. Divorces, unpaid taxes, mechanics' liens, bankruptcies—countless things may cloud a real estate title and expose the purchaser to possibility of loss. A Chicago Title and Trust Company Title Guarantee Policy protects you against all these risks.

More Homes Needed As Men Go Back To Work
During a depression, families "double-up" to economize. When prosperity returns and men go back to work, families "undouble". This movement is well under way in the Chicago area. As recovery makes further progress, increasing demand for living quarters helps produce a housing shortage. When dwelling space becomes scarce, rents rise. In the Chicago area rents have risen about 10% in the last year.

Your Broker Knows Values
You will want to know many things about the property you buy. Your broker knows the factors that influence real estate values. Let him help you choose your home.

3 LITTLE BOY BIG SHOTS CRY FOR MOTHERS

Steal Auto and Take Long Joyride.

They were big shots Tuesday to their grade school pals in Evanston. But yesterday, in the stolen automobile division of the state's attorney's office, they were just three scared little boys crying for mother.

"I want to go home," sobbed Robert Lill, 13 years old, 1129 Sherman avenue, Evanston, oldest of the trio. "I won't get in trouble again. Honest I won't. Please let me go home."

But for Robert it was once too often, according to Policemen William Ianson and Otto Brey of Evanston, who arrested them yesterday after they had stolen an automobile and taken a 100 mile joy ride.

Patience of Police Gone.

Robert has a Juvenile court record which started April 1, 1935. Since then police have talked to him eighteen times. Now they want the court to place him in an institution.

Robert is the son of a WPA foreman, the policemen said. The two in custody with him are Robert Lapp, 12, of 934 Asbury avenue, Evanston, and Edward Bodner, 12, of 723 Dodge avenue, Evanston. All are pupils in the Nichols school in Evanston.

On Tuesday Arthur Westling, 2823 North Racine avenue, a salesman, left his automobile in front of 116 Burnham place, Evanston, with the keys in the ignition lock. A short time later young Lill and his pals were off on a pleasure trip.

Drain Gas from Autos.

"We drove out to Elgin," Lill admitted yesterday, between sobs. "When we ran out of gas we borrowed some from a farmer. Sometimes we had to drain it out of other cars."

Returning to Evanston the oil in the crank case ran out. The boys found some old used oil behind a garage. This kept the car going for awhile, as they took their pals for a ride, but it soon put the car out of commission. Word of the joy ride reached the police when the other schoolboys started talking, and Lill and the others were arrested.

How They Drove Car.

"How did you little lads ever manage to drive that car?" inquired Policeman Ianson.

"Bob and I know how to drive," boasted Lill. "We put a pillow on the front seat and took turns. Ed shifted gears. His old man's a bus driver, so he knew how."

The boys were taken to the juvenile home.

BOY DIES IN GRAVEL PIT.

Alexandria, Ind., June 2.—[Special.]—Adrian Whetsel, 12 years old, was drowned in twenty feet of water in a gravel pit northeast of here.

SMITTY—LOOKS BAD

MODISTE'S EX-MATE CAN'T GIVE BOND IN SUPPORT CASE; JAILED

When he could not supply a $500 bond, pending a hearing June 11 on a contempt citation for owing his former wife, Edna, $900 in support for their son, Edward Jr., Judge Philip J. Finnegan yesterday sent Edward Teske, 42 years old, to the county jail. Mrs. Teske, a modiste at 707 Sheridan road, said she was not anxious about the money, but she wanted her ex-husband locked up because she was afraid of him. Since their divorce in 1935, Mrs. Teske said, he had been sent to the Bridewell four times for damaging her dress shop.

OUSTED BOWEN PRINCIPAL SUES TO GET JOB BACK

William T. McCoy, who was removed as principal of the Bowen High school on March 9, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the Superior court yesterday to compel the board of education to restore him to the position. McCoy was demoted to the principalship of the Beidler elementary school after having served at the Bowen school for five and a half years.

Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson declared that McCoy was transferred from the Bowen school because the school was removed from the accredited list of the North Central Association of High Schools and Colleges. McCoy was succeeded by Oscar Fowler and the high school was restored to good standing in the association a few days ago.

The Chicago Teachers' union sponsored the mandamus suit. The defendants are President James B. McCahey and the nine other members of the school board, and Johnson.

SPEED COLLECTION OR SLASH RELIEF COSTS, UPHAM ASKS

City Controler Robert B. Upham warned yesterday that the city will have only the state allotment of money for relief after Oct. 1 unless relief costs are drastically reduced or collections of the special 30 cent tax levy increased to 90 per cent.

In the eleven months since the levy was begun it has cost the city $26,581,682 for relief, the state contributing $20,668,223. Mr. Upham predicted that the $1,886,000 remaining as the city's share for the last seven months of the year will be exhausted Oct. 1.

The number of cases during May dropped to 77,753, a reduction of 10,000, Mr. Upham said. He estimated the number for June would be 75,061. About one of every eighteen in the city's 3,700,000 is on relief, he said.

MAYOR HOPES FOR A NEW BILL ON CIGARET TAX

Commenting yesterday on the withdrawal at Springfield of the city's bill to tax businesses and commodities as a revenue measure, Mayor Kelly declared it was impossible at this time to draft a reasonable bill. Rather than incur a misunderstanding from business men, the mayor said, it was decided to withdraw the measure. The bill, designed to lift part of the tax load from real estate, has caused an uneasy feeling among the city's business men, Mayor Kelly said. The mayor expressed a hope that another bill giving the city the power to tax cigarets would pass, thus bringing in an estimated $2,000,000 in excise taxes.

INSULL SEEKING A PASSPORT FOR TRIP TO EUROPE

Samuel Insull, former utilities magnate, revealed yesterday that he was seeking a passport and intends to visit his native England and several other European countries. "I'm going there to get some peace and quiet," he said. Insull's remarks came at the end of testimony given in taking depositions on the 40 million dollar damage suit against the Insull Investments, Inc., by several noteholders. The depositions are being taken in the court of Jacob I. Grossman, federal master in chancery.

Insull began the second day on the witness stand by defending the various companies and explained the Insull Utility Investments became insolvent because of too great use of its credit in the depression and the calling of its loans by the banks.

Know the Thrills of ZION · BRYCE · GRAND CANYON · COLORFUL NATIONAL PARKS

Each of these three neighboring National Parks is an outstanding scenic wonderland . . . yet each is distinctly, memorably different from the others.

Zion with its massive rock temples and monoliths, has color and inspiring grandeur. Bryce is a labyrinth of fantastic carvings, a "dream city" of another age, haunting in its loveliness. And Grand Canyon, 13 miles wide and a mile deep, with its mystic colors, its shifting lights and shadows, is something entirely beyond words.

And so easy to see—for they're all in a group, connected by splendid highways, and can be visited on a low-cost, 6-day motor coach tour.

$48.25 is the 21-day round trip rail fare from Chicago to Lund, Utah, the rail gateway. (Berth extra.)

Only North Western-Union Pacific serves these Wonderlands. They make a splendid vacation tie-up, too, with Yellowstone or Colorado; or if you can spare the time, with California, the Pacific Northwest-Alaska.

'L' OFFERS PLAN TO MERGE WITH SURFACE LINES

Mayor Kelly Gets Proposal of Unification.

BY WILLIAM BROMAGE.

Mayor Kelly conferred with representatives of the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] for more than an hour yesterday afternoon on a proposal for unification of the rapid transit system and the Chicago Surface lines.

The meeting was the first between Mayor Kelly and transit interests since the submission of definite proposals for the solution of the local transportation problem. It was interpreted in transit circles as the actual opening of unification negotiations.

The surface lines last week submitted to city officials a proposed plan as the basis for a new franchise which would provide for consolidation of the surface and elevated systems at some later date.

Consolidation Offered.

The special elevated reorganization committee, headed by William J. Lynch, placed before Mayor Kelly at yesterday's meeting a plan for immediate consolidation of the two systems. Mayor Kelly said after the meeting that it was agreed that details of the plan would not be made public until after study of the provisions by city transis experts which may result in modifications.

He indicated there was some hope that a modification of the plan would make it acceptable to all parties. He said he wished to avoid controversy which might upset the whole negotiations and for that reason wanted the details of the plan explored before making public the proposal.

"I do not want to have a situation where securities holders may get up in arms and nothing come out of the whole thing," he said. "It is much better to have friendly meetings.

"The committee submitted a proposal for consolidation of both the systems and not just a reorganization plan for the elevated. It is a big financial setup designed to show how money can be made and how new securities can be sold."

Meeting Today Planned.

Philip Harrington, special engineer for the city councils' local transportation committee, will meet with the elevated committee today to discuss the proposal. When Harrington has made his report a statement will be issued, Mayor Kelly said.

The Abbott committee, sponsor of the plan for reorganization of the surface lines, met yesterday to formulate a report on progress of franchise negotiations with the city. The report, which will be submitted to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson by Saturday, will advise Judge Wilkerson of its recent proposal for a new ordinance, it is understood.

Hearing on the city's petition for broadening of interline transfer privileges between the surface and elevated lines was resumed before the Illinois commerce commission yesterday. Maj. R. F. Kelker, city transit expert, asserted that present restrictions on interline riding are ridiculous. The city seeks extension of the arrangement to make possible a universal transfer system outside the loop.

RECOVER BODY OF DROWNED BOY. The body of Joseph Abenante, 16 years old, 3614 West 71st street, who was drowned in the Marquette park lagoon Monday night, was recovered by police yesterday.

SLAIN IN HOTEL

WALTER O'LEARY.

Police searched in vain yesterday for clews to the slaying of Walter O'Leary, 64 year old night clerk at the Kenwood hotel, 4700 Kenwood avenue, who was shot to death while on duty early in the day when he resisted a bandit. An hour before O'Leary was slain a masked bandit entered the East End Park hotel, 5242 Hyde Park boulevard and forced Stephen Babich, 27 years old, night clerk, and William Heath, 24, bellboy, to lie on the floor while he took $150 from the cash drawer. Police believe the same bandit killed O'Leary.

$38,000 FRAUD AGAINST WOMAN LAID TO CROKER

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Richard Croker Jr., son of one of Tammany Hall's most colorful leaders, was accused today of borrowing $38,000 under false pretenses from a woman, 93, who trusted him implicitly.

A suit to collect the money was filed in Supreme court by Frederick B. U. Fritts, to whom a claim against Croker was assigned by David M. Neuberger, attorney for the estate of Mrs. Mary D. Cahill. Mrs. Cahill died recently at her home in Milford, Pa.

The complaint in the action states that Croker frequently visited Mrs. Cahill, who lacked business experience. He is said to have told her large sums of money were due him, and that he owned large properties.

Fritts charges that Croker had no large sums due him when the money was borrowed—$32,000 on March 7, 1932; $1,000 on May 29, 1935; $2,000 on June 29, 1935, and $3,000 on Aug. 13, 1935.

VATICAN DENIES RECALLING PAPAL ENVOY TO BERLIN

VATICAN CITY, June 2.—(AP)—Despite yesterday's note of the German government that preconditions no longer exist for normal relations between the Nazi régime and the church, the Vatican announced today that no recall, either definitive or temporary, has been sent to the papal nuncio in Berlin.

"Nor up to the present," said the statement, "is there any news that the German government has given him his passports or intends to give them to him."

Some observers surmised that yesterday's Nazi note was the first step toward severing Vatican-Berlin relations. It was occasioned by Pope Pius' failure to rebuke Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago for criticizing Chancellor Hitler.

SEIZE DOZEN NEW SLOT MACHINES, BUT PLAY GOES ON

County highway police confiscated a dozen brand new slot machines last evening in raids in Posen, Dixmoor, and Calumet City, but observers found other machines devouring nickels, dimes, and quarters in resorts in the northern and western parts of the county.

Even though Sherif Toman recently declared war on the gambling devices, it was found they have invaded No Man's Land on the lake shore between Wilmette and Kenilworth. Play was heavy at Lakota beach, Murphy's lodge, The Cottage, and the Red Candle. Pin games gave cash prizes at the Villa DeMetre, a hamburger stand. At all these places boys and girls of high school age outnumbered the other players. A battery of new machines was in operation at the Skyrocket club, Skokie boulevard and Dundee road.

On the west side of the county, a brief tour of Broadview, along Ogden avenue just west of La Grange, and through Lyons revealed that tavern keepers have slot machines as prominently displayed as before the sherif announced his intention of cleaning them up.

NIGHT CLUB HOSTESS PLUNGES FROM HOTEL; IS CRITICALLY HURT

Miss Dean Travers, 25 years old, a night club entertainer, was critically injured last evening when she plunged from a window of her third floor room at the rear of the Carlos hotel, 3834 Sheffield avenue. Her body narrowly missed striking Robert Meyers, 9, 1018 Byron street, and a playmate, who were playing in the alley. She was taken to the American hospital, where physicians said she had a chance to recover. Sergt. Frank McKune found the petals of half a dozen roses, plucked by Miss Travers just before she leaped.

A THRONE SEEKER GETS RID OF HIS COMMONER WIFE

Albrecht of Hapsburg Set Free by Special Court.

BUDAPEST, June 2.—(AP)—An ancient royal court, revived today, smoothed the way for the Hapsburg Archduke Albrecht to press his claims to the vacant Hungarian throne without the incumbrance of a commoner wife.

Archduke Albrecht.

The court was revived from pre-war practices by Regent Nicolas Horthy, who has headed the Hungarian state since 1920. It granted the archduke a civil divorce from his wealthy and beautiful wife, Irene Leibach, whom he married secretly at Brighton, England, in 1930.

Deems Ascension Easier Now.

Albrecht and his wife had sought legal separation for several years, but ordinary courts were considered without jurisdiction because of the archduke's exalted status. Neither attended the court's sessions in the kingless royal palace.

The divorce, which is understood to have followed a property settlement, was only civil, and the attitude of the Catholic church, which granted a special dispensation recognizing the marriage three years after it was performed, remained uncertain.

Preferred to Otto.

The 40 year old archduke is preferred by many Hungarian legitimists to Archduke Otto, who is pretender to the Austrian throne that was once united with Hungary's. He indicated, however, he was in no hurry to plunge deep into politics that might improve his cause.

Friends said that Albrecht contemplated a trip to the United States and then to Pernambuco, Brazil, where he is considering investment in mining properties.

NORMAN PLATE FOUND DEAD ON RAILROAD BANK

The body of Norman Carson Plate, 32, national collegiate backstroke champion in 1927, and former captain of the University of Nebraska swimming team, was found early yesterday on the North Western railroad embankment at Avondale and Hamlin avenues. Police last night said they were unable to determine whether he was hit by a train accidentally, or was a murder victim, or a suicide.

The spot where the body was discovered is miles from Plate's home in Wilmette and on a branch of the railroad which does not operate on the north shore suburb. No money was found in the clothing and a wrist watch which members of his family said he had worn to work as an accountant for the Lawrence Scudder company on Tuesday morning was also missing, according to the police.

Identification was made by Leonard Starkel, husband of Plate's sister, with whom he had lived at 925 Oakwood avenue, in Wilmette. Police surmised that Plate may have boarded the wrong train and had tried to jump off when he discovered his mistake.

SCIENTISTS SPOT GALACTIC CLOUD OF GIGANTIC SIZE

Cambridge, Mass., June 2.—[Special.]—What appears to be an enormous "metagalactic cloud," containing probably 50,000 galaxies similar to our own Milky Way, has been photographed by Harvard astronomers, according to a report published today by Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard observatory.

Located near the south pole of the sky, the "cloud" is estimated to be more than a hundred million light years distant from earth. It is in the shape of a narrow stream, probably fifty million light years long by twenty million light years across. Its members are visible only through very powerful telescopes.

Dr. Shapley's report indicates that the find will be of importance in the study of the complex space-time-matter relationships in our immediate neighborhood—in the region out to a hundred million light years.

Young Koeppen, who lives at 1326 East 47th street, was blinded five years ago when he picked up a bomb intended for Judge John P. McGoorty. The boy had quit school, but the tragedy impelled him to resume his studies and become a lawyer. He expects to graduate from high school next January.

"I am writing you because of my interest in all boys who want to study law, and particularly those like yourself and myself, who are blind," said the letter from the chief justice. "If you can keep your chin up and your spirits high, you will weather the hard knocks that will be yours, because you can't see like other persons, and you will be a successful lawyer."

AMELIA EARHART IN VENEZUELA ON WORLD FLIGHT

Miami, Fla., June 2.—(AP)—An easy jump of 750 miles, the second leg of her world girdling aerial adventure, put Amelia Earhart in South America today with no more water to cross until she starts the hazardous flight across the South Atlantic from Natal, Brazil, to Africa.

Pan-American Airways, over whose route the aviatrix has flown since she left Miami yesterday, reported she landed at Capripito, a little oil town in Venezuela, at 10:18 a. m. [Chicago daylight time] after a four hour flight from San Juan, Porto Rico.

If she were bent on speed she probably could have continued down the coast to her next goal, Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, another 750 miles. But she has said her flight is just for fun, and the air line reported that, because the hop might keep her aloft after dark and the Paramaribo airfield lies in a heavy jungle outside the town, she decided to wait until tomorrow.

HOW DICTATORS SET THE STAGE; IS U. S. ON ROAD?

Iron Rule Has Its Roots in Class Hatred.

(In this article Mr. Ator follows his inquiry into dictatorships and the processes of revolution. Another article will appear in a later issue.)

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Every dictator has his bugaboo. It is by setting up a straw man, beating it, screaming against it, that he convinces the mass of the people that he is their champion. Of all the tools available to those who would set up a slave state the bugaboo is the handiest. It is the basis of propaganda, and it is only by propaganda that a minority can hope to fool the majority long enough to seize power.

Communists, Fascisti, and Nazis were all minority groups when they seized power in Russia, Italy, and Germany. That they are still minorities, as indicated by the gangster methods they use to destroy their critics, need not be discussed at present. It is in their original use of the bugaboo as a tool of power through propaganda and possible parallels to their methods in the United States through which some men may hope to erect a slave state here that attention is directed.

Hitler Selects Jews.

Hitler had a double bugaboo in Germany—the communists and the Jews. When his Brown Shirts abused little Jewish merchants the Nazi propaganda machine sought to disguise their ruffianism as a noble defense of the masses. When Nazi gangsters invaded the working class districts, beating and stabbing communists and trade unionists impartially, their propagandists painted them as heroes defending the lawful government against those who would wreck it.

Mussolini picked the communists for his bugaboo, too, but very nearly ran out of communists, the great mass of Italians being a happy people with little interest in the "class struggle." So he had to build up his bugaboo by adding to it parliamentary government, which he attacked for failure to maintain the order which his squadristi, blood brothers to the prohibition gangsters of Chicago, were doing most to disrupt.

Capitalists Err.

Both Mussolini and Hitler got early financial backing from short sighted capitalists, who today have discovered to their sorrow that the gangsters they thought to use as mercenaries have become their masters. But the communists had no such angels. They substituted propaganda for money, and their use of propaganda, as Leon Trotzky describes it, rarely has been excelled.

The communist bugaboo, of course, was the old one provided almost a century ago by Karl Marx, the class struggle myth which holds that capital and labor never can work as partners but must inevitably fight until one destroys or enslaves the other. It is to their methods rather than their ideology, however, that attention is directed. For while a communist revolution in America may be doubtful, it is reasonable to expect that any one seeking to establish in America a totalitarian slave state will find useful the methods tested and found effective in Russia.

Lenin Dooms Parliament.

Czar Nicholas fell in February, 1917. Lenin, who was to be the directing mind of the bolshevik revolution, was in exile in Switzerland. He made his famous sealed train journey across Germany. On his arrival in Russia he found a liberal parliamentary government in nominal power, but with its sovereignty increasingly threatened by the soviet of workers' and soldiers' delegates.

His own followers were a handful and that handful disunited. Lenin lost no time in prescribing their program, a program which Trotzky has summarized as follows:

"The task of the bolsheviks is to overthrow the imperialist [parliamentary] government. . . . We are in the minority. In these circumstances there can be no talk of violence on our side. 'We must patiently explain.'"

Creates Shock Troops.

In six months of patient explaining Lenin destroyed the government of Russia. Two potent words, peace and land, destroyed the morale of an army made up of war weary, landless peasants. The army dissolved to a mob. But it was in the factories that Lenin sought the shock troops of his revolution.

Insufficient in numbers by themselves to attempt violence, the bolsheviks made of the factory workmen an instrument of violence. They fomented a wave of strikes. The industrial machinery of the nation was brought almost to a standstill.

In this agitation Lenin and his followers were aided by the fact that European labor has long been familiar with the use of the strike for political demonstrations, as well as to gain the economic ends which until recently have been the sole purpose of almost all American strikes.

Strikes Close Factories.

So effective was the strike agitation in Russia that soon factories were closing down for lack of raw materials. At this point a diehard industrialist gave the bolsheviks a phrase as powerful as the Rev. Burchards' "Rum, Romanism, and Rebellion" once proved to the Democrats. He spoke of "the bony hand of hunger" bringing shop committees and soviets to their senses.

The bolsheviks spread the gospel that the shutdowns were really lockouts by the capitalists. They urged the workmen to seize the plants. Hundreds of seizures followed. The managers were driven out. Unpopular foremen were lynched. Before a congress of soviets Lenin demanded, "Publish the profits of the capitalist gentlemen, arrest fifty or a hundred of the biggest millionaires."

Workers Given Arms.

The final step was the arming of sections of workers—the Red militia of the near future. Of this militia Trotzky says:

"The press accused the militia of acts of violence, requisitions, and illegal arrests. It is indubitable that the militia did employ violence; it was created exactly for that."

With Trotzky's bald admission the Russian story will be dropped for the moment. Does the American scene offer parallels to the propaganda by which gangster dictators paved their way to power in Russia, Germany, and Italy?

To begin with, where is the bugaboo? We have, of course, the imported bugaboos. The communists call their critics Fascists; the infinitesimal groups of confessed Nazis and Fascists label all who attack them communists. But the bugaboo of an American totalitarian movement, to be effective, must have a native origin.

The Bugaboo Discovered.

Certainly the term capitalist is no stinging epithet. Too many Americans, including American trade unionists, hope to become capitalists themselves. It has been the boast of the free economic system under which we live that many of them have achieved that hope.

But last year saw a new term—"economic royalist." It is a master phrase of propaganda. It carries the clear connotation in the economic field of that monarchial tyranny which Americans have always abhorred in politics. It has been the keynote of numerous political actions.

Lenin, it will be recalled, demanded that the provisional government "publish the profits of the capitalist gentlemen." He failed in his demand. But in America the propaganda of unrest has been fostered by widespread publication of income tax returns and corporate salaries.

Where Are Shock Troops?

Finally, what evidence is there that agitators have attempted to use American working men as the shock troops of disorder? The prominence which communists have played in John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and its campaign to unionize mass production industries has been mentioned before.

Lewis has no more bitter critics than his former associates in the American Federation of Labor, yet none of them has charged that he is a communist. Rather, in the exact phrase of one of these leaders, Lewis is in the market for fanatics and has found them among the communists.

The announced objectives of the C. I. O. are impeccable—the organization of industrial workers for collective bargaining. Congress and the Supreme court have approved that objective and provided machinery for attaining it under the Wagner labor act.

Peaceful Methods Provided.

But the provisions of the Wagner act are intended to foster peaceful attainment of that objective. Toward that end they have invested labor organizations with large powers, powers so large that many employers have complained that the act is one-sided. The full force of the federal courts is available to make those powers effective.

How, then, does the fatal riot Sunday in the South Chicago steel strike fit in with the professed objectives of the C. I. O.? The pattern was a common one. Inflammatory speeches provoked a collision with police and bloodshed followed.

The blood of Christian martyrs was pronounced the seed of their church. The blood of the men killed in South Chicago may be seed as well—not the seed of economic gains for labor, for the peaceful method of seeking that end was ignored, but the seed of that disorder which is essential to the success of prospective dictators.

MRS. ANNA KURLUK.

Mrs. Anna Kurluk, 45 years old, 1952 Dickens [Hervey] avenue, began a six month sentence in county jail yesterday on a contempt of court charge by Judge Harry W. McEwen. As administratrix of her mother's estate she declined to reimburse her brother, Edward, for a funeral bill.

DAMAGES OF ZEP'S VICTIMS LIMITED TO $5,750 BY PROTOCOL

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—The sum of $5,750 apiece will be the maximum paid to the heirs of passengers who died in the flaming Zeppelin Hindenburg or those who escaped with serious injuries. An international air agreement, ratified in 1934, has established this new low figure.

Because the Hindenburg was in international flight from Germany to America her crash at Lakehurst is subject to the Warsaw international air convention, which was signed by thirty countries, including the United States and Germany.

"In the transportation of passengers," this agreement reads, "the liability of the carrier for each passenger shall be limited to 125,000 francs." Although the treaty requires payment in gold francs, it is considered unlikely that claimants will fare better than the value of 125,000 francs at current exchange, or $5,750.

Gain in Health and Stop Getting Up Night

When kidneys are clogged they become weak—the bladder is irritated—often passage is scanty and smarts and burns—sleep is restless and nightly visits to the bathroom are frequent.

The right safe harmless and inexpensive way to stop this trouble and restore healthy action to kidneys and bladder is to get from any druggist a 35 cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take as directed—you won't be disappointed.

But be sure and get GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original and genuine—right from Haarlem in Holland—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic. Remember also that other symptoms of kidney and bladder trouble are backache, leg cramps, puffy eyes, moist palms and nervousness.

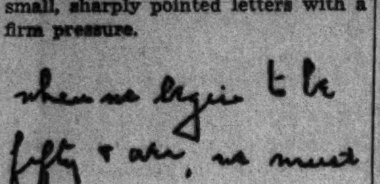
Wife's Writing Gives Key to Life Success

Mind Rules Heart After Earlier Conflict.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

[Copyright: 1937: By Muriel Stafford.]

Self-control guided by intelligence is always interesting in handwriting. These persons are often back-hand writers, usually the ones who make small, sharply pointed letters with a firm pressure.



Today's writer is worried about one thing. She is afraid she is "too contented." Let me relieve your mind of that. You would never worry about such a thought if it were true.

Happiness has come to you because you have learned to control a nature that was at one time completely dominated by intense feeling. Although there are some indications of emotional conflict when you write about your fear, the words consistently gather restraint and point more steadily backhand as you proceed. At one time, I am sure, this writer wrote very differently and let little things upset her.

The reasons that made it necessary for her to gather self-control with the years are quite evident in her letter. Among other things she says:

"My husband is the very retiring kind and a technical man. Consequently a great deal of his reading is along that line. He cares little for movies, but is particularly fond of good music. He does enjoy a good game of chess or contract bridge.

"Had I nagged him I don't believe we would have been happy together."

I admire the writer for the restraint and control that have made it possible for her to find happiness with a man who would have been annoyed and unhappy if she had let her emotional intensity guide her life.

Bath No Longer Just Scrubbing and a Rubdown

To many of us, especially those who are busy and get an early start each morning, a bath means hopping into a tub of water, a quick scrubbing, then a tepid or cold shower, and a rubdown. Perhaps because we allow ourselves just so many minutes for that daily rite we overlook, or just fail to appreciate, what nice things other types of baths do for us. Baths may be stimulating or relaxing.

If a cold shower or bath leaves you covered with goose pimples and your skin blue, it's not your type of bath. If you find a hot bath weakening, leaving you a bit faint, don't indulge. You can determine the bath which does the most for you.

For a cleansing bath let the temperature of the water be about 94 or 95 degrees. Soap lathers easily and you get rid of any accumulation of dirt or grime. You'll want a shower of cool water, or if you like the cold shower and you react properly to it, now's the time. Follow with a brisk rubdown with a coarse towel.

A very hot bath, with the water around 100 degrees, is recommended after you have indulged in rather strenuous exercise. It wards off stiffness, often the toll when inactive muscles are given a workout. This type of bath should be followed with a warm rinse or shower. Then you should lie down for an hour or so. Or, if the bath is taken at night, hop into bed right after it. Should you find it necessary to go out after this bath, let an alcohol rub follow it.

There's a relaxing bath, enjoyed at the close of the day and before the evening meal. The water is neither too hot nor too cool. Sit in the tub for ten or fifteen minutes and relax. Hop out, dry yourself, and lie down for fifteen or twenty minutes. You get up refreshed, minus that tired, weary feeling, ready to enjoy your dinner and anything the evening has to offer.

There are cold sponge baths for hot weather, to be enjoyed only by those who react favorably to them. It's not a bath for one afflicted with nerves or a weak heart.

With all the delightful bath accessories available, the bath may be made a luxurious affair, not just a daily duty.

Church Federation Plans Christian Living Week

The Chicago Church federation yesterday announced that the 1937 version of the National Preaching mission would be the organizations of "schools of Christian living" throughout the city and suburbs during the second week of November. The National Preaching mission, known as a streamline revival, attracted more than 70,000 persons during four days last fall.

For Town or Country

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Just the thing for town, home or country! This is a versatile model, one you can wear simply everywhere, depending upon the type of fabric you select. As shown in the sketch at the left, dark sheers make up beautifully and are ideal for club meetings, matinées, and afternoon bridge and tea events. The shirtwaist collar is neat and the neatly fitted bodice is trimmed with buttons in a precise row. A slim belt encircles the waistline. The skirt has generous flare acquired by means of paneling.

The sketch at the right shows how attractive this same pattern can be in cottons. The puffed sleeves are short and are trimmed with contrasting fabric to match that of the collar. Tiny figures are excellent choices for this model, especially in dainty pastel shades.

Any of the smart cottons and linens make up well in this dress. Both sheers and sturdier fabrics are suitable, and all of them tub wonderfully. There is little difficulty involved in laundering and pressing this dress because there are no plaits and no ruffles or dressy touches. It is the ideal practical model with just the right amount of dash.

Almost every cook has discovered that ham and pineapple flavors blend well together. Few, however, have thought to combine pineapple with chicken. This tropical fruit does quite as much to enhance the flavor of fowl as it does to complement the ham.

Chicken and pineapple creamed together and served on toast or in patty shells will insure the success of any meal. The two foods may be combined in salads or loaves. Chicken croquettes may be served with a pineapple sauce and baked chicken basted with pineapple juice is a rare treat.

Chicken Pineapple Loaf.

2 cups finely cut chicken
½ cup drained crushed pineapple
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1 2-3 cups dry bread crums
Pineapple juice
1 egg

Combine ingredients, using enough pineapple juice to make the mixture packable. Pack into greased loaf pan and bake at 400 degrees for about 40 minutes.

Chicken-Noodle Croquettes with Pineapple Sauce.

1 cup chopped cooked chicken
1 cup canned corn
½ package narrow egg noodles
2-3 cup thick white sauce
¼ cup finely chopped celery
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 tablespoons melted butter
1½ teaspoons of salt
Pepper
Fine, dry crums
2 eggs, well beaten
¼ cup milk

Cook noodles until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain and combine with other ingredients. Chill and shape into balls. Dip in crums, in beaten egg, and again in crums. Fry in deep fat, 390 degrees, until golden brown. Drain and serve with pineapple sauce.

Pineapple Sauce—Heat two cups crushed pineapple and juice with the grated rind and juice of a lemon. Mix ½ cup sugar and 1½ tablespoons cornstarch. Add ½ a cup of water to make a paste and add the mixture to the fruit and juice. Cook until thickened.

Chicken Pineapple Salad.

2 cups diced chicken
1 cup diced pineapple
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup shredded toasted almonds
Salt and pepper, if needed
French dressing, mayonnaise

Marinate the chicken in the French dressing for an hour or so before mixing the salad. Drain off any excess dressing and combine with other ingredients, adding only enough mayonnaise to moisten. Chill before serving.

Pineapple Chicken à la King.

2 cups chicken stock or milk
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 cups cooked chicken, diced
1 pimiento, cut fine
½ cup mushrooms, sautéd in butter
½ cup diced pineapple
¾ cup cream

Heat the chicken stock or milk. Mix flour and salt to a paste with water and add a little of the hot stock. Add the paste to the stock and cook to a smooth sauce. [A standard white sauce, using the stock as liquid, may be made if preferred]. Add chicken and other ingredients except cream and cook until thoroughly heated. Thin with cream before serving.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Since the fresh, completely natural looking makeup is demanded this season two new powder shades are beauty finds. One is a soft peach, the other a peach with a rosy undertone.

We are enamored of two new powder shades one of the beauty houses has just brought out; they're designed for good looking makeup au naturel, and that is claim No. 1 to our affections where all makeup accessories are concerned.

The shade we prefer of the two is peach. Not a yellowish tinge to it, just a warm peach glow that is neither too pink nor too pale. For the fair skinned it will be a fresh, clear powder shade that is ideal for summer when you want, above all things, to look fresh and cool and healthy.

The second shade is a peach with a warmer, rosier undertone, for the women who go in for tan. This is the beauty house's gift to the brunette with warm skin tones and should be pretty terrific for wear with pastel summer clothes.

The texture of these powders is as good as the shades. It's not too light. Feathery powders are all very well, but if you've skin that's fairly dry they cling just about as well as powder would cling to glass. These aren't heavy, but they do seem to have enough body to stick to the skin surface quite nicely.

The scent with which they're perfumed is delicate and attractive and won't conflict with the perfume of your choice.

These mat the skin perfectly—and if you remember that you must dust powder on, never rub it in, you'll find your powdering job a complete success. For summer either of these shades, depending on your own coloring, will be the basis of a lovely makeup.

Fortunately, these powders aren't in the expensive class. You'll find them in a great many shops, and you should look them up if you're interested in a fresh summer face.

Puppy Love Is Serious Affair If One Is 17

It Invariably Looks Like the Only Romance.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I am 17, a high school student, and one who has fallen in love. So I am asking your advice on a matter which I am certain will play an important part in my future.

"I am not the sort of fellow who goes with girls. I am a one woman man. And only one. But what a girl! For the past year I have become more and more serious about her. There aren't words in the dictionary to express my true feeling for her. I have an almost holy respect for the girl. She is that kind. She inspires it. This deep affection is not the result of taking her out alone, but due to our frequent family meetings.

"I wish to be frank with you. I have come to the conclusion that all of your answers, Miss Blake, are not reliable ones. You will tell me to forget her, I know. I have tried that plan and it doesn't work. You will tell me that it is puppy love. Well, it isn't. It couldn't be and be so overwhelming. The very thought of her going out with some one else gives me a horrible, sick feeling in the pit of my stomach.

"I know this love to be the purest and most sincere thing that's come into my life. Don't say that it is merely physical attraction. It isn't. I love her for that certain something that she has that makes me think of her continually. I have come to the conclusion that either I marry her or no other man does. Understand, I haven't told her yet of my feelings. I only act them, hoping to show them that way. She will be in my mind my entire life, I know. Can you give me any advice?" Franko.

When it hits you at 17, Franko, it sure hits with a wallop, doesn't it? Ask your Dad about it some day, Franko. We'll wager he has a memory of suffering over a girl in his youth beside which your pain looks like a pale, pink scratch. Most men go through an experience of the sort. We wouldn't tell you to forget the girl. You can't, just yet. And why should you? If it weren't this girl, it probably would be another, since you're marked for early romance, anyway. But we do insist that it scents of puppy love, the first collision with the grand emotion. You write us a year from now or two about puppy love, won't you?

In the interim, you'd better try to conquer that weak chain in your link, because if you are going to let jealousy make a victim of you, you're going to be in for a terrible period. If you catch the green eyed one young and can train him to show you how funny a person is who acts on his impulses, you've gone a long way in paving your romance path for easy traveling.

Presbyterian Meeting Acts to Renounce War in Church Creed

Columbus, O., June 2.—(AP)—Commissioners [delegates] of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A. acted late today to renounce war as the 149th general assembly of the church came to a close.

Despite considerable opposition they instructed a committee to draft an amendment to the confession of faith and catechisms which would renounce war "as a method of settling international disputes."

While the amendment would express the church's opposition to war, communicants still would be permitted to determine whether it was right or wrong. The committee will report back next year.

One of the objectives of the renunciation of war is to permit Presbyterians to become conscientious objectors to military training.

Give Parties for Miss Caryl Bloomingston

Wedding to Take Place Next Thursday.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE invitations that Mr. and Mrs. William Harris Fellowes issued to a buffet supper for Miss Caryl Bloomingston and "Ted" Parker bear hand drawn maps of the best route to their Libertyville home on Belvidere road. Mr. and Mrs. Fellowes are entertaining at 7 o'clock next Sunday.

Mrs. Denis E. Sullivan Jr. is entertaining at a luncheon and green or blue bathroom shower for Miss Bloomingston at 1 o'clock tomorrow at her home, 3500 Lake Shore drive. Miss Marion Gordon will give a buffet supper at home tonight for Miss Bloomingston and Mr. Parker, who are to be married next Thursday, and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brittingham will give a similar party tomorrow night.

Saturday night hosts will be Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Lamport, whose new apartment in Dearborn parkway is the acme of chic. Mr. and Mrs. John P. McWilliams will give a luncheon in Lake Forest Sunday.

Mrs. Charles S. Connell will give a tea and vice shower next Monday afternoon for Miss Bloomingston, and Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bloomingston will give a family dinner for their daughter and Mr. Parker on the eve of the wedding. The ceremony will take place in the presence of the two families in the chapel of St. Chrysostom's church at 4:30 o'clock next Thursday and a small reception will follow at the Lake Shore Drive hotel.

Mrs. Paul Corbett is giving a stocking shower at home in Barrington tomorrow for Miss Kean Hughes, who is to be married a week from Saturday to Frederick Carlton Williams of Detroit. Because the young man is not coming to Barrington until just a day or two before his wedding to the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lee Hughes, there is to be very little evening entertainment for the bride-to-be.

Henry Rew Gross Takes Bride Today.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Haskell of Evanston left last night for Memphis, Tenn., where they will attend the wedding this afternoon of Mrs. Mary Earp Edwards of Mrs. Haskell's brother, Henry Rew Gross. The ceremony will take place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Orson Kellogg Earp.

Two Couples Will Mark Anniversaries.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson will be receiving congratulations today on their wedding anniversaries. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are not planning a special celebration to mark their 46th year of marriage, but Mr. and Mrs. Dawes and their six children and their in-laws will gather for a family dinner tonight.

The party will be given in the old Dawes home at 1800 Sheridan road, Evanston, where Charles C. Dawes and his bride, the former Mignon Burr McGibeny of Indianapolis, are making their home. Mrs. Louis Watermulder [Helen Dawes], Mrs. Robert T. Sherman [Jean Dawes], Mrs. Beverly Jefferson [Margaret Dawes], and William, Charles, and Palmer Dawes, are the six children who will be among those toasting Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Dawes on their 44th anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawes soon will be leaving to attend class reunions and commencement exercises at their colleges. Mr. Dawes will return to Marietta college in Marietta, O., the middle of June, and Mrs. Dawes, accompanied by her husband's sister, Mrs. Arthur Beach, will attend a reunion of their class at Lake Erie college and the commencement day exercises on June 12.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Boardman, the Robinsons' son-in-law and daughter, and their son, Ronald Jr., will go east later this month to the Adirondacks where they will visit Mr. Boardman's parents, the Harry Boardmans, who have a camp there. Young Ronny will spend the summer with his grandparents.

Miss Dunham Is Sensation in Haitian Dances

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Few dance recitals are punctuated with applause as loud and enthusiastic as that which rang through the Goodman theater again and again last night. Frances Allis, Katherine Dunham, Diana Huebert, and Marian Van Tuyl had pooled their resources for an elaborate program sponsored by the medical bureau of the American Friends of Spanish Democracy and designed to raise badly needed funds for child victims of the civil war.

The chance to see in one evening such an unusual collection of dancers and to part with a little money for the cause drew to the theater a large audience which missed never an opportunity to give audible testimony of its approval.

The success of Katherine Dunham and her group approached the sensational. She is the young colored woman who went to Haiti on a Rosenwald travel fellowship to study and collect the native dances of the island. These dances are of such a singularity exotic character and were so superlatively well executed last night that they constituted for the majority of the audience nothing less than a revelation.

In the Haitian ceremonial dances Miss Dunham demonstrates the emotional potency of sheer monotony in a most remarkable manner. There is an uncanny impression, when the curtain closes, that the dance and the steady rhythm of drums are still continuing and that they will continue forever and ever.

Getting more metaphysical still, it seemed that the impassive faces and motions of the dancers provided a more vivid description than words ever could of the very essence of mysterious primitive humanity. In this impassivity and this monotony lay something volcanic, a suggestion of immense power and darkly realized forces.

Abandoning the Haitian scene for the island of the lotus eaters and rude jungle rhythms for the highly civilized music of Debussy, Miss Dunham and her group managed here also to make vistas seem to open out of vistas. Their projection of the dim languor of the piece was a remarkable piece of work.

Preceding all this, Frances Allis succeeded all by herself in holding the interest and arousing the enthusiasm of the audience in a cycle called Trilogy of the Soil. She has a great genius for looking epic—a nobility about her movements and a sureness in her technique that permitted her to discharge competently the heavy task that such a theme imposes. This task is nothing less than that of expressing in terms of the dance, man's immemorial reactions to the miracle of earth's cycles and the emotions which are inseparable from the idea of eternal renewal.

Miss Huebert and Miss Van Tuyl, whose part of the program fell very late in the evening, may rejoice in the fact that a morning paper reporter refuses to wax metaphysical over something which he did not see.

Jane Valentine Is Bride

MR. AND MRS. NEWTON S. NOBLE JR.

Bride Wears Grandmother's Wedding Gown

At 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church, decorated appropriately with bridal wreath, Miss Jane Valentine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Loring Valentine, was married to Newton S. Noble Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton S. Noble of Akron, O.

The pretty blonde bride wore the gown in which her grandmother, Mary Sophie Greiner, was married in Buffalo to Lem Whitney Flershem in 1873. The dress is fashioned of white satin, made on simple lines with a full train, not very long. The bride carried orange blossoms to match the wreath that held in place a flowing white tulle veil. Tiny bunches of the blossoms were scattered about the dress.

Mrs. John W. Valentine, the matron of honor, and the five bridesmaids were dressed alike in summery frocks of white organza made with puffed sleeves and full skirts. They wore white straw Watteau hats and carried Easter lilies. Mrs. Ross J. Beatty Jr., Mrs. Phelps Wilder, Mrs. John Lord King, and Miss Katherine Kales were the bridesmaids. Tiny Ann Valentine, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a white net frock with a wreath of sweetheart roses and forget-me-nots, and carried a bouquet of the same flowers.

Edward Fuller of Scranton, Pa., was the best man. Ushering were the bride's brothers, John and Joseph Valentine, William Deknatel, Edward Williams of Cleveland, O., Paul Oliver, Lockwood Pirie, and Edward Fitch of Dayton, O. The Rev. Dudley Stark read the service. A reception followed in the Valentine home at 1322 Ritchie court.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble left on a wedding trip immediately following the reception. They will make their home temporarily in Mr. and Mrs. Valentine's house while the Valentines and Joseph Valentine tour China and Japan this summer. In the fall Mr. Noble and his bride will take an apartment on the near north side.

Cowboy Foran Protests Role as Movie Star

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 2.—[Special.]—Nick [Dick] Foran had just made up his mind that he didn't want to be the dramatic actor which Warner's studio thought he merited being. He preferred to gallop his horse and sing cowboy rôles, but the studio told him to "eat cake" and like it.

The studio told the big redheaded, carefree Foran it is his own fault.

If he hadn't sung and ridden and laughed and fought and made love in such popular fashion through the last two years of his synthetic cowboy life he wouldn't have climbed so fast in public favor and his fan mail wouldn't be where it is now—third heaviest at the studio.

The producers decided to move him from the corrals into the drawing room. He was on the threshold of a new and sophisticated life, making love to ladies in evening gowns. Maybe one or two more superwesterns, the studio said, and then he could forever lay aside his snow white twenty gallon supersombrero of downy white felt and his hand-tooled superchaps of velvety lether and take off his sunset hued bandanna.

He faced the happy promotion of striding across ballroom floors of moviedom in white tie and tails and a silk hat with all types of beautiful film girls looking into his blue eyes.

"But I'm a man of wide open spaces," objected Dick, who used to play football at Mercersburg academy and Princeton. He had never ridden before Warner studio took him from Fox about two and one-half years ago. The studio changed his front name from Nick to Dick and told him to forget about going back to his office job with a railroad in his native New Jersey.

Jack Warner sent for Foran and told him he had become a valuable actor. Westerns had taught him things about acting. He had learned to handle himself. He could appear at ease before the camera and stir the emotions of ladies. He had played rôles in "Petrified Forest" and "Black Legion" and other pictures in the higher brackets and public interest had begun to grow. People had written the studio asking to see Dick Foran in bigger and better rôles. In fact public approval had practically engulfed him.

"But what about me?" demanded Dick. "I'm having fun. I don't want to do it."

"Naw, I just want to ride a horse," said Dick.

So now it's all settled.

His current cowboy film has been canceled and Dick Foran is playing the second lead with Errol Flynn and Joan Blondell in "The Perfect Specimen."

Even if Foran doesn't like it the studio says the public will.

Show Painting Which Brought Artist Freedom

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An intriguing exhibition of French paintings of the 19th and 20th centuries has opened in the Findlay galleries, 424 South Michigan avenue, to continue to June 26. It is rather unusual fare for this gallery where one customarily finds only the conservative picture hung, but, like caviar, it has its points and of its sort it is excellent.

The most important painting present, from the standpoint of unique interest, is the "Palette et Nature Morte" by Gustave Courbet.

The painting is a still life of apples against a dark background; it is painted on the artist's palette and the thumb hold would trick an unwary observer into thinking it an egg, so perfect is it in shape and lighting. The little painting is signed and dated Ste. Pelagie, 1874.

This history is given of it: "This still life was painted by Courbet while he was languishing in the debtors' prison of St. Lazare, and was offered to whomever would pay his debt and thus release him from prison. Mr. Shaw, one of the first to introduce Barbizon paintings into the United States, came to his aid, thereby acquiring the palette."

How the palette happens to be in this exhibit or who owns it now is not told. Whatever those facts may be, the palette still life remains an amazingly fine piece of painting and unusual in its history.

Derain presents an exquisite branch of roses as meticulously painted as a miniaturist would have executed a similar composition. Utrillo is represented by a bright, hard, light street scene and by a gray and chilly vista of a Rue à Montmartre.

Fifteen paintings of historical spots in Illinois by Lane K. Newberry are also on exhibit in the Findlay galleries and make a good showing. The picture of Jane Addams' birthplace one can easily imagine installed at Hull house. The other pictures are as interesting in their handling as in their subject matter. Mr. Newberry has done a difficult piece of work well.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Proper Corseting Important.

J. R.: For the rolls of flesh that sometimes form between the bust and the hipline I'd suggest that you try wearing a looser girdle, as this is the result of a tight fitting garment. Why not see a good corsetiere? Stretching exercises also will help to improve the appearance of the body.

Cotton Plaids Fashion Smart Party Dresses

Brief Jackets Have Short, Puffed Sleeves.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

National Cotton week is bringing out some interesting clothes. For hot weather outfits at grand low prices we recommend one piece, two piece, or the tricky new three piece ensembles of color fast, preshrunk tub material. Such clothes will keep you spick and span and looking as cool as a lake breeze all summer long.

New arrivals that would take the last penny from the most flinty hearted dollar hoarder are the gay and sprightly dance and party dresses of plaid cotton. These are made with full skirts that swirl around the ankles, cling smoothly over the hiplines, and have deeply gouged out necklines.

With these crisp young dresses are brief bolero jackets made with puffed short sleeves. The jackets are the snappiest that ever topped a dance dress and come in plaids to match the dress or in contrasting colors to repeat a single color in the plaid pattern.

White and pastel tinted flowered muslins and dimities are other finds in the party dress collections. Printed piqué, as swanky as a masculine dinner suit, comes in luscious summer colors of cloud blue, dusty pink, and dull raspberry reds. Wee floral effects are sprinkled hit and miss in cool white over the background shades.

More sophisticated piqués come with huge effective patterns in scrolls, bands, and precise designs in bold, almost gaudy, contrast colors, with an extra frill or ruffle anywhere.

The big surprises are the neat little two piece affairs for town or country in cool, dotted swiss. These have low price marks. They come in white and pastels with colored dots, in smart browns, green, navy, and black, with a peppering of white dots. They have short, simple sleeves, a shirtwaist top, and a peplum to achieve the two piece suit effect.

THE TRAP

By Elizabeth Jordan

SYNOPSIS.

Brave Alida French opens up Avalon, the ancestral home she has inherited on the Massachusetts coast, for paying guests—though the house, according to local gossip, is haunted. Four men have vanished from it. Her guests are Vance, a young man with a fatal heart ailment; Dr. Eugene Benedict, struggling young physician, and his wife, Lucy, a nurse. Bing Haven, her family lawyer's nephew, assists Alida. Alida hires Comfort Folger, who used to work at Avalon, also her nephew Nat and Abram Parsons, whom Comfort refuses to marry because of his drinking. Vance and the Benedicts, driving to Avalon, collide with the car of the rich, neurotic Mrs. Kirkpatrick and her daughter, Spring. They take them with them to Avalon. Bing Haven and Spring fall in love. A dancing skeleton and two strange men in antique clothes are seen on the grounds of Avalon. Comfort shows Alida a secret cellar for storing liquor. Dr. Benedict tells Alida he has learned that Mrs. Kirkpatrick is the mistress of a wealthy man in the west. Spring, unknown to her, is a child of the liaison. When Bing asks her permission to marry Spring, Mrs. Kirkpatrick tells him the truth. He still wants to marry Spring.

INSTALMENT XXXIV.

OFF ON THE HONEYMOON.

"And he could have his emotional excitements elsewhere? That's the idea, I suppose."

Alida, as she spoke, looked out over the sea, giving herself time to control the anger that filled her. And she had considered Donald Vance understanding! Or was he merely bluffing? The chances were that he was. Very well. She would join him in that game. The Banshee was skimming along the water like a bird, a light breeze swelling her sails. Overhead the May sky arched, richly blue and almost cloudless. At the tiller Bing sat, his left arm around Spring. For once the young things were not talking. Their faces expressed a fatuous happiness.

"No, it isn't." Vance spoke sharply. He looked confused, and rather shocked. "What I meant——"

"What you meant was what you said. But don't say it to other girls," Alida continued, "unless you want to be awfully unpopular. No girl, however 'steady-going' she may seem," she quoted ironically, "cares to be regarded as a domestic sofa pillow."

"O, come now, that isn't fair!" Vance flushed. "You're deliberately misunderstanding me. You're a bit difficult today."

"I'm bored," Alida admitted. "You're not your usual sparkling self. I've rarely seen you serious before. I don't think I like it. I'm going to talk to the Benedicts."

Vance's look brooded on her darkly for a moment. He had gone too far in his pose of detachment, and she was furious. However, she'd get over her annoyance. He stretched himself comfortably in a deck chair, pulled his cap over his eyes, and dozed.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick was waiting for them when they got back to Avalon. Spring's mother drew her daughter to her side in a rare gesture of affection. Spring returned it warmly, throwing her young arm over her mother's shoulder. She had been more demonstrative this past week than ever before. Then Mrs. Kirkpatrick moved reluctantly.

"I've brought you a present from Boston," she announced. "Don't you want to come and see it?"

"Another present? Mother!"

Mrs. Kirkpatirck was leading the way through the front hall, across the veranda, and down the front stairs. Spring followed her closely. Seeing that the Avalon group was tactfully remaining behind, Mrs. Kirkpatrick sent a message over her shoulder.

"Wait on the veranda," she suggested. "We'll bring it to the door."

Erect, vigorous, with the swinging walk characteristic of her, she strode along the side driveway and back to the old stable, whose lower floor had been made by Amos French into a garage for two cars. She and Spring disappeared for a moment, which was accented by a shriek of ecstacy from Spring. A few minutes later mother and daughter reappeared. They were in the front seat of a new roadster that Spring was driving under her mother's direction. It was a super-car—a thing of exquisite line, color, and finish. Spring got it to the front door, to an accompaniment of ecstatic yelps. Her brown eyes shone like electric lamps. She fell rather than jumped out of the roadster, babbling.

"It's mine!" she cried. "I always wanted one. She wouldn't let me have one in Europe, so I can't drive. But I'm going to learn right away. Bing, look at it! Isn't it the loveliest thing you ever saw?"

Spring's wedding day satisfied even Bing, who was exacting in his demands for his fiancée. The weather continued perfect and the grounds of Avalon were at their loveliest, as if to make up for their late blooming.

The wedding ceremony was performed at high noon in the bay window of the living room. Spring and Bing, in their traveling clothes, were as radiant as the flowers around them. They had modified their plans. They were leaving for Boston immediately after the wedding breakfast, in the new roadster. They would "tour" a week, and Spring would learn to drive her car. Then Capt. Bijah would take the Banshee to Hail Harbor to meet them there, and they would cruise for a second week.

"After that," Caleb Haven had announced with some firmness," "we'll all try to realize that Haven and Haven have a law practice, and that the junior partner owes it a little of his attention."

The wedding breakfast was Alida's gift to Spring. Gently but very firmly she had insisted on this. She added to the banquet some of the secret cellar's choicest champagne. The Rev. Jared Tucker, grandson of Mrs. Haverford Tucker and now pastor of Quilmet's most fashionable church, performed the ceremony and stayed on for the breakfast. He was an engaging young man with a twinkling eye and a carefree smile. He banished both of these during the impressive marriage ceremony, to which robins and wrens in the old garden twittered an accompaniment.

Alida had never accepted the theory that most women cry at a wedding. She now discovered with surprise that her eyes were so full of tears she could not see Spring's beautiful little face. Next to her, Lucy was crying, too. Even Comfort, standing in the background between Abram and Nat, seemed moved. Mrs. Kirkpatrick stood like a statue till she gave her daughter away. Then, for just a moment, Alida had a glimpse of twitching features and a moist handkerchief. Through the short ceremony the woman's eyes had rested, not on her daughter's face but on the flowers above and around the bride, and on the background of the beautiful old room. Alida wondered what her thoughts were. Upstairs Geraldine Kirkpatrick's trunks were packed, strapped and waiting. She was leaving for California that afternoon.

She was very gay at the wedding breakfast. Every one was. The champagne helped. Then Spring and Bing went off in their new car, with rice in Spring's wavy brown bob. A sudden flatness fell upon the company. Almost before the roadster had whirled the young couple out of Avalon's grounds, Mrs. Kirkpatrick went to her room.

"I'll have to leave too, in half an hour," she said. "I'd better get ready."

But there was nothing more for her to do. She put on her hat and gloves and sat with folded hands till she heard the wheels of her own car, driven by Nat, in the driveway before the house. She left several persons a trifle overwhelmed. She had given handsome supplementary checks to the Benedicts, and to the servants. She was greatly interested in Nat and had promised to put him through college. To Miss French she again showed her tact and wisdom by repeating her former admission.

"I can't even try to thank you," she said at the door. "I needn't add that I shall never forget you."

They shook hands warmly and she entered her waiting car. The next moment it was whirling down the driveway.

"She certainly moves fast," Benedict remarked. "But she'll have to go even faster than that to outrun her memories."

Alida went slowly upstairs. She was experiencing the flatness that follows the successful completion of a worthwhile job. Now she and Vance and Lucy and Benedict were back where they had started. A new system must be put into effect. She must cut down her expenses.

Supper that night, made up as Alida confessed of "wedding baked meats," was a silent affair. Every one missed Spring and the exuberant Bing, who had been at the house almost constantly during the past week.

Garbo's First Movie Placed in N. Y. Museum Library

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Greta Garbo was installed in a museum today, and you would hardly recognize her. The film in which she first won recognition as an actress, "Gosta Berling," was included in a group of Swedish productions added to the collection of the Museum of Modern Art Film library. Miss Garbo, about 17 then, played the part of Elisabeth Dohna. The picture was produced in 1923-'24. The film, eight reels long, was directed by the late Mauritz Stiller, who helped Miss Garbo gain a foothold in Hollywood.

Give Parties for Miss Caryl Bloomingston

days with Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers at 1100 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Williams' first wife was Joan Chalmers, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers are uncertain as to just when they will go to their summer home at Watch Hill, R. I., because neither of them is very well, but they hope to be there by the first of next month.

Young Thomas Potter will have an exciting summer vacation. Immediately after his graduation from Princeton he and two of his friends and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Potter of Lake Forest, are sailing for Denmark. Tom's sailboat will be awaiting them there, and they will spend the summer racing in Danish and Norwegian waters. Joan and Gordon, the younger Potter children, are going, too.

Mrs. Helen Hughes Dulany sailed yesterday on the Normandie for London, where she will spend a fortnight before going on to the Scandinavian countries, Germany, and France. She will come to Chicago in August for a short stay before going to California for a visit.

Janet Fairbank Will Study in Europe.

Miss Janet Fairbank left yesterday for New York to sail on the 10th for Europe. She will see her mother, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, in Paris and then will go to Salzburg, where she will spend the summer studying voice. Mrs. Fairbank will return to Chicago late this month.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Woodward have gone east for a round of visits. One important stop will be at Sarah Lawrence college, from which Mrs. Woodward's daughter, Miss Nancy Freund, will be graduated on June 12.

The Woodwards and Miss Freund and her younger sister, Miss Emmy Lou Freund, will return immediately following the commencement exercises. Mrs. Woodward's father, Lyman A. Walton, will take the girls on a trip to Canada this summer.

There will be at least 108 potential shoppers at a Lake Forest sale the Eli Bates shop will hold next Tuesday in Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson's house on the lake, for nine women interested in the settlement are giving luncheons, each with a dozen guests, and later taking their parties to the sale.

There will be many more than the 108, however, who will go to Mrs. Ryerson's charming home at 261 North Mayflower road, for at this time of year every housewife is interested in the lovely things the shop offers.

"Everything for breakfast in bed, smart novelties for luncheon on the terrace, linen and china for dinners of distinction" is the way one of the board members describes the Eli Bates articles. Colorful bathing and play suits of Hawaiian inspiration and maids' aprons and dresses also will be displayed, with Miss Annie May Henry and Miss Anne Bryant modeling them.

The luncheon hostesses will be Mrs. James B. Forgan Jr., Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon, Mrs. Elliott Donnelley, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner, Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley, Mrs. Henry N. Rowley, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas.

Open Lectures Today on Flower Arrangements.

Mrs. Willard W. Jaques, Mrs. Warren W. Shoemaker, and Mrs. Hugh Foresman are among those entertaining at luncheon today at the Indian Hill Country club following the opening lecture in a series on flower arrangements by Miss Alice Morgan Carson of Greenwich, Conn.

The Kenilworth Garden club is sponsoring the lectures. Talks also will be given this afternoon and tomorrow morning and afternoon. Miss Carson is visiting Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy in Lake Forest during her stay here.

At the Chicago Junior league's annual meeting tomorrow morning at the Saddle and Cycle club Miss Marjorie Kimball will report on the recent conference of the Association of Junior Leagues of America, and Miss Honor Merrell will tell about the national social welfare conference held in Indianapolis last week.

The last meeting this season of the Evanston Junior league will be held at 12:30 o'clock next Monday at the Indian Hill Country club. Following luncheon there will be a business meeting and annual reports. Mrs. Carol W. Alton, outgoing president, will conduct the first half of the meeting, and Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers, president elect, the latter half.

Although the league formally disbands for the summer, its members will be busy running their dental clinic and assisting in the outpatient department and the library at the Evanston hospital.

Fisher-McMillen Wedding June 17.

The wedding of Miss Elizabeth Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Fisher of Evanston, to Dale W. McMillen Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale W. McMillen of Fort Wayne, Ind., will take place at 8:30 o'clock on the evening of June 17 at the First Presbyterian church of Evanston. Dr. Paul Austin Wolfe will read the ceremony, and a reception will follow at the Country club of Evanston.

Mrs. Arthur T. McIntosh Jr. will be matron of honor. Mrs. Charles W. Crowe, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Elizabeth Quinlan, Miss Doris Lane, and Miss Gertrude Swanson of Minneapolis, will be the bridesmaids.

Robert Richardson will be best man, and ushering will be Dr. Crowe; Wisner Fisher, brother of the bride; Harold and Stewart McMillen, brothers of the bridegroom; William Wells of Minneapolis, and Colin Finlayson of Decatur, Ind.

The board of governors of the Cornell University Club of Chicago has issued invitations to its third annual June night on Saturday evening, June 12, at the Drake hotel. Proceeds will go to the Cornell regional alumni scholarship.

The polo team from the New Mexico Military institute, which played at Cornell recently, is coming to Chicago to open the summer polo season at Oak Brook and will be guests of the Cornell club at luncheon today.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Hide and Seek

Illini Prevent Big Ten Deal on Football Rights

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The widespread preoccupation of sponsors with sports this season has prompted broadcasters to think about fall football earlier than usual. For a month or more a big deal has been pending—but it has fallen through—whereby exclusive rights to Big Ten football broadcasting were to have been sold for a sum said to exceed $100,000. But the University of Illinois blocked this scheme by refusing to join. There was a feeling that a state owned institution ought not to make available any service to any single concern.

When Illinois upset the apple cart, Minnesota and Michigan, said to have been lukewarm to the idea, joined Illinois thereby scotching the possibility of selling the broadcast rights.

Northwestern, Chicago, Indiana, Purdue, Iowa, Ohio State, and Wisconsin were said to favor the plan to sell exclusive football rights. According to the plan, in which a Chicago packer was said to have been interested, all schools would have shared equally in the division of the proceeds. And added revenue of $10,000 or more to several of the universities which attract a small gate seemed attractive, indeed. But when Illinois declined to go along and announced that all broadcasters would be welcome, this rosy picture faded.

Several campuses are now engaged in selling their broadcasting rights individually. Chicago, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan have negotiations near the contract signing stage, it is reported. Chicago's games, which were not aired last year, may be carried exclusively by WIND this year. This station aired them two years ago, and last year switched to Notre Dame games under commercial sponsorship. This year Notre Dame is barring sponsors. Thus WIND is negotiating with the Midway to carry its entire schedule. It will be fortunate for listeners if this deal goes through. Last year on some days five local broadcasters carried Northwestern's games and none those of Chicago.

W-G-N will continue its policy, established several years ago, of not permitting sponsorship of collegiate football. The outstanding gridiron game of the week, regardless of college or location, will be offered to listeners each Saturday.

The National Broadcasting company has announced plans for carrying all the home games of Notre Dame coast to coast. This will be the first season the chain has concentrated on one school.

WBBM is seeking to arrange a football schedule for the gasoline concern sponsoring baseball on the station this season. WMAQ, WJJD, and WCFL, all of which aired football for advertisers last year, are reported laying similar plans for this season.

Adviser Lists Songs Available for Children

Collections Are Colorful and Varied.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Today we will list some of the song collections available for children. In some cases the accompaniments are so simplified that one with little experience in piano playing will be able to learn them. Others are somewhat complicated and will need more knowledge or practice.

Songs and rhythms for the little child in the home. This pamphlet contains some interesting texts for mothers of young children in regard to songs and rhythms, as well as the music and words of a few simple songs. It also contains lists of phonograph records and names of song books. It is obtainable for 5 cents from The College of Agriculture, Madison, Wis.

The Hums of Pooh. [Published by E. P. Dutton & Co. of New York, N. Y. Price is $2.50.] This book is made up of the little songs of Pooh-Bear as they appear in Winnie the Pooh, by A. A. Milne.

Fifty Favorite Songs for Girls and Boys. [Edited by Mary Nancy Graham. Published by The Whitman company of Racine, Wis. Price 10 cents.] Nursery, folk, and traditional songs with simple accompaniments, for the youngest singer.

Home and Community Song Book. [Concord series No. 2 by Thomas W. Surette and Archibald T. Davison. Price $1. Published by National Recreation association, 315 4th avenue, New York, N. Y.] One hundred and twenty songs with piano accompaniments—patriotic, folk, choruses, carols, etc. Including, besides the more popular songs, those with music by Brahms, Handel, Mendelssohn, Beethoven, Rachmaninov, etc.

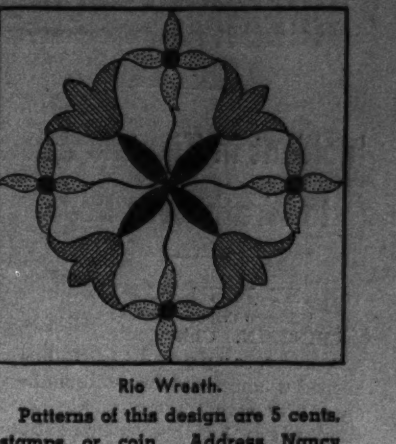
"Rio Wreath" Is Charming Quilt Done in Applique



Rio Wreath.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

One of the most charming of all the applique blocks is a comparatively unknown pattern called "Rio Wreath." It is not a new design, nor is it classed among the antiques, but it has lain in obscurity for years and only recently was brought to light upon the demise of an elderly woman in southern Illinois. The wreath was done in an interesting color arrangement of blue, yellow, brown, and green against a white background. Unfortunately, the history of the block must remain unknown until another of the same type is brought to light and some one can explain its origin. The applique blocks are set together with three inch bands of white, and finished with a five and one-half inch border and a one-half inch bias binding.

Culbertson's "Gold Book of Bidding and Play"

REBIDS AFTER A TAKE-OUT DOUBLE.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is important in every department of bidding to avoid making two free bids on a hand which justifies only one. This error must be particularly avoided by the player who has made a take-out double.

Until partner confirms the possession of some strength by making a free bid, the doubler must assume his partner's hand to be an absolute minimum. Therefore, having doubled and received a forced one spade response, the doubler should raise to two spades, but not to three or four spades, holding ♠KJ75 ♥A6 ♦KQ92 ♣Q62. He must not fall into the error of raising as though his partner's bid were a free one. A three spade raise would show something like ♠AK65 ♥KJ4 ♦AQJ2 ♣K5. In order to raise at once to four spades the doubler should be prepared to play at four spades with nothing more than four small cards of the trump suit in his partner's hand.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	2 clubs	Double	Pass
3 spades	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's five spade bid was aggressive but by no means illogical. North felt that four spades would be a mere acceptance of South's urge and that the two aces in his hand deserved greater consideration.

West opened the club king and declarer ruffed. A low spade was led to the ace, and the queen of clubs was played and passed, declarer discarding the six of diamonds. West won and now had to consider defensive possibilities in the light of what already had transpired. He could see that declarer would use dummy's club jack for discarding purposes; that the heart ace was a sure entry whereby to reach this trick. But if declarer were forced to utilize this entry before East, who also now was out of clubs, were stripped of his trumps, obviously an attempt to discard on the club jack would fail. No sooner analyzed than acted upon.

West laid down, not a low heart, but the heart king, and declarer's plan was smashed. Forced to accept dummy's ace at this premature stage, declarer could only pray that West had started with five instead of six clubs and that East would have to follow to the club jack. When East ruffed there was no avoiding the loss of a heart trick.

Had West returned a low heart instead of the king, declarer simply would have finessed and, after drawing trumps, would have discarded his one losing heart on dummy's club jack.

Had West returned the ten of clubs on the hope that dummy's jack would be played and smothered by a ruff from East, declarer would not have been so short sighted. He would have ducked in dummy and ruffed in his own hand. He then would have run trumps and the ace and king of diamonds until, with one trump remaining, the following situation would have been reached:

SOUTH

The last spade now would put West out of the running. If he blanked the king of hearts, dummy would discard the seven of clubs, and a low heart from the queen would give declarer the rest of the tricks. If he let go a club, dummy would blank the heart ace and be in a position to cash the jack and seven of clubs for the final tricks.

JAPS INCENSED AS CHINESE SET BUILDINGS AFIRE

Incident in Tientsin Adds to Wrath Over Dope.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, China, June 2.—Ten marauders, supposedly Chinese, burned a house and two outbuildings on a fifty acre tract purchased two months ago by the Japanese Holy Farming society and operated ostensibly as an experiment in treating alkaline soil to make it suitable for crops.

The little farm lies on the outskirts of Tientsin and about 3 miles south of the compound of the Fifteenth United States infantry. The farm is manned by a dozen Japanese workmen. The foreman and his wife escaped unhurt when their home was burned.

Islanders Concerned Over Matter.

Japanese consular and military officials telegraphed details at once to Tokio and seemed to consider the incident serious. The Chinese magistrate, Chen-Chung-li, perhaps mindful of the 1931 riots in Manchuria which precipitated Nipponese occupation of that region, posted gendarmes about the place to prevent further trouble.

Chinese farmers and workers in the neighborhood, apparently having been warned, refused to discuss the incident with THE TRIBUNE's writer. Widespread Japanese land purchases recently all around Tientsin have prompted Gen. Sung Cheh-yuan, chairman of the Hopei-Chahar provincial political council, to order death for any Chinese selling land to an alien.

More Fuel on Old Fire.

Another point of irritation between natives and Japanese here is the recent arrest of 2,000 so-called beggars by the Nipponese in their concession to be unloaded upon Chinese charitable organizations. Most of the paupers are drug addicts collected in the seventy dope dens operated by Coreans within the Japanese concession.

Chinese newspapers charge that the islanders are dumping an average of 200 Chinese heroin victims a day upon the native societies.

The roundup of 2,000 is presumably in retaliation for the recent exposure of conditions in a league of nations report at Geneva, aggravated by the discovery of more than 100 bodies of heroin victims, all men between 30 and 45 years old, floating toward the sea in the Hai-ho river.

Suspect Many More Dead.

They began to appear in the river May 5. It is thought that more floated on to the sea than were found. Chinese authorities claim to have evidence that the bodies were mostly those of heroin victims from the Japanese concession, but the corpse mystery has deeply stirred local Chinese and combined with political complications points to possible early outbreaks.

PRINCE HITS SNAG TRYING TO FORM JAPAN'S CABINET

TOKIO, June 2.—(AP)—Prince Fumimaro Konoye struck a snag tonight in his efforts to form a cabinet, but observers predicted the difficulty would be overcome. After the prince had chosen eight ministers, Kenji Kodama, former president of the Yokohama Specie bank, declined the finance portfolio. It was expected the premier-designate would offer the post to Okinobu Kaya, vice minister of finance.

Three other ministries, foreign affairs, overseas affairs, and commerce and industry, had not been filled. Two of those who agreed to enter the cabinet are Chikuhei Nakashima, railways, and Ryutaro Nagi, communications, who are members of the major political parties, Seiyukai and Minseito, respectively. The parties were not represented in Senjuro Hayashi's cabinet and forced the resignation of his ministry last Monday.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

H. T. WOODRUFF, CONDUCTOR OF 'THE WAKE,' DIES

Widely Known and Loved in All Sports.

Harvey Woodruff left yesterday morning to join Walter Eckersall and Ring Lardner and George Siler and Edgar Sheridan and Hugh E. Keough and Charlie Dryden. Harvey Woodruff died yesterday in the Evanston hospital. He had been carrying the sting of death in his sportsman's heart for more than four years.

It is not an agreeable duty to write that Harvey Woodruff is dead. But it is a pleasant employment to tell how decent he was, how fair his estimate of men, how wholesome his judgment of sports, how numerous his friends and how nonexistent his enemies. Of those friends he has gone to join, Eckersall was great in football, Lardner and Dryden great in baseball, Keough in humor, Sheridan in racing, and Siler in boxing. Woodruff was great in them all.

Forget About Formality.

It seems a little stiff to call him Woodruff. It is altogether out of rôle to use his full name, Harvey Trunkey Woodruff. That name Trunkey was always a mystery to the thousands who read his Wake of the News. It was a mystery because only the T appeared. The T was for Trunkey, his mother's name. Well, the formality of Mr. Woodruff was dissolved into Woody within five minutes after you had the pleasure of meeting him and a pleasure it was.

Four years ago the heart weakened. Well, why shouldn't it? Those who knew that heart for its bigness and knew the loads it carried also knew it couldn't last forever. The depression didn't help much to a graying man who had seen a fortune slide away over night and through no fault of his own. The world of that day heard many groans of the financially injured. The world heard no groan from Woody. He had, with great patience, seen a competence disappear and he was being crucified by angina pectoris and he kept smiling.

Recognized Sports as Games.

Woody always was apologetic. He was the great neutral in sports. He knew that sports are games and that it's no good losing temper and displaying bitterness about them. It was always best to clap an athlete on the shoulder and urge him to try again. So Woody lived in a mood of restraint. It was so until his last night. He said to his last visitor, almost in the tone of Charles II., who excused himself for being so long a-dying: "I'm sorry to be so inhospitable. But I don't want to live any longer if I have to endure this."

He probably will not be missed around Tribune Tower for the very specific reason that Woody's personality was, is, that is to say, of the kind that permeates men's minds and their talk and their going's here and there and so he will always be here. Tribune folks always talked about Woody and they will keep on talking about him. He was a good influence and a good influence has a lasting quality.

Still in Sports Department.

Woody always will be serviceable to TRIBUNE sports writers. Woody will be somewhere in the sports department twenty years from now. You may not see him there, but you couldn't help knowing that he is. This is because for forty years he was occupied with writing and with being sports editor and as conductor of the Wake of the News and thus with making an impression that doesn't easily rub out.

The impression of Woody ought to stay a long time in college athletics, since it was there he lavished his last and longest fondness. He wrote with authority on every known sport. He wrote with love of the college sports. Every campus from the Alleghanies to the Rockies knew him. The question, "When is Woody coming over?" was incessantly repeated in every football squad when the seasons got under way.

He never lost the zip and zest for football even when the long climb to the press box was an interminable torture. His thinking was with the colleges and the students and the athletes. He never was much concerned about the violence and surface savagery of the professional viewpoint in the grand stands.

Here's a Typical Phrase.

The restraint that marked his writings is found in an article he wrote for the publication The Trib, which is the house newspaper of Tribune Tower. He praised his ancient associates with that kindly phrase so typical of him and concluded: "Walter Eckersall and Harvey T. Woodruff [they being then the last of the old timers] will be glad to talk about themselves or their deeds and exploits in behalf of THE TRIBUNE to any one with three or four hours' spare time who will drop into the sporting department on the fourth floor."

That was as much as Woody would say about himself. He and Ecky were then the last of the old timers. Now they are both gone. But a new race of old timers has grown up to prove that each generation develops its an-

SO LONG, WOODY

This is how he looked in 1905 when he was secretary of the Western Jocky club.

Tributes to Woody from His Friends

Hundreds of friends of Harvey T. Woodruff in the sports and business world telephoned and telegraphed their sympathy to THE TRIBUNE yesterday. A few of the many tributes paid him follow:

John D. Hertz—The news of Harvey's death came as a deep shock to me. He was best man at my wedding, and I had worked as a reporter under him in 1900, when he was sports editor of the old Morning Record. Even then, thirty-seven years ago, I was profoundly impressed by his judicial temperament. He never took advantage of an enemy, nor used his position for a friend. To me he possessed this judicial temperament to a greater degree than any other man I ever have known. He was eminently honest and decent, and it is a genuine pity to have lost him so early in life.

Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university—The death of Harvey Woodruff has deprived an extraordinary number of people of a personal friend. At Northwestern university we have always looked upon him as a member of the inner family. Evanston has regarded him as one of her leading citizens. The Chicago area has esteemed him as one of its most outstanding personalities.

Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference athletic commissioner—In the passing of Harvey Woodruff the Big Ten loses one of its strongest boosters. He was known on every campus, and his coming to report a game was a real event. In his writing he dealt in a kindly, sympathetic vein which met with approval from both winner and loser. His loss will be felt keenly on every Big Ten campus.

Col. Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf association—Harvey Woodruff and I were stanch friends for over thirty years. He was not only a most lovable character personally but served the turf faithfully through fair weather and foul. Broad-minded, conscientious, and fair, he will be missed not only by his newspaper readers but by all lovers of the turf.

William Harridge, president of the American league—It was with much regret that I learned of the passing of Harvey T. Woodruff. During his long service in the sports department of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, he contributed much to the upbuilding of baseball as we enjoy it today. His presence will be greatly missed at all sporting events.

K. L. Wilson, director of athletics, Northwestern university — Harvey Woodruff was one of the finest friends amateur athletics ever had. Kindly, sympathetic, a true lover of all sports, he always was a booster for the best in athletics. He loved to take football trips and visit with coaches and players. At Northwestern university he will be mourned as a neighbor and one of our best friends.

He'll Seek Title in Solitude as Braddock Sleeps.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—James J. Braddock is scheduled to defend his world's heavyweight championship against Max Schmeling, the German who once held the title, in a 15 round bout at the Madison Square Garden bowl in Long Island City tomorrow night. But Braddock is only scheduled to defend the championship. He will not do so tomorrow night.

Schmeling is ready to fight. The Garden corporation is ready to promote the fight and there are many thousands of fans, undoubtedly, who would like to see it. Despite this seemingly happy setup, however, Braddock, without whom a championship fight right now is an impossibility, has evinced no interest whatever in the engagement, although he has known of the appointment with Schmeling for some time.

He's Too Busy.

Instead, the champion will remain in snug retreat at Grand Beach, Mich., where he is training for a bout with Joe Louis at Chicago on June 22. Word from Braddock, and from his voluble manager, Joe Gould, has come east, time and again recently, but every utterance has had to do with the Louis fight. Not a word about Schmeling.

In the face of Braddock's intention of skipping tomorrow night's appointment Schmeling finds himself in a singular spot. For the last month he has been aware of Braddock's Chicago leanings, yet he trained industriously, every day, in the hope the title holder would change his mind. Convinced, now, that there will be no fight, at least not at present, Schmeling, nevertheless, will be called on to perform one more function, an empty gesture, perhaps, but one which will aid him considerably should the case ever come before a court of law.

This final gesture will be the weighing in ceremony. Tomorrow afternoon Schmeling will appear at the New York state athletic commission and submit to the customary physical examination. Then the plot will thicken.

Up to Commission.

The commission will take action designed to penalize Braddock. The latter, last week, was ordered to appear in this state five days before the scheduled fight, an order which he ignored. For his indifference to the summons, Braddock left himself open for suspension and forfeiture of his title.

What Schmeling does after the weighing in depends entirely on the commission, his manager, Joe Jacobs, declared today. When asked if Schmeling would go to the bowl at night ready to fight, Jacobs responded, "That will be up to the commission. If they tell us to show up, we will."

The Garden, too, will await advice from the commission. The bowl is in readiness and ticket sellers, ushers, and the various attendants can be installed at a moment's notice.

Found! Easy Way to Earn $25: Spar Two Rounds with Louis

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Kenosha, Wis., June 2.—Three dusky gents, George Higgs, Leonard Dixon, and Seal [Blubber] Harris tapped Julian Black's pocketbook for $75 this afternoon on the general assumption they were being paid as workout mates for Joe Louis.

The $75, being training expenses, comes off the top of Challenger Louis' share of the split at Comiskey park the night of June 22, when Joe meets Champion Jim Braddock.

This afternoon Louis didn't get his money's worth. For that matter, the 119 who paid 55 cents each to sun themselves on the bleachers of Kenosha's federal money park, may have wondered why they hadn't applied for the job of training Louis. Twenty-five dollars per two rounds could have been earned with little more exertion than each spectator exhibited while watching the slow motion mazurka in the ring.

Joe's So Tired of It All.

This was Louis' eighth workout. He has eleven more scheduled. Joe still may be the panther man of pugilism. He may be the next heavyweight champion of the world. But this afternoon he merely was a bored young man going through the monotonous motions of the training ring.

Louis set the tempo for the afternoon session by scuffling about the ring for one round, allegedly shadow boxing. Then came George Higgs, the first sparmate. Higgs began in reverse and danced cautiously away from shuffling Joe for two rounds. His attack resembled that of Bob Pastor when that New Yorker stayed upright for ten rounds. Higgs probably couldn't hurt Louis if Joe offered a free swing at an unprotected chin. And only at the end of the second round was Higgs at all disturbed by Louis' punches.

Leonard Dixon followed Higgs on the program. This two rounder, except for a flurry of punches in the second round, and what passed for a knockdown in the first round, was as exciting as a kite flying contest. Both events, the knockdown and the strained excitement of round two, are suspect.

It Takes 22 Men to Care for a Champ

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Grand Beach, Mich., June 2.—Twenty-two able bodied men have been called into service here to attend to the job of getting World's Champion James J. Braddock ready for the defense of his title against Joe Louis on the night of June 22.

Itemized, they are as follows:

One trainer—Doc Robb, New York.

Six sparring partners—Charley Massera, Pittsburgh; Jack McCarthy, Boston; Maxie Roesch, Dallas; Henry Cooper, New York; Bill Irby, Eufala, Alabama; Maxie Long, Dallas.

Four sparring partner trainers.

One camp manager—Eddie Long, Chicago.

One secretary—Tex Sullivan, New York.

One companion—Sol Gould, New York, brother of Manager Joe Gould.

This number of gentlemen-in-waiting may vary slightly from the retinue of body servants Champion Jim had three years eight months ago when he was on relief but the champ himself has not changed one iota.

Braddock is quartered with his staf in Pinewood inn about a quarter of a mile from the shores of Lake Michigan on a winding road that leads from the Golfmore hotel to one of Michigan's main east-west highways.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HARVEY WOODRUFF, the man who never spoke ill of anybody, is dead. . . . To the millions who read his column and his reports of boxing matches, football contests, horse races, and baseball games for more than a quarter of a century he was known as a reliable, entertaining, and fair commentator. . . . To me he was the most dependable associate I ever have had in newspaper work. . . . He always was on the job. . . . He never rushed away from an assignment. . . . He usually was the first there and invariably the last to leave. . . . For thoroughness in sports reporting he has had no superior. . . . Doing his job gave him more thrills than anything else in life. . . . Less than 18 hours before he died he was making plans with this writer for covering the Braddock-Louis fight. . . . Fairness in his articles was a fetish with him. . . . If he couldn't say anything good about an athlete he wouldn't say anything. . . . He was an outstanding disciple of the school of sports reporting which advocates constructive, not destructive, criticism. . . . He was the kind of a fellow who took the trouble to write you a letter and thank you for any little trivial service you performed for him without knowing that it was a service. . . . He was the first to call up with a congratulatory message when opportunity arose. . . . He never became too big or too blasé to be thoughtless—to me, at any rate. . . . These are only a few of the reasons why his name will be etched forever in the memory of those who knew him best. . . .

The Professional Golfers' association tournament at the Pittsburgh Field club last week was one of the most profitable in history. . . . A total of more than $20,000 was realized in advance ticket sales, programs, and concessions. . . . Trainer George Conway is just beginning to regain his speech, which has been lost since War Admiral, Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, became nervous during a schooling session at Belmont recently and kicked a board fence, neatly fitting his hoof between two long, rusty nails. . . . A fraction of an inch either way and War Admiral's career might have been ruined. . . . Pitcher Gene Schott is the only native Cincinnatian with the Reds. . . . Bill Lanier, the George Washington university pitcher who will join the Senators' Trenton farm team this week, worked his way through school by singing in choirs. . . . The Pittsburgh ball club has been known as the Pirates since 1890. . . . Alvin Crowder, the old Tiger pitcher who quit because he didn't think he could do Detroit any good, is manager of a semi-pro team in Winston-Salem, N. C., which lost 29 of its first 30 games. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—Joe Dundee, Baltimore boxer, won the world welterweight title when he pounded out a 15 round decision over Pete Latzo before a crowd of 30,000 in New York. . . . The White Sox defeated Boston, 5 to 1, and moved within a game and a half of first place. . . . H. D. Brown, California capitalist, announced that the American National Jocky club of Chicago had purchased a 400 acre tract of ground at Arlington Heights, Ill.

FRICK SUSPENDS DIZZY DEAN FOR NOT APOLOGIZING

Star Ordered Off Field in Brooklyn.

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Jerome Herman [Dizzy] Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitching star, today was suspended indefinitly by President Ford Frick of the National league. The date of his reinstatement will depend upon the outcome of a conference tomorrow morning among Dean, Manager Frisch, Frick, and Supervisor of Umpires Ernest C. Quigley.

Ford Frick.

Dean's punishment was meted out for "conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball," according to the terse statement from Frick given to the press by Quigley at Ebbets field just before the Cardinal-Dodger game today.

Frick Is Upset.

At his office later, Frick made no effort to hide his wrath. Before him lay a copy of the Belleville [Ill.] Daily Advocate of May 26, with a red crayon mark around the opening paragraph of a front page story which quoted Dizzy as referring to Umpire Barr and Frick as "the two biggest crooks in baseball today."

"It's now strictly up to Dean as to whether his suspension lasts twenty-four hours or three months. I've played along with him until I don't see how we can overlook his actions any longer.

"It's got down to a question whether Dean is bigger than the National league, and I don't think he is.

"Dean can settle this quickly if he admits the errors of his ways, apologizes to the league for the things he has said or implied, and puts it in writing."

Frisch preferred to withhold comment, but Dean talked willingly.

"I'm supposed to have said at a smoker in a church in Belleville, Ill., that Umpire Barr and Ford Frick were the two biggest crooks in baseball," he said.

Diz Wants an Apology.

"I didn't say anything of the kind and there were plenty of people there who could testify to that. Shucks," he grinned, "I was in a church and I'd not be likely to pop off like that in a church, anyway, would I?

"They asked me to apologize," continued Dean, "but I ain't going to do it, because I ain't got nothing to apologize for.

"Why," he barked, a tinge of pink showing in his ears, "they even sent a letter of apology already written for me to sign. How about that? As if I couldn't write my own letters!

"I didn't sign it and I ain't going to sign it," he added indignantly.

"Frick even wanted me to apologize for throwing at the Giants," said Dizzy. "How does he know I was throwin' at 'em? Can't prove it, can he?

"And," warming to his subject, "how about Frick apologizing to me for some of the things he's said about me and about my wife.

"Pat [Mrs. Dean] told me I'd have to go to Frick's office the next time we got to New York and punch him right in the nose, and I was yellow if I didn't."

Mrs. Dean Is Irked.

Mrs. Dean's ire had been stirred by a statement in the Sporting News recently and attributed to the National league president, in which Frick allegedly referred to her as a "dominating" woman.

Today's suspension and Dean's reported remarks about Frick and Umpire Barr are an outgrowth of the Cardinal-Giant fight in St. Louis May 19. In that game, Carl Hubbell's 22d consecutive victory, a balk was called on Dean by Umpire Barr and a free-for-all followed.

SHOUN WHIPS CHAMPIONS 3D TIME ON 4 HITS

But Root Has to Aid Him in Ninth.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—Seven straight and seven different winning pitchers. That's the record of that team they were calling the crippled Cubs a few weeks back. The No. 7 victory was a 2 to 1 decision over the Giants this afternoon and the seventh winning pitcher in the string is Clyde Shoun, thrice conqueror of the New Yorkers this year.

Until two were out in the ninth it seemed certain that Shoun would be the seventh Cub pitcher to go all the way. But Charley Root had to go in and strike out Sam Leslie to terminate the battle after Burges Whitehead had tripled and scored on a wild pitch and George Davis and Dick Bartell had walked, all after the first two batsmen in the ninth had been retired.

Gaining Every Day.

The seven game winning streak has lifted the Cubs from a poor fourth to a half game behind the second place Giants and they now remained apace with the Pirates, two and a half games behind the league leaders.

The Pirates and Giants will slash at each others' throats over the week-end, after the Cubs move on to Boston.

Today's outcome evens the season series between the Cubs and Giants, with Shoun accounting for all the Chicago triumphs. Lefty Clyde now has won four, the other as a reliever against Boston, and he has lost only one, to Brooklyn on the last eastern trip.

The Cubs made only four hits off Harry Gumbert, Giant starter, and none off Dick Coffman. But they made three of the four smacks before any one was out in the fourth and that bloomed into the victory total.

Bunching the Producers.

The fourth inning business included singles by Bill Herman and Rip Collins, Frank Demaree's second hit, a double, an intentional pass to Gabby Hartnett, and Joe Marty's infield bouncer, which drove in the winning run.

The first threat of the contest was developed by the Cubs in the second inning. Demaree led off with a single to the left field wall and advanced on Hack's sacrifice. Whitehead made a nice catch of Hartnett's looper to short right and Marty flied to Ripple.

Ott opened the home second with a single to center and got to third on infield outs supplied by Mancuso and McCarthy. The inning ended when Demaree went back fast to grab Whitehead's drive.

That Big Fourth.

The Cubs started out after a million runs in the fourth inning, but had to be content with a pair. Herman opened with a single and went to third on Collins' single. Demaree then doubled to left center, Herman scoring and Collins stopping at third. The runners held their bases while Hack sent a gentle bouncer to Whitehead, then Hartnett was given an intentional pass to fill the bases. Marty grounded out to McCarthy, Collins scoring, after which Jurges was given

H. T. WOODRUFF, VETERAN SPORTS WRITER, IS DEAD

cientness and its traditions and its flavors.

Woody was born in Brazil, Ind., on April 9, 1875. It was one of his whimsies to speculate on the pronunciation of Brazil, alleging that "Bray-zil" was the native twang. His father was Amos H. Woodruff, a coal mine operator. The family moved to Chicago before Woody became of school age. He passed his primary schooling on the west side and became one of the celebrated persons to graduate from the old West Division High school. When he had taken some extra work in the Chicago academy, he entered the University of Chicago in 1895.

Gets Newspaper Job.

After two years he ran head on into a complication, the decision of which seemed to determine his future thought. He had been correspondent for Chicago newspapers. The university authorities complained of his reports. The newspapers complained if he did not report. So he quit the university and went newspapering.

His first employment was on the Times-Herald. He was the sports editor at $25 a week. In an unguarded moment he proposed that the management pay him $28 a week. The management dismissed him. He was sports editor of the Chicago Record for three years. And then in February, 1901, he came to THE TRIBUNE.

A Tribune Sports Editor.

After three years he became interested in racing and became secretary and treasurer of the old Western Jocky club. And after five years of this he returned to become sports editor of THE TRIBUNE. He continued as sports editor until 1920 when he retired from that post to conduct the WAKE OF THE NEWS.

His experience with racing led him to an enthusiasm for the Kentucky Derby which had much to do with establishing that event as one of the first spectacles of the American track. While he devoted most of his attention to conducting THE WAKE OF THE NEWS he was so deeply engrossed in the general program of sports events that he constantly sought assignments to cover football games and racing events and very often, in spite of ill health, would travel long distances and struggle through the throngs at a ringside to describe an important boxing match.

Braves Zero Weather.

Two years ago George Huff, director of athletics at the University of Illinois, offered Woody a wheel chair and attendants to help him into the press box. Woody declined. His health became definitly frail in the fall of 1932 when he attended a football game at the University of Minnesota which was played in zero weather. He refused a sheltered place in the press box because to have occupied it would have obstructed his view of the game. He fell a victim of pneumonia. This strain upon his heart was never relieved.

For several years, since his illness, he had spent the greater part of the winter in Florida. He returned early in April this year and though he was not strong, he delayed consulting his physician until after the opening of the baseball season. He felt that he should attend the first game and write something about it and he was fairly certain that the doctor's orders, if observed, would keep him away. He was right.

Misses Kentucky Derby.

A few days after he wrote his story of opening day the doctor ordered him to the hospital. He wrote of it as follows in the next to last Wake which appeared on April 29:

"Well, Arch, I completed my expense account and worked very hard on it and the difference between what I could charge you and the amount I spent worried me enough so the doctor thinks I ought to go to bed for a few days of rest and quiet. But I'll be seeing you soon. Regards.

Harvey T. Woodruff.

'P. S.—I hope the expense account doesn't make you ill, too."

He was still in the hospital when Kentucky Derby week rolled around and for the first time in 20 years he missed a Derby. But he listened to the radio broadcast.

The day before his death he was still worrying about when he would get back to work.

Hold Funeral Tomorrow.

"I've thought up a lot of good things to write," he said. And then he jokingly deplored his inability to hold a pencil.

Woody was married in 1909 to Miss Eva Hammon. Besides his widow he is survived by two daughters, Alberta and Mrs. Thornton W. Snead Jr. of Evanston, and one granddaughter.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at the First Congregational church of Evanston, just across the street from Woody's home at 425 Grove street, at 2:30 o'clock by the Rev. John Hayworth, chaplain of the Forty club, and Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown, pastor of the church. Burial will be private at Memorial Park cemetery.

The body will be at the undertaker's at 200 East Erie street until the time of the funeral.

Tributes Pour in from Harvey Woodruff's Friends

Notre Dame—Kindly, gentle, and keen, Harvey Woodruff was the Lord's gift to sport. I know of no finer personality connected with athletics. His generous hand of encouragement will be greatly missed. Certainly sorry to hear of the paper's loss, and I know he is a loss to all of us.

Robert C. Zuppke, football coach, University of Illinois—Harvey Woodruff was one of the fairest men I ever knew. He was able to see both sides of a question. His influence was always for the best. He was a lover of athletics, especially college competition, and was friendly and sympathetic in his writings. I am only one of the thousands indebted to him for kindnesses when starting out in life. His death is a great loss to athletics and journalism.

Clark Shaughnessy, University of Chicago football coach—I had heard of Harvey Woodruff long before I met him. He was one of the best known sports writers in America, and one of the most respected. We at Chicago particularly regret his passing. He seemed always to take an especial interest in Maroon athletics. Such was his friendly spirit that I have no doubt many other institutions likewise think of him as their special friend. But because of his student days here and his long association with the athletic folk of the Midway, I'm sure we had a high place in his affections, as he had in ours.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, for 40 years football coach at the University of Chicago and now coach at the College of the Pacific, Stockton, Cal.—Exceedingly sorry to learn that Harvey Woodruff has passed on. He was a fine sportsman and one of the kindest and fairest of commentators. His writings on controversial matters were always distinguished by comprehensive understanding and sound judgment. He exerted an especially helpful influence in his statesmanlike comments during the earlier periods of intercollegiate and professional sports in the middle west.

Noble E. Kizer, director of athletics and football coach, Purdue university; It is hard to believe that Harvey Woodruff is gone. Few men have enjoyed the wholehearted confidence of his colleagues in the athletic field that he possessed and richly deserved. His "Help, Help" was more than a figure of speech in collegiate athletics, for his kindly interest in promoting and encouraging all that is best was unflagging. I can hardly find words to express my personal sorrow and I know that his loss as a staunch defender of the highest of athletic principles is second only to his loss to his immediate family and co-workers.

Fielding H. Yost, director of athletics, University of Michigan—Harvey Woodruff was for many years a shining example to us of what a good sports writer could be—one who could not only write of his subject intelligently, but also interpret it in terms of all that is fine and upstanding in clean play and sportsmanship. His place will be hard to fill in your columns and in our hearts.

J. Louis Comiskey, president of the White Sox—Harvey Woodruff has been known to sports followers for 40 years. He was a great person. He was a friend of my father's as well as myself. The sport world has lost one of its stanchest and most constructive writers and a great friend of every true sportsman.

Z. G. Clevenger, A. N. McMillin, and E. C. Hayes, director of athletics, football coach, and track coach, respectively, at the University of Indiana—We feel a keen sense of personal loss in Harvey T. Woodruff's death. His intimate linking of the good old past to the present and future with a wholesome, humorous philosophy of athletics has inspired and encouraged our boys to great achievements. We cherish his memory and extend our sympathy to your staf in his loss.

L. W. St. John, director of athletics, Ohio State university—Ohio State university mourns sincerely the loss of Harvey T. Woodruff. He was a real person, universally admired and respected. To know him was to love him. He always has supported the best in intercollegiate athletics with rare sympathy and intelligence. He was absolute tops in his chosen field. Please convey our sincere sympathy to his family.

Lynn O. Waldorf, football coach, Northwestern university—Every follower of sports mourns the loss of Harvey Woodruff. He was welcomed everywhere as a real friend and universally respected as a fine, constructive influence. All of us at Northwestern university feel his loss most keenly.

Frank G. McCormick, director of athletics, University of Minnesota: I was sorry to learn of Harvey Woodruff's death. Harvey, through his writing, made a great contribution to the Western conference and intercollegiate athletics. Minnesota and I have lost a loyal friend.

T. Nelson Metcalf, athletic director at the University of Chicago: There was no finer man in sports journalism than Harvey Woodruff. I am grieved at his untimely death. He was the first Chicago sports writer to interview me after my appointment to the University of Chicago; his attitude was friendly then and has remained so continuously. This friendliness was of the very essence of his character. It shone through his writing and, combined with his thorough knowledge of athletics, served to give his column and his articles in THE TRIBUNE an unusual, personal note. Certainly he has been a splendid friend of sports and the ideal of sportsmanship.

George Getz, member of the Illinois Athletic commission: The sporting world has lost a great asset in Harvey Woodruff. He's been a friend of mine for 40 years. His shoes will be hard to fill.

Bernie Bierman, football coach, University of Minnesota: On behalf of myself and the Minnesota football staf, I extend sympathy to the Woodruff family and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. We deeply regret the passing of Harvey Woodruff, who was a great writer and gentleman and a fine personal friend.

Jim Kelly, former director of athletics, De Paul university; present track coach, University of Minneapolis: Harvey Woodruff was a fine gentleman and his articles were always fair and considerate. His death will be a great loss to all college coaches. We extend our sympathy to his family and THE TRIBUNE.

Joe Triner, president of the United States Soccer association and the state athletic commission—I've followed Harvey Woodruff's writings for a great many years and always admired his unbiased, highly interesting stories. The world has lost a great citizen.

WILDCATS NAME CAPTAINS FOR 4 SPRING SPORTS

Another sophomore, Marvin Wachman of Milwaukee, was named to lead next year's tennis team, and Chester Emsley of Fort Wayne, Ind., a sprinter, received the track captaincy. The baseball squad selected George Lymper of Argo, Ill., regular third baseman. Lymper is a brother of James Lymperopolous, former university of Illinois third baseman.

together but once a day. They assemble in the big dining room of Pinewood inn at the dinner hour, which the champ says, must be 5:45 o'clock each afternoon.

Seating Is Informal.

Braddock takes his place at the head of the long table at exactly that hour. Otherwise the problem of precedence rests lightly on the camp. As witness the table seating. One day Manager Gould is at the place of honor on the champ's right hand and the next day it may be Barney Ross or Tex Sullivan or Solly Seeman or the mysterious bouncer whom everybody calls Mr. Am.

Tonight Henry Cooper, the spar boy who is fast winning the gastronomy title of the camp was at the place of honor. He was being lectured by Champ Jim. He had showed up at this afternoon's drill so serenely full of ham and eggs that he was unable to keep his mind on his work. Members of the camp party can come and go as they please for breakfast and lunch.

Likes Kidney Stew.

The champ himself is not a big eater. His favorite dish is kidney stew. He says no other chef in the world can prepare and season it quite so deliciously as Chef Bauer does it. And the champ has tasted kidney stew prepared by chefs in many parts of the world.

Afraid that he might overeat himself Champion Jim will permit the willing chef to serve kidney stew only twice a week. But on those days Braddock runs Spar Boy Henry Cooper a close race for marathon eating honors.

Forty yards behind Pinewood inn is a canvas covered ring. When the weather is bad Braddock works with his sparring partner in this tiny arena which seats about 150 spectators. On back another 100 yards is an uncovered ring surrounded by a canvas walled arena. Several hundred can congregate there.

Earns Money for Steaks.

In that one Champion Jim gets the money to pay for the steaks, the ham and eggs, and the beer his retinue will consume over a six weeks period of training activity. The curious, on week days, may look on for 50 cents, but if their curiosity is aroused only on the week-end—Saturdays and Sundays—Champion Jim makes them plank down a dollar to see him maul his sparring partners around.

Easiest Job? Two Rounds Against Louis

by putting his hands under him. Then he just sat and waited for a drink of water and a couple of gulps of fresh air before continuing.

If Louis wasn't loafing in the second round, he certainly should say he was. Dixon committed lese majesty, to say the least, and cracked Joe twice on the side of the head with his right hand. It was the same punch with which Max Schmeling started Joe listening to the mocking bird. Today, Joe didn't wince for Dixon's right hand, generally speaking, is a dud.

The Harris-Louis two rounder was climactic buffoonery for the afternoon's farce. Seal hasn't forgotten any of the tricks of holding.

At swing your partner no one is better. But the genial Harris long since has been overtaken by beer and skittles. He tires thinking of work.

So Seal wrestled. He held. He danced. And finally, in compensation for playing the clown and cornered by his own exhaustion, he sat down against the ropes. Ostensibly two light taps by Louis caused this horrible execution.

Triner Misses Fiasco.

It was just as well Chairman Joe Triner and George Getz of the Illinois athletic commission didn't watch this afternoon's show. Perhaps by Tuesday, the day now selected for their trip and the official physical examination of Louis by the commission physician, the training cast will have been improved.

Salvatore Ruggerielo, who can fight when he wishes, reported today. He punched the bag. Tomorrow one Gene Bovine, who comes highly recommended but sight unseen, will arrive from Pittsburgh.

Trainer Jack Blackburn nonchalantly watched today's foot races and the brief head thumping his boy Louis received. Jack didn't comment. Julian Black also was present, but John Roxborough, co-manager, was A. W. O. L.

U. S. College Golfers Open Play June 28

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The thirty-ninth competition for the championships of the Intercollegiate Golf Association of America will be held at the Oakmont Country club, Oakmont, Pa., from June 28 through July 3. The individual and team titles will be decided under the rules of the United States Golf association.

Entries must be filed with the U. S. G. A. office, 73 East 57th street, New York City, by 6 p. m. June 6. Each institution may be represented by not more than nine players, from four to six of whom may enter the team championship. Their names will automatically be entered for the individual title.

Players whose schools are not entered in the team competition may enter for the individual championship.

The team title will be decided on June 28 and 29, via the 36 hole medal play qualifying round for the individual match play. The school returning the lowest foursome aggregate for these two days will take possession of the Maxwell cup for one year.

Match play for the individual crown will begin with two 18 hole battles on June 30, followed by 36 hole matches through the final on July 3.

Chicago golfers will have an opportunity to witness one of the best exhibitions of the season Sunday at the Evanston club, when a foursome of leading amateurs will pair off at 18 holes. John Lehman of Olympia Fields, present C. D. G. A. champion, and Chick Evans of Edgewater, former national open and amateur titleholder, will meet Steve Williams of the home club, semi-finalist in the state amateur, and Russell Martin of Flossmoor.

The Cherry Hills Golf club, west of Flossmoor, which will be the scene of the annual western junior tournament on July 13, 14, 15 and 16, has undergone improvements which make it one of the best daily fee layouts in the district. Chief change has been the instalation of a fairway sprinkler system. The club is leased and operated by Jack Daray and Charley Nash.

33 SCHOOLS SEND TRACK ATHLETES TO CENTRAL MEET

Big Ten Represented by Seven Teams.

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—[Special.]—Thirty-three schools, headed by seven from the Western conference, three from the I. C. 4-A. and Notre Dame, have filed entries for the twelfth annual Central Intercollegiate track meet at Marquette university stadium Friday afternoon and night.

The meet will mark the final bid of midwestern athletes for selection as sectional representatives in the National Collegiate A. A. meet to be held at Berkeley, Cal., June 18-19. N. C. A. A. officials will be here to make their final choices.

Woodruff to Compete.

One of the strongest fields since the centrals were instituted in 1926 by Knute K. Rockne, Notre Dame; Ralph H. Young, Michigan State, the 1937 referee, and Conrad M. Jennings, Marquette, has been entered this year. Jenninggs, in charge of the games, today saw a possibility of 10 new records.

Athletes to compete here have bettered the meet marks in the 440 yard, 880 yard, mile and two mile runs; the high and low hurdles, javelin, discus, pole vault, and high jump.

Finals at Night.

Johnny Woodruff, Pittsburgh's Olympic 800 meter champion, carries a threat in both middle distance events, while Don Lash, Tommy Deckard and Jim Smith, Indiana, and Chuck Fenske, Wisconsin, are stars in the longer runs.

Preliminaries will start at 2:30 p. m. Friday, but all finals will be held beneath flood lights that night.

BOB OLIN SEEKS TO REGAIN 175 LB. TITLE TONIGHT

St. Louis, Mo., June 2.—(AP)—Bob Olin, who lost his world light heavyweight championship to John Henry Lewis Oct. 31, 1935, will try to regain the title from Lewis tomorrow night in the same ring.

The bout is scheduled for 15 rounds and the gate was expected to reach $30,000.

Chocolate Whips Reid for Another Comeback Victory

DODGERS WHIP CARDS TO NEAR FIRST DIVISION

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 2.—(AP)—With Van Mungo pitching his seventh victory of the year and Heinie Manush leading a ten hit attack with two doubles and two singles, the Dodgers today whipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 2, and moved to within a half game of the first division.

It was a bad afternoon all around for the Cardinals, opening their second invasion of the east. Before the game Dizzy Dean was suspended by National League President Ford Frick. In the first inning Coach Mike Gonzales was banished from the park by Umpire Babe Pinelli.

In the eighth inning Dodger Manager Burleigh Grimes was expelled for the fourth time this season.

FELLER RESTS IN MILWAUKEE; HIS NAME IS 'SMITH'

Milwaukee, Wis., June 2.—(AP)—The name on the hotel register was "Bob Smith," but the chap who opened the door today was Bob Feller, 18 year old Cleveland pitcher, whose sore arm has caused the fans so much concern.

Feller said he had come to Milwaukee to rest and thought it best to appear incognito. While here, he said, he is visiting with William Zuber, pitcher for the Milwaukee Brewers, who comes from Homestead, Ia., just a short distance from Feller's home town—Van Meter. He denied he has come to see a noted bone and joint specialist.

COCHRANE ABLE TO SMOKE; CUB PITCHERS CALL

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—Further evidence that Mickey Cochrane, catcher-manager of the Detroit Tigers, is recovering from the effects of a multiple skull fracture, was seen today when Cochrane was permitted to smoke three cigarets and was placed on a more substantial diet.

Dr. Robert Emmett Walsh, team physician of the New York Yankees, said Cochrane was making satisfactory progress, and that his diet was being increased. He was to be given a dinner including lamb chops and vegetables.

Visitors at St. Elizabeth's hospital included Dr. R. B. McClure, chief surgeon of Ford hospital, Detroit, who accompanied Mrs. Cochrane. Other visitors were three members of the Chicago Cubs' pitching staf, Larry French, Bill Lee and Leroy Parmelee.

Cochrane was injured eight days ago when struck in the head by one of Irving [Bump] Hadley's pitches in a Yankee-Tiger game.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—Larry French will pitch for the Cubs in the middle game of the Cub-Giants series tomorrow. Manager Bill Terry, the close lipped man from Tennessee, is preserving his usual secrecy about his selection.

The Cubs, after sweltering in Chicago Sunday and blistering in St. Louis Monday and en route here, got a break today. A heat wave, which made yesterday New York's hottest day of the year, today was chased by cool breezes.

an intentional pass to again fill the bases. Shoun forced Jurges, Bartell to Whitehead.

The first hit after the Cub uprising in the fourth was the single with which Mancuso opened the Giant seventh. Gus got to second while McCarthy was bouncing out to Collins, then Whitehead fouled to Hack and Danning, batting for Gumbert, fouled to Collins.

Bartell opened the eighth with a Texas leaguer to left and was forced by Chiozza. Chiozza was forced by Moore. Davis walked on four pitches but Ott popped to Herman.

Coffman walked Hartnett at the start of the ninth. Marty bunted and when Coffman threw the ball to center field, Hartnett reached third and Marty first. Jurges was called out on strikes and Shoun hit into a double play.

After Mancuso had sent an easy fly to Demaree and McCarthy had fouled to Hartnett, Whitehead tripled to left center and Davis batting for Coffman, walked. Whitehead scored and Davis took second on a wild pitch. Bartell walked and Haslin was sent up to bat for Chiozza. Root then replaced Shoun, whereupon Leslie batted for Haslin. Root pitched two wide ones to Leslie, then struck him out.

Ranger Wins Test to Pick Cup Defender

Newport, R. I., June 2.—(AP)—Ranger, Harold S. Vanderbilt's new candidate for defense of the America's cup, today trounced Yankee, Gerard B. Lambert's veteran of two previous cup campaigns, by almost six minutes in the opening yacht race of trials to select an opponent for T. O. M. Sopwith's British challenger.

Sopwith has brought over his two blue sloops, Endeavour I. and Endeavour II., but he has not yet decided which he will use in his second attept to lift a trophy Britain has been trying to recover ever since 1851.

Today's sailing contest may well go in the log book as one of the dullest in yachting history. The 30 mile ocean course began at Brenton's reef lightship, outside Newport harbor, and carried the two yachts to the lightship.

Although the race was expected to demonstrate whatever advantage might be found in Yankee's new single head rig, little was proved because the shifting wind simmered the contest down to a procession with no opportunity for maneuvering over sailing tactics. Throughout most of the 30 miles the crews had nothing to do and they lay prone on the windward sides of the decks as idly as seamen on vessels plying the trade winds. Yankee, her supporters were quick to alibi, always was a heavy weather boat and never a ghoster in summer zephyrs.

Day Batters Garrison to Win Decision

Davey Day strengthened his standing as a leading lightweight contender last night at Marigold Gardens by decisively defeating Jimmy Garrison of Kansas City.

Referee Tommy Thomas stopped the one-sided fight after 1 minute 59 seconds in the eighth round. The match was set for ten rounds. Although Garrison was on the verge of a knockout when the referee interfered, Chairman Joe Triner of the Illinois boxing commission ruled it was not a technical knockout. Because of Garrison's cut eyes it was recorded as a decision for Day.

It was Garrison's first defeat in nine contests. Day weighed 136 pounds and Garrison 137.

Sammy Angott, Louisville, junior lightweight was awarded a decision over Pete Lello when Lello was unable to continue because of a badly cut eye. The bout was scheduled for eight rounds but the commission doctor refused to allow Lello to come out for the fifth round. The defeat snapped Lello's string of twenty triumphs.

Threatening weather held the crowd down to 1,790. Gross receipts were $4,651. Other results:

Andy Scrivani defeated Joe Doty [4].

Fight Decisions

At Washington, D. C.—Lou Gevinson knocked out Johnny Pena [7]; Joey Archibald stopped Ray Ingram [7]; Norment Quarles beat Cowboy Howard Scott [10].

At Detroit, Mich.—Milton Shivers beat Gaspare Larossa [10]; Domenic Ceccarelli beat Stanley Evans [10].

Four Military Teams to Ride in Horse Show

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Chicago's Charter Jubilee horse show, which opens next Wednesday, will bring some of the best military teams in the country to Soldiers' field. These army riders will round out an entry list that already includes most of the leading private stables.

The battle for supremacy in the military events will involve the 61st Cavalry of New York, Fort Sheridan, Fort Leavenworth, and the 124th Field artillery of Chicago.

The 61st cavalry will come in as the favorite, for its riders have been sweeping through all the eastern events. They won in the national horse show, the Squadron A show and also at West Point. They have never before competed in Chicago.

Col. Frost Leads Cavalry.

Col. H. H. Frost will lead the 61st cavalry riders. He will be mounted on Jeb Stuart, which has made quite a reputation in horse show circles. The other members of the team will be Lieut. Chase Donaldson, Lieut. E. Vernon Biddle, and Lieut. J. W. Morris.

Fort Sheridan's team strength has not yet been established, but a lineup of capable riders has been assured. Maj. Paul Morris, Capt. Henry Jernigan, Lieut. Marlow, and Capt. Edwin Greiner will be available.

The 124th Field Artillery team of Capt. Romeo Mura, Lieut. Laddie Paschl, Lieut. Don Pon, and Lieut. John Milner recently went to Kansas to match its skill against Fort Leavenworth and was defeated. The Chicago riders believe they will have a better chance next week in their home city.

Cowboy and Indian Riding.

The Charter Jubilee show promises to be a spectacle as well as a test of riding skill and equine perfection. The management is planning a fast moving program of subsidiary events to keep the crowd entertained during lulls.

A group of Kansas City youngsters known as the Juvenile Rough Riders will put on exhibitions of cowboy and Indian horsemanship. The troupe consists of boys and girls between 4½ and 15 years old.

From Fort Sheridan will come three units to add to the exhibitions. There will be the Lake Shore Lancers, the Rough Riding Rodeo troop, and a picked group of 14th cavalrymen who will take care of salutes to the colors and to distinguished guests.

The Lake Shore Lancers, clad in blue coats, buff breeches, and white helmets, will go through intricate maneuvers accompanied by music. Their exercises will be climaxed by a cavalry charge.

The Rough Riders will perform a series of dangerous and spectacular stunts such as building a seven man pyramid on three galloping horses. They also will jump through hoops of fire. One of the riders will send his horse over a human hurdle. He also will jump the animal over a table where his fellow soldiers are playing cards. A clown horse which climbs a ladder and goes to sleep while being ridden will be included in the Fort Sheridan mounts.

Ring Commission Bans Milling, Gray, Logan for 1 Year

Varias Milling, Los Angeles, Cal., featherweight; Dave Gray, fight trainer, and Chuck Logan, Rainbo Fronton matchmaker, yesterday were found guilty of violation of the law governing boxing in this state and their licenses suspended for one year by Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioner George Getz of the Illinois athletic commission.

The decision was handed down after the board nad investigated charges made by Milling last May 10 that his manager, Tommy O'Loughlin, had "ordered me to lose to Billy Marquart at Marigold May 3."

The accusation was not substantiated and O'Loughlin was cleared of any wrongdoing in connection with the case.

Milling, who easily whipped Marquart, was trained for the encounter by Gray. Logan became involved when he attempted to sign the fighter for a contest with Leo Rodak at the Fronton last month.

Zaharias Given Decision as Rasputin Starts Kicking

George Zaharias was awarded the decision over Ivan Rasputin when the latter was disqualified for kicking in 13 minutes and 35 seconds last night at the Rainbo Fronton. In other bouts, Jack Kogut defeated Danny Winters in 18:34, Boris Demitroff threw Fritz Schnabel, 13:13, and Pete Holtz beat Bobby Samson, 15:00.

SHOWERS CHECK SOX CLIMB; PLAY BOSTON TODAY

Kennedy Picked to Pitch Delayed Opener.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox, who have been carrying on at a giddy pace for the last ten days, were slowed down yesterday. But it wasn't the opposition. The weather was the cause, rain beginning to patter down on Comiskey park about 1 o'clock and forcing a postponement of the series opener with Boston's gilded Red Sox. The washed out game probably will be used to put together a Sunday doubleheader when Joe Cronin's crowd comes this way again next month.

Vernon Kennedy, who was all set for yesterday's assignment, will get the pitching call from Manager Dykes today, provided weather causes no further delay. For the final game tomorrow the Chicago Hose will give the visitors another glimpse of John Whitehead, whom they failed to handle to their advantage recently in a game at Boston. That was the big Texan's initial effort after his two week suspension for failure to maintain a sylphlike figure. The Red Sox mound workmen for the two games probably will be Wes Ferrell and Johnny Marcum.

Look What They've Done.

During the recent successful struggle to escape from tail end company the south siders have compiled a record any team would be happy to duplicate. They captured nine of twelve engagements. This was done by breaking even in two at Boston, winning two of three at Washington, winning three out of four at Cleveland, and sweeping three affairs here with the Browns. Just ahead of this was a fifty-fifty settlement in two at New York, but in between there and Boston the Sox got into difficulties at Philadelphia and lost a pair.

The present status of the Sox is slightly better than it was on June 1 a year ago. At that time they had a record of 19 victories and 21 defeats and were interned in sixth place, three notches below their present berth.

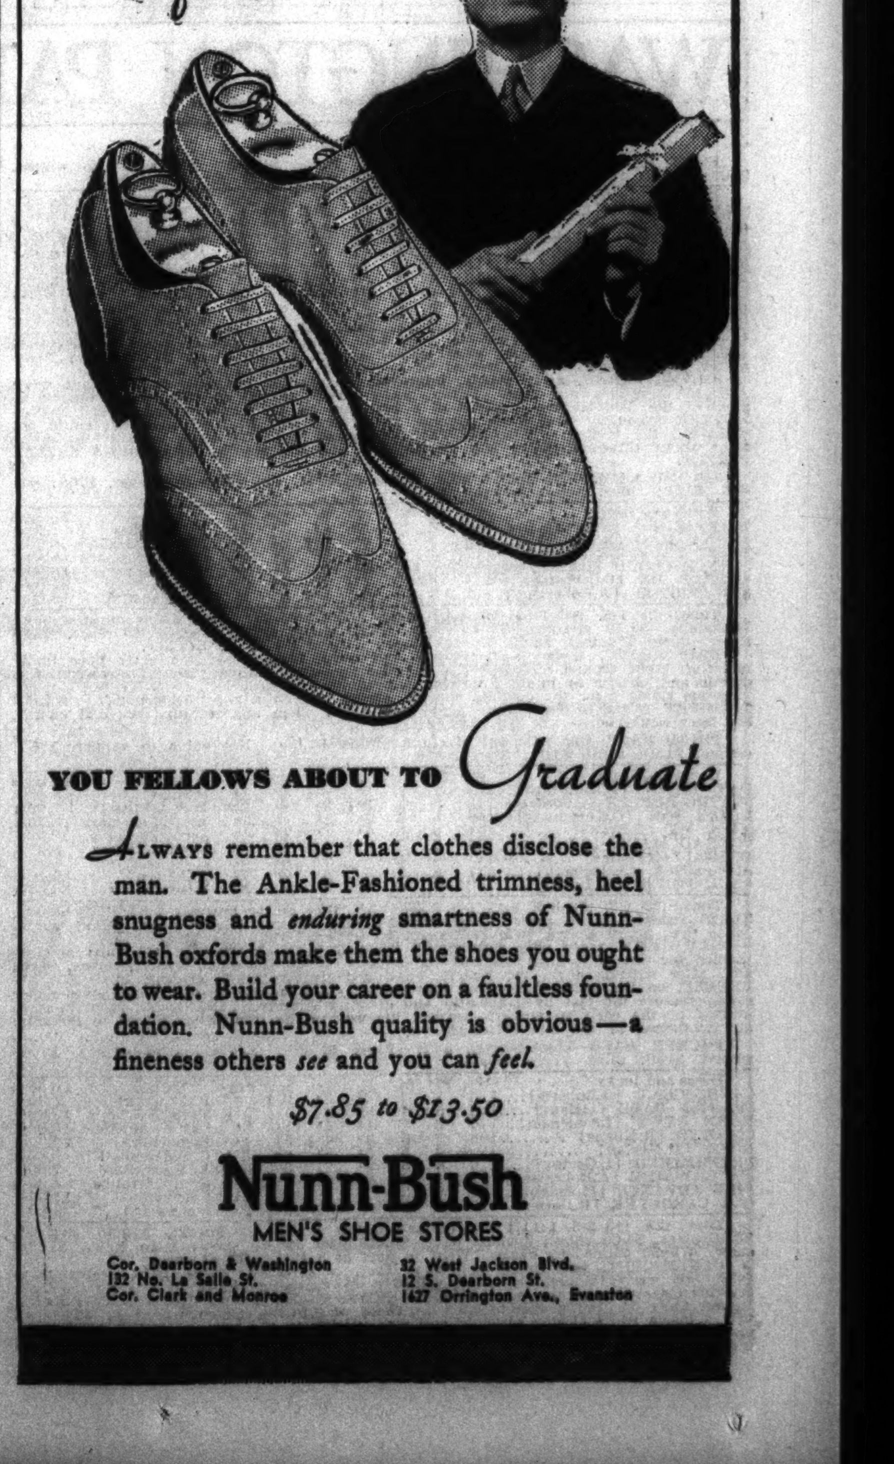
Rip Remains in Slump.

With his pitchers performing near miracles most of the time and his hitters doing heroically, Manager Dykes desires to make only one alteration in his present machine. Rip Radcliff, who last season was a handy man with the bat, isn't producing. If the slump continues and Larry Rosenthal's charley horse completely vanishes, the latter will be returned to his regular job in center and Mike Kreevich, who has been invaluable as a sub in that spot, will go into Radcliff's left field berth.

GEHRIG STARTS 13TH SEASON OF PLAYING STREAK

New York, June 2.—[Special.]—First Baseman Lou Gehrig began the thirteenth year of his consecutive game streak as the Yankees opened their second western trip of the season in Cleveland today. He has participated in 1,843 consecutive American league games.

Gehrig got his start by appearing successfully as a pinch hitter for Wally Pipp on June 1, 1925. The late Miller Huggins, then manager of the Yankees, gave Gehrig a steady job the next day and he's been busy ever since.



INFANTRY TIES TRACK MARK TO WIN HANDICAP

Privileged, Favorite, Runs Last at Homewood.

Privileged, prize three year old in the Calumet Farm stable, may be the apple of Owner Warren Wright's eye, but he's just a plug to the 5,000 who saw him run at Washington Park yesterday.

This young fellow, royally bred by Sir Gallahad III.-Concession, was making his first start of the season after a notable record as a juvenile. But he could have stayed in his stall as far as the betters were concerned. He went to the post an odds on favorite in the six furlong Grade A handicap and finished last.

Maybe He Was Tired.

Running against older horses in what was to be a prep for the American Derby on June 19, Privileged never did show an inclination to run. He broke in seventh place, moved up to sixth, and dropped back to seventh and last place, where he finished.

The winner was the 4 year old Infantry, which took command in the stretch after Black River had set a blistering pace. Hastinola was second and Corinto was third. So it was a field day for the older boys of the turf. Privileged was the only 3 year old in the race.

The six furlongs were run in 1:10 2-5, which equaled the track record. In scoring his victory by four lengths, Infantry paid $30.60 to win. Hastinola's margin over Corinto at the finish was half a length.

Favorite Runs Out.

After Lauerman, a 7 to 5 favorite, had run next to last in the opening race, players of short priced horses had something to cheer about when Drift Along, a 4 to 5 shot, made a show of his rivals to win the second race by five lengths. In his easy romp, the Hal Price Headley two year old tied the track record of :59 1-5 for five furlongs. It was the fastest five furlongs of the meeting.

Those who paired Drift Along with Silver Sarah, the long shot winner of the first race, collected $59.40 for $2 in the daily double.

In winning the Grade C handicap, run as the fourth race, Candescent beat out Spanish Babe in a thrilling finish and was timed in 1:11, a good performance for six furlongs.

Then in the fifth race Talked About came with a burst of speed in the stretch to cover the six furlongs in 1:10 4-5, a bit too fast for Silverette, which came in second, a length behind the winner.

74 Still Left in Washington Park Futurity

The first running of the $40,000 Washington Park Futurity on June 26, the final day of the meeting, has attracted a field of 74 entries, officials of the Homewood track announced yesterday. From the record number of 328 named for the event last Sept. 15, the fittest 74 have survived and are eligible to start the six furlong test for 2 year olds.

Chicago holds a powerful hand for the Futurity. The Milky Way farm of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars and the Calumet farm, owned by Warren Wright, have named 13 between them. Vying with these stables in numbers are the entries of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt and Hal Price Headley, each of whom named six for the race.

Heading the list of eligibles are the Milky Way farm's Warbridge, Tiger, Mountain Ridge and John One, C. V. Whitney's The Chief, rated the best juvenile developed in the east this year, Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King, and the Calumet farm's Bull Lea and Volo Snow.

Jocky Charles Parke, under contract to the Shandon farm stables, incurred a fractured collar bone in the first race yesterday. He was thrown from Prince Max when the 2 year old was knocked to his knees in a jam at the head of the stretch.

Count Morse, the Calumet Farm colt, must carry top weight of 126 pounds when he seeks his fourth stake victory on Saturday in the Great Western handicap at Washington Park. Racing Secretary Charles J. McLennan rates Count Morse six pounds higher than Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance, which was beaten by the Calumet colt in the Blue and Gray handicap last Monday.

MID-DAY SUN FIRST IN 158TH ENGLISH DERBY

American Bred Perifox Finishes Fourth.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

EPSOM DOWNS, England, June 2.—[Special.]—Mid-day Sun, a 100 to 7 shot, whose owner, a woman, had bet nothing on him and whose jocky had been unsuccessful in sixteen previous Derby attempts, won the 158th running of the English Derby today. A crowd of 300,000 saw the race.

In winning Mid-day Sun entered the name of a woman owner, Mrs. G. B. Miller, in Derby history for the first time since the race was inaugurated in 1780. Furthermore, Mid-day Sun defeated twenty other 3 year olds and was threatened seriously only by a favorite. That favorite was William Woodward's American bred Perifox, which at one time appeared to be a certain winner, but finished fourth.

Sandsprite Is Second.

Second to Mid-day Sun was Sandsprite, a 100 to 1 shot, owned by Mrs. F. Nagle, which finished a length and a half back. Another length and a half back was the Aga Khan's Le Grand Duc, bet at 100 to 9, and seeking the wealthy Indian's fourth Derby victory.

The triumph was worth about $250,000 to Mrs. Miller, owner of a stable that contains only one other horse. Of this amount $50,000 was won on the race, while the value of the horse, purchased for $15,000 last year, is estimated to have jumped to $200,000.

Pulls Away On an Incline.

Jocky Beary, who went into bankruptcy only two months ago, rode well. He held Mid-day Sun at sixth position or better, then moved him out in front in the last quarter mile and pulled away from Sandsprite and Le Grand Duc in the final 50 yards while running up an incline. The time, 2:37 4-5, was slow.

Perifox was bet at 7 to 1, as was the co-favorite, Cash Book, which finished far back.

Time, :23 3-5, :47 4-5, 1:00 4-5, 1:07 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Silver Sarah, $26.80 straight, $14.00 place, $8.00 show; Avirab, $11.40 place, $7.00 show; Donanutter, $11.20 show. Winner trained by A. Swenke. Went to post at 2:17.

SILVER SARAH, away slowly, improved her position gradually and, wearing down AVIRAB, won drawing clear. Latter, away slowly, moved up fast on the outside as most of the field became involved in a bad jam on the inside, raced around DONANUTTER gradually, and after opening up a good lead held on well, but could not withstand the winner. DONANUTTER had speed from the start, was on the inside after about three-sixteenths, and weakened in the last stages, but outstayed RAZZLE DAZZLE.

SECOND RACE—Five-eighths mile. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

DRIFTALONG, under light weight and away fast, forced the early pace under restraint, raced around SHERAB JR. and into command with a rush after reaching the stretch and, shaken up in the final eighth, probably had little left. SUNNY MAC, under vigorous riding after the opening quarter, closed well in a good performance. BUSSE TRUMPET, forced to lose ground, made a mild bid when approaching the final eighth, but later weakened.

THIRD RACE—One mile out of chute. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23 1-5, :46 3-5, 1:11 4-5, 1:37 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Day Dawn, $13.20 straight, $6.40 place, $3.00 show; Flying Breeze, $4.00 place, $2.80 show; Linas Son, $3.00 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:15½.

DAY DAWN, raced wide throughout, dropped back approaching the turn and remained far out of it until reaching the stretch, where she came with improved speed and, after wearing down the leaders, continued strongly while drawing out. FLYING BREEZE, on the inside throughout and lucky to get through in the stretch, was under stout pressure the last five-sixteenths and closed resolutely. LINAS SON, rated in close pursuit of the early pacemaker, worked his way to the front when placed to pressure, but weakened in the last sixteenth.

FOURTH RACE—Three-fourths mile. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Time, :23, :46 2-5, 1:11.] Two dollar mutuels paid: Candescent, $10.40 straight, $5.00 place, $4.00 show; Spanish Babe, $9.40 place, $6.60 show; More News, $10.80 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:42½. Off at once.

CANDESCENT, well ridden and away fast, was taken under light restraint to follow the early leaders, responded willingly to energetic riding in the stretch and, drawing clear after coming around MORE NEWS, withstood the bid of SPANISH BABE. Latter, away fast but unable to keep up, raced wide to the stretch, where she was taken to the inside while closing strongly and was getting to the winner. MORE NEWS displayed fine speed under a hustling ride, swerved out in the stretch, and weakened in the final eighth.

†Valdina Farm entry. Time, :22 3-5, :46, 1:10 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Talked About, $4.40 straight, $3.00 place, $2.20 show; Silverette, $5.20 place, $3.40 show; Sparta, $2.80 show. Winner trained by F. J. Kearns. Went to post at 4:10½. At post 2 minutes. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

TALKED ABOUT, raced wide, bettered his position gradually after the first three-sixteenths, overtook SILVERETTE slowly, but upon reaching the front in the last sixteenth drew clear quickly, then weakened. SILVERETTE, under snug restraint for a half mile and forced wide in coming around FOYOT, held on with good courage after taking the lead, but could not withstand the winner. SPARTA, away slowly and inclined to bear to the inside, was slow to respond, but rallied in the last three-sixteenths and finished fastest of all.

INFANTRY, going in superb form, moved up to follow the leaders under restraint after the first quarter, easily drew past BLACK RIVER and HASTINLOA when approaching the final eighth and, continuing with fine speed, drew out swiftly thereafter. HASTINOLA, under light restraint for a half mile, held the lead briefly as she responded to urging soon after entering the final quarter, was no match for the winner but held on well. CORINTO, slowest to get going, saved ground on the turn and swung to outside in the stretch, closed with a rush, and went out a mile in 1:40 3-5.

SIR AJAX, a strong factor from the start, was placed to pressure in the final three-eighths and held on well to the last sixteenth, where he weakened. WHITE LEGS, badly outrun for a mile, came with good speed thereafter.

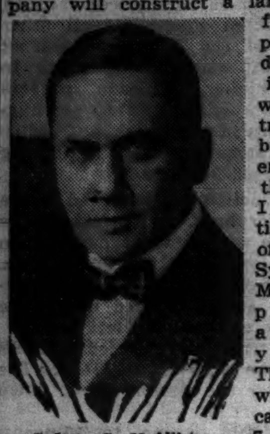
INT. HARVESTER TO BUILD LARGE INDIANA PLANT

Cost $4,000,000; Big Sales Gain Reported

The International Harvester company will construct a large manufacturing plant in Indianapolis in which it will concentrate the building of engines for the entire International line of trucks, Sydney G. McAllister, president, announced yesterday. The plant will be located on a 75 acre tract and will cost in excess of $4,000,000. When completed, he said, it will have an initial capacity of 700 engines daily and will employ more than 3,000 men.



Sydney G. McAllister.

McAllister said that concentration of engine manufacture at Indianapolis will not result in any substantial change in present employment at the company's Rock Island, Ill., tractor plant or Fort Wayne, Ind., truck works. No shifting of employés is contemplated as the result of the expansion.

Reports Big Sales Gain.

Decision to add the new unit to Harvester's facilities arose from increased sales of the company's trucks, McAllister said. He disclosed that in 1936 registrations of Harvester trucks were 34.6 per cent ahead of 1935, the previous high mark.

Registrations for 1937 are running well ahead of last year, and estimated output for 1938 is so large that it is expected to be more than the company's present manufacturing capacity, he said. It is hoped production in the new unit can be started by Feb. 1, 1938. Construction of the plant will get under way at once.

The site is five miles from the center of the city on Brookville road, state route 52. The plant will consist of a large one story main building for engine manufacture, a modern foundry, and a heating plant with electric power substation. The manufacturing building will contain 340,000 square feet of floor space and the foundry will contain 260,000 square feet. Both buildings will be of steel frame construction with side walls of brick and glass. Roofs will be of gypsum with composition covering.

Two Assembly Lines.

The main building will have two progressive assembly lines, each 500 feet long. Overhead conveyor systems will be used in the movement of engine parts. The foundry will be mechanically equipped and will have a daily capacity of about 300 tons of gray iron castings.

McAllister said the present project is the longest step taken by the company in factory expansion in several years.

In addition to the new truck engine plant the company is building a new branch house in Indianapolis for the distribution of truck and farm implement lines. The truck division of the branch will be opened July 1.

ILLINOIS GROUP URGED TO FIGHT BRANCH BANKING

J. F. Schmidt, Waterloo, Ill., president of the Illinois Bankers' association, yesterday called upon bankers of the state to oppose the McAdoo branch banking bill now pending in congress. He described the measure as an attack on the existing unit banks and the dual system of state and national banking.

The proposed legislation would permit national banks to establish branches any place within the federal reserve district in which they have their principal offices, with the restriction that no branch could be formed in states where branch banking is prohibited by law.

"The McAdoo bill would not affect Illinois banking institutions directly," Schmidt said, "since the state law does not permit branch banking. It would eventually endanger the Illinois legal defenses against such a system, however, as banking institutions in surrounding states expanded and sought to change the law here."

Predict 878 Million Bushel Wheat Crop

The United States will harvest a wheat crop of nearly 900 million bushels this year if estimates made yesterday by Chicago's leading crop statisticians are borne out. Their average guess, based on conditions prevailing June 1, is for a winter wheat crop of 649 million bushels and a spring wheat harvest of 229 million bushels, a total of 878 millions.

The winter wheat estimate compares with private forecasts of 652 million bushels made on May 1, and the government's prediction of the same date of 654 million. A year ago the government estimate indicated a crop of 482 million bushels, against a final yield of 519 million bushels.

Decline in Southwest.

The experts noted a decline in winter wheat prospects in the southwest during May, but said this loss was made up by improvement elsewhere, principally east of the Missouri river.

B. W. Snow of Bartlett Frazier company, said heaviest losses occurred in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. He placed the shrinkage in prospects in these three states at 46 million bushels.

Snow's prediction of a winter wheat crop of 672 million bushels was the highest. Mrs. E. H. Miller of Shields & Co. had the smallest guess at 610 million bushels. Snow also predicted the largest spring wheat crop—250 million bushels—while Mrs. Miller's estimate of 200 million was the smallest. The average of winter wheat condition was 69.7 per cent of normal and that for spring wheat 75.3 per cent.

Rye and Oats Forecasts.

A rye crop of 47 million bushels was forecast, based on an average condition June 1 of 75.8 per cent. An oats harvest of 1,149 million bushels was predicted, based on an average condition of 83.2 per cent.

H. C. Donovan of Thompson & McKinnon said the spring wheat crop prospect in the American northwest and in western Canada is below average. While good rains would result in marked improvement, some abandonment of acreage will occur because of losses already suffered, he said. The situation concerning subsoil dryness is the same as that prevailing last year, which was the foundation of the severe crop losses, he added. He said the condition of oats could be classed as good were it not for the lateness of the crop.

MEMBERS APPROVE BOARD OF TRADE PLAN TO FINANCE BUILDING

Changes in rules of the Chicago Board of Trade necessary to complete a refinancing program for the Board of Trade building were approved yesterday by members. The vote was 664 for and 100 against.

Under the plan both mortgage and interest charges on the building will be reduced. One of the amendments imposes a special assessment on members of $150 a year for 1937 and three succeeding years. From the proceeds of this assessment $45,500 in 1937 and $100,000 each in 1938, 1939, and 1940 are to be used solely in repayment of funds advanced by the Board of Trade Clearing corporation to aid a mortgage reduction payment of $1,218,000, which will be made June 15. The clearing corporation loaned to the board $345,500.

Kenneth S. Templeton, president of the board, said this payment will reduce the mortgage on the building due in 1948, to $9,000,000. The interest is being reduced to 4 per cent from 5 per cent. This will mean a saving in interest costs of $1,700,000 over the period covered.

Adoption of the amendments was regarded as an indorsement of the present administration as some opposition to the plan had been expressed at a membership meeting Tuesday.

HOARDED GOLD AGAIN HEAVILY SOLD IN LONDON

Marketing of hoarded gold continued heavy in London yesterday, despite official denial that the United States planned to reduce its price for the metal. The London gold price was fixed at $34.67 an ounce, a new low mark for the year and a decline of 3 cents from the preceding day.

Engagement of $10,667,000 gold abroad for American account was reported yesterday to the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Of the amount $3,944,000 was bought in England, $1,302,000 in India, and $5,421,000 in Japan.

About $8,760,000 of gold was offered in London at the time of the fixing of the gold price, following upon offerings of more than $9,000,000 on Tuesday and bringing the total offerings for the last four business days to about $29,260,000.

European currencies moved narrowly in terms of the dollar. The pound sterling was unchanged, the French franc lost .00⅛ cent, the belga eased .00½ of a cent, and the Swiss franc advanced .01½ of a cent.

AUTO PARTS FIRM DIVIDES POWERS OF MANAGEMENT

Separation of the policy making and administrative functions of management by the Houdaille-Hershey corporation, automobile parts manufacturers, was approved yesterday by directors. Claire L. Barnes, president, was elected to the newly created position of chairman of the board and Charles Getler, vice president, was named president.

Through creation of the new office, Barnes explained, the chief executive is freed from some of the daily executive duties and given the opportunity for development of broad management policies. The alteration, he said, means no change in the corporation's general policy. Melville C. Mason was elected vice president and Ralph F. Peo and Don S. Devor were named additional vice presidents.

The separation of management functions announced by the company is similar to the new plan recently adopted by General Motors.

Tell U. S. Loan Plans Before Market Opens

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—Having determined the amount of the government's June 15 financing program, Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. today decided to make the announcement tomorrow fifteen minutes before the stock market opening in New York.

The decision was reached, it was said, because the treasury believed it would be a better policy to let the financial community know about its plans prior to the market opening than to withhold the statement until after trading in government securities had begun. This course would tend to cause a minimum of disturbance in the market activities, it was said. The type of securities to be offered will not be announced until next week.

Meets Open Market Committee.

Morgenthau completed preparations for the financing at a closed meeting with members of the federal reserve board's open market committee. The committee customarily is consulted on treasury borrowing because it dictates reserve board policy in the purchase and sale of government securities.

Some officials predicted the financing, including $300,000,000 to meet a discount bill maturity, would exceed $500,000,000. Some expressed belief it might reach $750,000,000.

If the latter amount is borrowed the public debt on June 30, when the fiscal year ends, will total about $35,600,000,000. This would be $1,800,000,000 above the debt at the end of last year and $600,000,000 over the figure predicted for this year by the budget bureau last January.

Cash Lowest in 4 Years.

The treasury's available supply of cash for spending now totals $305,400,000, the smallest in four years, and probably will be reduced further by June 15. Treasury officials said they hoped that June tax collections will push this year's revenues above the $5,224,000,000 forecast by President Roosevelt last month.

Income tax receipts through May 30 totaled $1,610,000,000, the treasury reported today, and some officials said they might aggregate $600,000,000 this month. If the latter figure is realized these receipts will top recently revised estimates by about $100,000,000. The administration's drive against alleged tax exvasion and avoidance may bring even heavier income levy collections this month.

For the first eleven months of this year, the treasury reported, all revenues totaled $4,426,000,000, or 22 per cent more than in the same period last year. Gross expenditures were $6,803,000,000, an increase of 4.6 per cent.

This year's deficit stood at $2,377,000,000, or $568,000,00 below that of the first eleven months of last year.

SO. CALIFORNIA EDISON TO BUILD $3,000,000 LINE

New York, June 2.—(AP)—A 235 mile power transmission line, involving an estimated expenditure of $3,000,000, will be constructed by Stone & Webster Engineering corporation for the Southern California Edison Company, Ltd., it was announced today.

The line will run from Boulder dam to the company's system at Los Angeles and will be for single circuit transmission and designed for 230,000 volt operation. Completion of the work is expected by July 1, 1938.

U. S. FOREIGN TRADE BALANCE AGAIN ADVERSE

Imports Gain More than Exports.

The United States had an unfavorable balance in international trade in April for the fourth consecutive month this year, according to figures released yesterday by the department of commerce. April imports of foreign goods totaled $287,252,000, compared with exports of $269,171,000—a balance of approximately $20,000,000.

The results of foreign trade operations in April brought the unfavorable balance for the year to $132,062,000 as compared with $13,241,000 in the corresponding period last year. Goods exported by the United States during the first four months of 1937 totaled $980,897,000, an increase of $212,402,000 over the comparable 1936 period. Imports for the period were $1,112,949,000, an expansion of $331,213,000.

Trade Pacts Blamed.

The April figures continue the same trend that has been in evidence for several months—a continued rapid expansion in foreign trade with imports rising more rapidly than exports. This trend, it is asserted, is the result of the reciprocal trade pacts entered into by the Roosevelt administration. These treaties were said by critics of the administration to have opened the gates to foreign goods without giving American exporters compensating advantages abroad.

April exports of $269,171,000 contrasted with $256,390,000 in March and $192,795,000 in April last year. The increase in exports was credited primarily to the larger shipments of coal, petroleum, iron, and steel manufactures, machinery, electrical apparatus, and motor vehicles. Exports of foodstuffs, raw cotton, tobacco and lumber declined from the March totals.

April imports were smaller than in March—the $287,528,000 total comparing with the March total of $307,528,000 in the preceding month. They were substantially larger, however, than the imports of $202,779,000 in April last year. The decline from March resulted from smaller importations of coffee, flaxseed, corn, hides, skins, unmanufactured wool, wood pulp, and tin.

Import More Silk, Rubber.

Some items, including raw silk and crude rubber, were imported in larger volume in April than in the preceding month.

Gold imports for the first four months of this year totaled $611,858,000, compared with only $88,884,000 in the corresponding period last year. Gold exports were $64,000 and $26,341,000 for the respective periods.

Silver imports this year totaled $25,336,000 compared with $88,625,000 last year. Exports were $2,037,000 and $1,165,000, respectively.

Reveal Trafic Men Helped Buy Great Western Control

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—Richard O'Hara of Chicago, member of a syndicate which purchased control of the Chicago Great Western railroad in 1928, said today he had asked many trafic managers to invest in the syndicate because he hoped they would bring new freight business to the road.

Patrick H. Joyce, president of Chicago Great Western.

O'Hara told the senate railway finance committee he believed that if these representatives of large shippers invested in the Great Western "they would support their investment—they would favor it with trafic." He asserted, however, the trafic managers could not "sacrifice" the firms they worked for by sending freight over any railroad whose rates and service were not on a par with competitive lines.

44 Invest in Syndicate.

Committee experts put in evidence a list of forty-four trafic managers or other officials of large shipping companies who had invested a total of $644,380 in the syndicate. O'Hara asserted that he saw nothing improper in such investments.

Investigators of the rail finance committee introduced into the record an unsigned letter stating that some of the purchasers desired that their names be kept secret for fear their "positions would be in serious jeopardy if it became known that they were in an affair of this kind."

O'Hara told the committee he believed the letter was written by a P. G. Findlay, of Detroit, a purchaser of $25,000 of stock in Bremo corporation. Bremo was described by Telford Taylor, a committee investigator, as a holding company formed to hold the securities purchased by the syndicate.

Asks About Propriety.

Taylor asked O'Hara if he did not consider it "grossly improper" for trafic managers to invest in the corporation and then route trafic over the Great Western.

"They had a right to invest in any way they pleased to make money legally," O'Hara replied.

"It's pretty plain from the letter that there was a definite risk of trafic employés losing their jobs," Taylor said.

Senator Truman [D., Mo.], acting chairman of the committee, observed that the evidence indicated the "trafic managers were supposed to work for their own benefit against their employers."

Investors' Names Hidden.

Taylor also placed in evidence a letter from Edward J. Fleming of Chicago, described as a syndicate member. Fleming inclosed a check for $4,040 covering 40 shares of preferred stock to be issued in the name of Gordon O'Day, Detroit.

"For your information," the letter said, "Mr. O'Day is financing in his name the people connected with Hupp, Oakland, and Fisher body. They cannot get in in their own names."

The letter which O'Hara attributed to Findlay also stated that the writer was in touch with "many others" in Detroit, Flint and Lansing, but "many of these fellows are tied up in a falling market and they just can't afford to go into this deal financially, but they will go the limit in a friendly way to help us by routing a very substantial tonnage as desired."

Names Auto Trafic Men.

"This applies to such fellows as Gowling of the Ford Motor company, Conn of the Buick, one or two of the boys with the Chevrolet, Myler with the Chrysler, Sharr of the Packard, Lougheed with the Graham-Paige, and Graham of the Reo company at Lansing," it said.

O'Hara told the committee he and Patrick Joyce of Chicago, who later was elected president of the road, became interested in Great Western because they thought it had good earning possibilities under proper management. O'Hara asserted the road had been mismanaged under the régime of the late President S. M. Felton.

Earlier Senator Truman declared that the syndicate had gained control of the road through a margin brokerage account.

Joyce quickly denied this. He said he himself invested $600,000 in "paid up cash that I worked 35 years for."

N. Y. EXCHANGE MEMBER LOANS DROP $35,066,396

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Borrowings on collateral by members of the New York Stock exchange declined $35,066,396 last month, a report made public by the exchange today showed.

Total borrowing at the close of business May 29 were $1,152,212,988 compared with $1,187,279,384 on April 30. Money borrowed on United States government securities, included in the latest figures, was $31,336,550 against $34,256,650 a month before.

The low point on stock exchange brokers' loans in recent years was reached in July, 1932, when the total was $241,599,943. The record high was $8,549,383,979 on Sept. 30, 1929.

409,748 WORK DAYS LOST IN ILLINOIS BY STRIKES IN 1936

A total of 409,748 working days were lost as a result of the 98 strikes in Illinois during 1936, the Illinois Manufacturers' association reported yesterday. Illinois contributed 2.9 per cent of the total idleness resulting from strikes in the United States during the year.

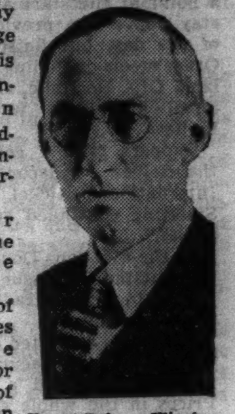
Thirty-nine strikes involving 3,221 workers and 66,418 man-days of idleness occurred in Chicago in 1936.

New York suffered the most from strikes, with 160,734 workers involved, and Ohio came next with 124,803, Pennsylvania third with 118,204, and California fourth with 70,027.

INSURANCE CODE PASSES; HORNER WILL SIGN BILL

House Unanimous in Vote for It.

Springfield, Ill., June 2.—[Special.]—The insurance code was sent to Gov. Horner's desk late today following passage by the house this morning and concurrence in minor amendment by the senate in the afternoon.



Ernest Palmer, Illinois insurance director.

Gov. Horner said last night he will sign the code.

"It is one of the finest pieces of constructive workmanship for the protection of policyholders in the United States," the governor said. "It places Illinois in the front rank in the modern approach to the insurance problem."

The code was approved by the house by the overwhelming vote of 145 to 0. It passed the senate 39 to 3 several weeks ago. Drawn under the supervision of Ernest Palmer, director of insurance, the code completely revises and codifies all the insurance laws of the state.

Passes Without Discussion.

Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago, the Democratic floor leader, called the bill in the house today and after brief remarks asked for a roll call. No debate was had, all the members present recording their favorable votes without discussion.

The code was successful on its third try for passage. Introduced in the 1935 regular session after weeks of conferences, the measure was passed by the senate, but failed in the house. At a subsequent special it failed even to pass the senate. It was guided through the current session by Thomas E. Keane [D., Chicago], senate insurance committee chairman, and George A. Fitzgerald [D., Chicago], house insurance chairman. Adamowski called it in his capacity of party leader supporting an administration measure.

ENDS LONG FIGHT

BY HERBERT VEDDER.

Passage of a new insurance code yesterday by the legislature marked the end of a four year struggle waged by State Director of Insurance Ernest Palmer to bring Illinois insurance laws "up to date."

is the terminal for 22 trunk line railroads operating 44 per cent of the entire railroad mileage in the country.

Normally 1,500 passenger trains enter or leave Chicago and 2,400 freight trains move in or through the Chicago terminal district every day—in other words, one passenger train every minute and one freight train every thirty-six seconds. The railroads serving Chicago own approximately one-half of the railway equipment in service and handle over one-half of the total rail freight and passenger traffic of the nation.

To anyone marketing goods or services on a national scale, a Chicago banking connection is valuable. This bank is equipped to give every service of a metropolitan institution and to render these services in a manner adapted to your individual needs. New York Stocks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 2.—With trading at the slowest pace in more than two years, prices on the stock exchange improved slightly today. Aided by short covering, gains in steels, coppers, rails, and oils ranged from 1 to 2 points in early dealings, but light offerings encountered later caused some issues to close below their peaks. Utilities were firm throughout.

Brokers reported that sentiment had improved since yesterday, but that large traders again were on the sidelines awaiting more definite indications of future developments in Europe. Turnover was only 534,780 shares.

In some quarters it was asserted that today's improvement was largely due to the sold out condition of the list, the arguments being advanced that the market had fully discounted adverse factors, including labor difficulties.

Steel and copper shares led the price improvement. U. S. Steel rose a point at the start and managed to stay above the previous close most of the day, but finished unchanged. Other steels, including Bethlehem, Inland, Otis, Republic, and Youngstown Sheet and Tube were fractionally higher.

In the aviations Douglas was one of the outstanding issues, jumping 2⅞ points in active trade. Other aviations were mixed.

Oil issues attracted considerable attention. Socony-Vacuum was the most active and gained a large fraction. Prices in the whole group hardened.

Following publication of the new reorganization plan of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford, the common stock touched a new low. As a group, however, carriers shares were moderately higher.

New York Bonds.

New York, June 2.—(AP)—Wide moves both up and down in a group of railroad issues directly affected by specific developments lent color to an otherwise drab bond market today.

United States government issues pointed downward, but trading was quiet. Utilities were mixed and industrials followed a generally narrow path except in isolated instances. The low yield group had little to show in the way of definite moves.

Various bond issues of the New Haven railroad took leadership on the filing of a reorganization plan. At the close the collateral 6s had moved up 6½ points to 68⅝, the consolidated 4s followed with a 5½ point gain at 40, and two other issues, the 4s of 1955 and the 3½s of 1947, had chalked up gains of more than 3 points each.

Other railroad bonds moved upward for modest gains, but Central Railroad of New Jersey 5s were off 8 points at 55 on sales of fifteen bonds. There was no news to account for the drop.

Foreign bonds were generally steadier than in the previous session, although Italian loans were mostly lower.

Chicago Stocks.

Chicago stocks were irregularly lower yesterday in dull trading. Turnover was only 18,000 shares. The most active stock was Utah Radio, which slipped ⅛ at 3¼. Next in activity was General Finance, which advanced ⅛ at 5⅝. Among other moderately active issues, Standard Dredge preferred, Borg-Warner, and Lion Oil closed fractionally higher. Peabody Coal and Trane were lower, while Middle West, Cities Service, and Kingsbury Brewing were unchanged.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were mostly unchanged yesterday from the preceding day's quotations. Continental Illinois stock was quoted $2 to $3 higher by various dealers, and First National was up $5. Harris Trust and Savings bank stock lost $5.

BUTTER, EGGS, POTATOES

Liberal receipts and renewed weakness in the cash market resulted in weakness in egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Prices closed ¼c to ⅜c a dozen lower. October futures finished 23¼c, the day's low and within an eighth-cent of the low price for the year. Unofficial estimates of June 1 warehouse holdings of shell eggs were placed at 7,200,000 cases, compared with 5,707,000 on the same date last year.

Butter futures held within a narrow range and closed unchanged. Receipts were heavier than last week or a year ago, but the movement into storage was smaller. Federal buyers purchased 450 tubs of extras at 31c a pound and 100 tubs of 90 score at 30c in the New York market.

There was no trade in potato futures. Sales for future delivery in Chicago yesterday totaled 44 cars of butter and 150 cars of eggs. Four cars of eggs and two cars of butter were delivered. Futures prices ranged as follows:

LARD

Lard futures rallied about 15c a hundred lbs on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday but reacted slightly from the top, closing about 10c higher. The selloff occurred largely in sympathy with the decline in wheat. Liverpool spot prices rose 6d and futures firmed 1d to 3d. Cash lard in Chicago was quoted at $12.47 a hundred, loose at $12.35, leaf at $12.50, and clear bellies at $16.37. The range of Chicago futures prices in dollars per 100 lbs follows:

Commodities

Rallies in rubber, hides, cottonseed oil, and several other staples yesterday caused the general level of commodity prices to move moderately higher.

Rubber for July delivery climbed to 20.34 cents a pound, against a previous close of 20.09 cents, and gains in other contracts ranged from 0.20 to 0.29 cent a pound. Hides closed with gains of more than ⅛ cent a pound and cottonseed oil was nearly ⅛ cent higher.

Export copper closed at 14.50 cents a pound in New York, about ¼ cent a pound up. Copper futures gained from two points to more than ⅛ cent a pound, and other metal futures were unchanged to moderately higher. The London metal market was strong during the morning, but encountered profit taking late in the day.

Changes in most other commodities were restricted to a few points.

Live Stock.

Hog and fresh pork prices declined yesterday, but practically all other branches of the live stock market held steady, some kinds selling to slightly higher. Chicago packers granted concessions of $1.00 per hundred pounds in fresh pork, and reductions at some eastern distributing points ranged up to $2.00.

This reduction was reflected in the demand for hogs, and prices at the stockyards were reduced mostly 5 to 10 cents on all swine except sows. The latter were firm, the steady decrease in stocks of lard in storage aiding the market for "lard hogs."

Only a scattering selected butchers reached the early top of $11.75. The average for the session moved down 5 cents to $11.10.

Lambs sold strong to 25 cents higher in a brisk trade, top new crop natives at $12.75 equaling the highest June mark since 1930. New crop stock from California bulked at $10.75 to $11.25, with some recently shorn at $10.00.

Little change occurred in the cattle markets. All except mixed steers and hefers were rather slow and about steady. Top steers reached $14.75, with the bulk at $10.00 to $13.00. Beef cows, canners, and cutters were weak to slightly lower. Common hefers were weak, but others were firm.

Grain.

An early advance of about a cent a bushel in wheat prices here yesterday was halted around midmorning on fairly heavy selling, and quotations dropped sharply. Losses at the close amounted to about 3 cents a bushel and were near the bottom for the day. December wheat at $1.10¾ touched a new low for the season.

The initial upturn was made largely in response to a strong market in Liverpool, but the effect of this was lost when the June 1 crop reports of Chicago's private statisticians were issued. Their average estimate for winter wheat was 649 million bushels and for spring wheat 229 million, a total of 878 million bushels. The figures proved disappointing to some operators, who had expected somewhat smaller estimates.

Sentiment was also adversely affected by the weekly crop and weather report of the department of agriculture, which pictured the most favorable conditions of the season.

Corn ignored the action of wheat, with the July delivery climbing a cent a bushel and September and December contracts confining losses by fractional amounts.

December oats and all deliveries of rye sold at new low levels for the season. The reaction was largely in sympathy with wheat.

Cotton.

Slightly higher prices were recorded in principal cotton markets yesterday. Final prices on the Chicago Board of Trade were .03 to .04 cent a pound above Tuesday's finish. Trading was moderate throughout the session. Cloth markets were quiet, while southern spot sales amounted to only 958 bales, with the average price for middling 12.99 cents a pound.

Spot prices rose .05 cent a pound to 13.25 cents at New York and 13 cents at Houston and were unchanged in New Orleans and Galveston at 13.05 and 12.95 cents respectively. The range of futures prices follows:

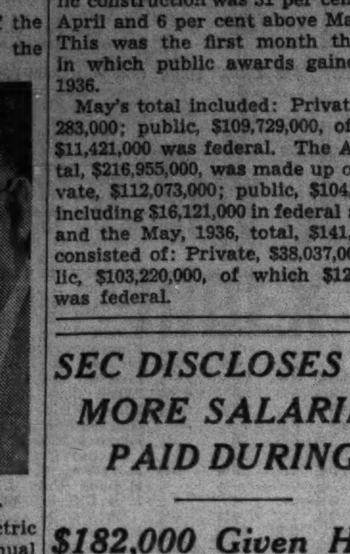
ELECTRIC GROUP TOLD BUREAUS PERIL FREEDOM

Weadock Warns They Usurp Courts' Powers.

A "headless fourth branch" of the federal government, comprising the various regulatory commissions which have grown up in recent years, is usurping the functions of the legislative and judicial branches and is depriving the public of its freedom, members of the Edison Electric institute were told yesterday by Bernard F. Weadock, vice president and managing director of the association. The organization, the trade association of the electric power industry, is holding its annual convention at the Palmer house.



L. W. Chubb.

Weadock was one of several speakers who addressed the electric utility group on problems of industry and government and on scientific research. Among them, Dr. L. W. Chubb, director of research of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, discussed experiments in the smashing of atoms in which particles may be shot through a tank at a speed of 100 million miles per hour.

Usurp Courts' Powers.

"While the administrative bodies are confiscating legislative powers from legislators, they are likewise invading the powers reposed by the constitutions in the courts of the land," Weadock asserted. "Constitutional safeguards are persistently disregarded. These administrative bodies constitute themselves a supercourt without any of the constitutional safeguards of the judiciary system."

Such bodies as the federal trade commission, the interstate commerce commission, the federal communications commission include persons of "strong bias, prejudice, and zeal" who are anxious to advance their own social and governmental theories without reference to the mandate given them by congress, Weadock said.

"They assert the right to exercise arbitrary judgment upon the constitutional rights of those subject to their jurisdiction and in many instances are drafters of their own laws," he added.

Cites an Instance.

As an illustration of the attitude of government commissioners which makes it difficult for a citizen to get a fair hearing, Weadock quoted a remark made by Harold A. La Fount, a member of the federal radio commission, on Aug. 14, 1933, as follows: "It is the patriotic, if not the bounded and legal duty of all licensees of radio broadcasting stations to deny their facilities to advertisers who are disposed to defy, ignore, or modify the codes established by NRA."

The presiding officer at commission hearing is an employé of the commission and he conducts the hearing in such a manner as to exclude evidence inconsistent with the predetermined purpose of department, Weadock declared. Citizens, he added, are hailed before such commissions to answer charges based on gossip and hearsay evidence.

New Air Cleaning Device.

Dr. Chubb demonstrated an electric air cleaner which removes about 99 per cent of all particles from the air. The submicroscopic particles, which cannot be caught by a mechanical cleaning process are eliminated by first charging them with electricity and then passing the air between charged plates which attract the particles and allow the pure air to pass through.

Relief from hay fever, asthma and throat irritations is made possible by the device, Dr. Chubb said.

The research work being carried on by Westinghouse in the field of pure science, such as studies in the structure of matter, were described by Dr. Chubb. The company, he said, is now constructing in its research headquarters in Pittsburgh a huge pear shaped tank known as the "atom smasher." The tank houses an electrostatic direct current generator. Particles may be shot through the tank at speeds up to 100 million miles per hour to be broken up, counted, measured, and identified by special instruments.

Physicists today are still studying the processes which result in transmutations of one element into another, Dr. Chubb said.

"Comparatively recent discoveries," he said, "have started a scientific revolution which, we believe, will have far reaching results in discoveries of fundamental knowledge. Nearly all such knowledge has found practical application."

Everyday Economics

This daily feature is presented in response to requests for simple explanations of matters concerning finance, business, and the markets. Suggestions from readers are welcomed. Address "Editor, Everyday Economics."

Preferred Stock.

Preferred stock, as its name indicates, has preference over common stock. In the case of liquidation of a corporation it ranks ahead of common stock in the division of assets. In payment of dividends preferred stockholders are paid before a return can be made to the junior or common stockholders.

Whereas common stock dividends depend on earnings of the company and the rate may fluctuate according to the amount of earnings available for distribution—perferred stock, except in the case of participating preferred, calls for a fixed dividend return. Thus preferred stocks are designated as 6 per cent, 5 per cent, 4½ per cent, or some other fixed rate. This means that the dividend which will be paid on the stock amounts to the designated percentage of par value. In the case of a 6 per cent $100 par preferred stock, the dividend would amount to $6 annually.

Many preferred stocks are cumulative. This means that when dividends are not paid in any given year they accumulate to the credit of the holders and must be paid off before dividends on common stock can be disbursed. In the case of noncumulative preferred stock it is necessary only to pay the full dividend in any one year before the balance can be distributed to common stockholders.

Tomorrow: More on preferred stock.

C. & E. I. REPORTS IMPROVEMENT IN CASH POSITION

The cash position of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad has shown a substantial improvement during the last twelve months, C. T. O'Neal, president, said yesterday at the road's annual meeting here. Cash on hand May 26 totaled $2,888,851, against $1,392,393 on May 26, 1936. Current liabilities amounted to $442,035, against $418,076.

President O'Neal said that the railroad, which is seeking to reorganize under section 77 of the bankruptcy act, made considerable progress in its operating results during 1936. Net operating income of $1,658,301 was the largest since 1929 and was exceeded in that year by only $550,000, despite the fact that gross operating revenues in 1929 exceeded those in 1936 by $9,289,000.

During the first four months of this year net operating income increased to $636,855 from $336,044 in the first four months of 1936, a gain of about 90 per cent.

O'Neal said the road is laying 7,500 tons—41 miles—of new 112 pound rail, 1,440,000 treated cross ties, and 155,248 tons of ballast. All directors and officers were reëlected.

Gray Telephone Loses Western Electric Suit

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday held that the Gray Telephone Pay Station company of Hartford, Conn., failed to make a case of its patent infringement suit against the Western Electric company. The Gray company contended that the "Long patent" on an automatic three coin pay telephone had been infringed.

Keeshin System Acquires National Freight Lines

The Keeshin transcontinental system of truck lines has acquired the National Freight Lines, Marshalltown, Ia., C. R. Olson, Chicago, directing head of the western region of Keeshin Motor Express company, announced yesterday. H. J. Lamack of Chicago has been appointed general manager of National, with headquarters at Marshalltown.

Reject Bids for U. S. Ships; Carried Too Many Provisos

Washington, D. C., June 2.—[Special.]—The maritime commission today announced the rejection of all bids for the building of a new cargo and passenger liner to replace the Leviathan in the trans-Atlantic service, because the bidders attached so many provisos to their proposed agreements. New bids will be sought at the "earliest practicable date."

Chicago Postal Savings $100,026,770, All-Time High

Postal savings bank deposits in Chicago reached $100,026,770 in 225,752 accounts on May 31, an all time high, Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen reported yesterday. This was an increase of 19,149 depositors and $6,379,813 in balances over May 31, 1936.

COURT UPHOLDS PWA POWER PLANT PLAN FOR BUZZARD ROOST

Greenville, S. C., June 2.—(AP)—A federal court denied today the Duke Power company of Charlotte, N. C., an injunction to restrain the Public Works administration from financing a proposed $3,000,000 power project on the Saluda river in Greenwood county, S. C.

Judge J. Lyles Glenn said in an opinion that "we find as a fact that the evidence does not show that the construction of this plant at the Buzzard Roost location on the Saluda river will bring about such a substantial control and regulation of the plant's rates as to in fact and substance supplant state regulation thereof by federal regulation."

Attorneys for the power company withheld comment pending study of the ruling. The Buzzard Roost case recently went to the United States Supreme court, but was sent back because of an error in procedure.

The Duke Power company has contended that the act permitting government financing of such projects was unconstitutional because, it said, it amounted to government competition with private industry and federal regulation of intrastate enterprise.

Holdings Change.

Investors' Guide: I understand the plan of reorganization for Savoy-Plaza corporation [New York City] has been confirmed by the United States District court. When this plan goes into effect will the old bond remain a first [closed] mortgage 6 per cent bond against the property? I am wondering if any form of reorganization can make the original bond worthless or change the security upon which the bond was made.—Mrs. H. R. F.

Answer: It is difficult to conceive of a situation in which reorganization would make a first mortgage bond worthless, although its value may drop far below par. It is entitled to prior consideration as concerns securities outstanding before reorganization.

However, it often is necessary to borrow new money to carry out a reorganization, and the party lending it naturally insists that he receive security for his loan ranking ahead of any other security to be issued. Such was the case in Savoy-Plaza reorganization.

The reorganization, having been approved by the required two-thirds of bond and certificate holders and confirmed by the court under provisions of section 77B of the federal bankruptcy act, is binding on all bondholders.

The result is that you no longer have a first mortgage bond, but are entitled to receive second mortgage income bonds and class A common stock as provided in the plan of reorganization.

Boston and Albany.

Answer: Operations of Boston and Albany railroad have not been profitable, but the New York Central is required to pay Boston and Albany $2,000,000 annually under a ninety-nine year lease from Nov. 15, 1899. This is equal to 8 per cent on Boston and Albany stock. Additional income from certain New York Central bonds boosts annual dividends to 8.75 per cent.

Future strength of the stock market cannot be predicted, but New York Central has met obligations faithfully to date. The stock, therefore, is considered rather high grade. Its all time high was $194.50 a share. The low since 1920 was $80, in 1933.

INSURANCE CODE PASSES; IS SENT TO GOV. HORNER

House Vote Unanimous; Horner to Sign It.

intention of striking every insurance law off the statute books and starting all over with a complete new code. During the course of his fight, Palmer frequently dubbed existing laws a "hodge-podge," asserting that most of them had been put on the books in 1869.

The first draft of a new code, drawn principally by two University of Illinois professors, hardly reached the printer before it was the object of a bitter attack from nearly all quarters.

The measure was introduced in the legislature in 1935. It passed the house, but died in the senate. It was introduced again at a special session later that year in somewhat revised form, but failed again in the senate. The bill, 268 pages long, was introduced for a third and final time last Feb. 17. The insurance committee of the Illinois Bar association had spent almost a year assisting with revisions.

As it stands, the code is little changed in essentials from the first document and represents a distinct personal victory for Palmer, who lies ill in a hospital following an emergency operation ten days ago.

The principal speculation in insurance circles, now that the battle is over, is whether London Lloyds will retire from doing business in Illinois. During hearings the British institution made the flat statement that it would be forced to do so unless the code was amended. Amendments failed.

Restriction on Lloyds.

The code requires that London Lloyds place on deposit in Illinios a sum based on the amount of insurance it writes in the state, the same as is required of domestic companies. Lloyds insisted that its world-wide business requires concentration of assets in London and makes compliance impossible. It charged the law sought to divert its business to big eastern companies. A final decision is expected shortly because Lloyd's license to do business in Illinios expires June 30.

The Travelers organization fought without results a provision limiting life insurance companies to the writing of life, health and accident policies. It is expected to switch its casualty and fire business out of the life company within the three year limit set by the act.

In general the code increases minimum capital and surplus requirements of practically all classes of companies. Palmer has asserted that this will work no real hardship on any well operated company. This general statement applies to assessment and fraternal companies, a year being permitted for making adjustments.

Opposed by Fire Group.

The fire companies were the source of most bitter opposition when the code first was pending two years ago. Formerly they had been close associates of Palmer, who was general manager of the Chicago Board of Underwriters at a salary double his salary as director of insurance. In recent months, local fire company agents have been enthusiastic supporters of the bill.

Originally providing that fire and casualty companies be authorized to write both forms of insurance, the bill now limits this to mutual companies. Others joined the fire group in opposing the provision making fire and auto rates subject to approval by the state insurance department, but the provision held.

The code strengthens provisions governing investments and state examination of books. It imposes a penalty on companies refusing to pay claims in an orderly manner. It prevents unlicensed and unauthorized concerns from establishing business offices in the state, and requires that all policy forms be subject to approval of the state insurance director so that deceptive clauses and limitations can be eliminated.

CINCINNATI GAS BOND OFFERING ON MART TODAY

Morgan Stanley Group to Sell Big Issue.

One of the largest corporate financing operations of recent weeks will be carried out today with the offering of a $10,000,000 bond issue of the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company. The bonds are a first mortgage lien, maturing in 1967 and carrying a 3½ per cent coupon.

Offering will be made at 102½ and accrued interest by an investment house group headed by Morgan Stanley & Co. The proceeds of the bond issue will go to reimburse the company for capital expenditures that have been made and to finance additional expansion.

Announce Capital Changes.

A number of concerns yesterday announced plans for offering new securities and for other capital changes.

Stockholders of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing company approved an increase in the authorized capital stock to finance expansion in its manufacturing facilities and to increase working capital.

The stockholders approved the issuance of 162,000 shares of convertible preferred stock and 500,000 additional common shares. The new preferred stock is expected to be offered for subscription to owners of the company's common stock. Holders are expected to be given the right to subscribe to one share of preferred for each common share owned. The new common stock authorized will be reserved for eventual conversion of the new preferred. The increase brings the authorized common stock to 2,500,000 shares.

Plans $25,000,000 Issue.

The Westchester Light company filed an application with the public service commission of New York for authority to sell $25,000,000 mortgage bonds, the proceeds of which would be used to pay off loans to the Consolidated Edison company, the parent corporation. Westchester borrowed a total of $25,100,000 from Consolidated during the last 12 months to acquire additional properties and to finance new plants and distributing facilities. Consolidated Edison may guarantee the new issue of subsidiary bonds.

The special stockholders' meeting of the Hercules Motors corporation, scheduled yesterday for a vote on the proposal to authorize 75,000 shares of 5 per cent convertible preferred stock, was indefinitly postponed.

Boeing Airplane Offer.

The Boeing Airplane company has announced that stockholders will be offered rights to subscribe to new stock at $23 a share in the ratio of one share for each three held. The rights will be issued June 12 and will expire July 1. The company will reserve 12,000 shares for subscription by officers and directors at the regular offering price.

An issue of $760,500 fifteen 4 per cent convertible debentures of the National Oil Products company will be offered today by an underwriting group headed by Jackson & Curtis. Proceeds of the issue will be used to retire bank loans and other current indebtedness and for development of the new plant at Cedartown, Ga.

WORK ON FARMS, CROPS REPORTED AS DOING WELL

Winter Wheat Harvesting Starts in Oklahoma.

Farm work and crop growth made good progress last week, according to the weekly crop and weather report of the department of agriculture issued yesterday. Harvesting of winter wheat started in extreme southern Oklahoma, the bureau said, and will advance to southern Kansas by June 10. Except in portions of the extreme west the condition of the crop is fair to good, while in sections it is rated as excellent.

In the corn belt, preparation of land, planting, germination and growth advanced rapidly over large areas, the report continued. Stands are generally good to excellent, although some damage has occurred either from cutworms or soil washing in a few places. Cultivation is extending northward to the central portions of the belt.

Minnesota Outlook Good.

The spring wheat crop outlook in Minnesota was called excellent, while improvement occurred during the week in the Dakotas. Moisture is needed in Montana.

The report said the oat harvest became general in Oklahoma and harvesting of the first alfalfa crop was begun in the southern portion of the state. Oats, rye, and barley improved almost generally. Pastures are good to excellent in parts of the plains states where the weather had been too dry in preceding weeks.

Rain received during the week exceeded two inches in parts of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and Ohio, while from one to two inches fell over large areas in each of these states, as well as in South Dakota, northern and western Oklahoma, northern Missouri, and several smaller areas elsewhere. Little or no precipitation fell in Montana, parts of eastern South Dakota, southeastern Oklahoma, southern Missouri, Kentucky, and southern Illinois and Indiana. The largest weekly total was registered at Detroit Lakes, Minn., where 3.72 inches of rain fell.

Temperatures Above Normal.

Weekly average temperatures ranged from 3 to 11 degrees above normal, except in parts of the extreme west. The greatest excess was registered in the Wabash valley.

The report said that the strawberry crop in the southwest is good. Garden and early truck planting neared completion in many places. Feed is scarce for stock in Montana because of continued dryness. Moderate to severe dust storms occurred in parts of Montana and the northern plains area. Tobacco planting progressed in the southeast, but rainfall would be helpful in some of the hilly sections of Kentucky. Hail storms caused some damage in Iowa, while erosion resulted in damage in Minnesota.

FARMERS' GRAIN DIRECTORS WORK ON NEW SETUP

A committee of six directors of the Farmers National Grain corporation today continued its work of drafting a new program designed to bring about greater harmony among the regional bodies making up the big national coöperative marketing organization of farmers.

The program is expected to provide for maintenance of the national body as a central fiscal and marketing agency, but give the regional organizations greater independence and more power than formerly.

Of 23 regional coöperatives forming the national body a year ago, only 12 now are active stockholders, and at least two of the 12 are known to have been at odds with the policy of central control. These are the Farmers Union Terminal association, St. Paul, and the Northwest Grain association, Minneapolis.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Study Milk Records.

June 2, 1937.

STUDY of milk and butterfat records at the Tribune's experimental farm has led to many facts and figures concerning the different breeds of cattle commonly found in midwestern dairy herds. About half of all registered pure bred dairy animals in Illinois are Holsteins, with Jerseys, Guernseys, Brown Swiss, and Ayrshires ranking next in the order named.

Holsteins also lead in numbers in the neighboring states of Michigan, Wisconsin, and Iowa. Indiana has more Jerseys than any other dairy breed and Holsteins are second.

In general the breeds that give the most milk also produce the greatest total amounts of butterfat, although the percentage of butterfat is lower for the high producing breeds than for those that give less milk. For example, the Holsteins hold both the milk and butterfat records, but their milk contains a lower percentage of butterfat than that of any of the other breeds.

Jerseys Milk Tests Highest.

Jerseys give less milk than the other dairy breeds, but the milk tests highest of all in percentage of butterfat.

The table below gives a fairly accurate production story of the different breeds. The figures have been compiled by the breed associations over a period of several years and apply to cows that have made records in official tests, qualifying them for special recognition.

The figures show the average production for the cows tested, ranging in number from about 600 individuals of the Ayrshire breed to more than 34,000 for the Guernseys. The tests cover one year periods. The figures:

Breed—	Pounds of milk.	Pounds of butterfat.	Per ct. of butterfat.
Holstein	16,037	545.9	3.40
Brown Swiss	13,597	544.7	4.00
Ayrshire	10,429	415	3.98
Guernsey	10,063	499.9	4.97
Jersey	8,529	456.9	5.36

The above figures are relatively high because they were taken from records made by the better individual cows of the various breeds. They do, however, serve as a comparison of the milk and butterfat producing abilities of the five common dairy breeds.

Average Yearly Production.

They show, for example, that a Jersey cow may be expected to produce about 80 per cent as much butterfat as a Holstein, although she gives little more than half as much milk.

The average yearly production for all milk cows in the United States, including grades and pure breds, is slightly more than 4,000 pounds of milk, containing about 160 pounds of butterfat, according to government estimates. The present world's production record—held by a Holstein—is 38,606 pounds of milk, containing 1,402 pounds of butterfat.

TRAIN LENGTH BILL ASSAILED AS DESTRUCTIVE

Means Big Rise in Costs, Says Transport Group.

A bill before congress which proposes to limit the length of freight trains to seventy cars was denounced yesterday by the Transportation Association of America as a sinister instrument which would add 90 million to 180 million dollars annually to railroad operating costs and open the way for other arbitrary laws to control and restrict industry.

"The train length laws for railroads, although represented to be in the interests of safety, do nothing more than uneconomically increase railroad employment at the expense of the shipper, investor, and public," the association said. "As usual, nothing is said as to how the money will be provided to pay the increased costs to the railroads."

Big Investment Jeopardized.

Declaring that the proposed law would have an effect similar to sabotage, the association said that the 8 billion dollars which the railroads have spent since 1922 to modernize and increase their capacity would be jeopardized by its passage.

"The real principle involved in this law is sinister," the association said. "It is not as humanitarian as its sponsors proclaim. It is really the idea of restriction of output in another form. It relies upon legislation to suspend or repeal economic laws. It helps to pull down rather than to build up. It merely presents the 'make work' theory in another cloak. The idea is to force the running of more trains, and the provision of more jobs, resulting, of course, in enormous additions to expense.

Would Affect Broad Field.

"While the measure is directly applicable to the railroad industry, the actual effect would extend to the processes of production and distribution of nearly every phase of our national economy."

Pointing out that the average length of a through freight train is now 90 cars, the association said that reduction of the number would disrupt services performed by the railroads. For example, grain handled from country elevators to terminal markets is carried in trains exceeding 100 cars and the iron ore movements average 173 cars per train. These movements are seasonal and restriction in the number of cars would result in a car shortage when cars were urgently needed, the association said.

CALLS NEW RAIL PENSION PROGRAM UNFAIR TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—Herman L. Ekern, former Wisconsin attorney general, attacked today a proposed revision of the railroad retirement act as "unfair" to employés and the treasury. Urging the senate interstate commerce committee to amend a bill supported by both roads and their employés, Ekern asserted advantages from the proposed revision were "all with the railroads."

Under the proposed schedule of taxes on the lines and their employés, Ekern testified, the treasury would advance a portion of the cost of annuities for eighteen years.

"Counting interest, it will be fifty-nine years before the treasury will play even," he contended. "And in the meantime changes in the tax laws are likely. Taxes are not levied for all time."

R. V. Fletcher, counsel for the Association of American Railroads, and Charles M. Hay, representing the twenty-one principal rail unions, had told the committee earlier the new pension system would not cost the treasury "one cent."

Burlington Asks Approval of North Platte Purchase

Washington, D. C., June 2.—(AP)—The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad asked the interstate commerce commission today to approve its outright purchase of the North Platte Valley Railway company. The Burlington already owns 100 per cent of the smaller road's stock. The North Platte line is located in Morrill, Scots Bluff, and Sioux counties, Nebraska. The application said acquisition would save the expense of keeping separate accounts and records.

Duke of Windsor and Wally Warfield Are Married—Church Ceremony Creates Uproar in England

Church "Disowns" Pastor Who Married Duke and Wally

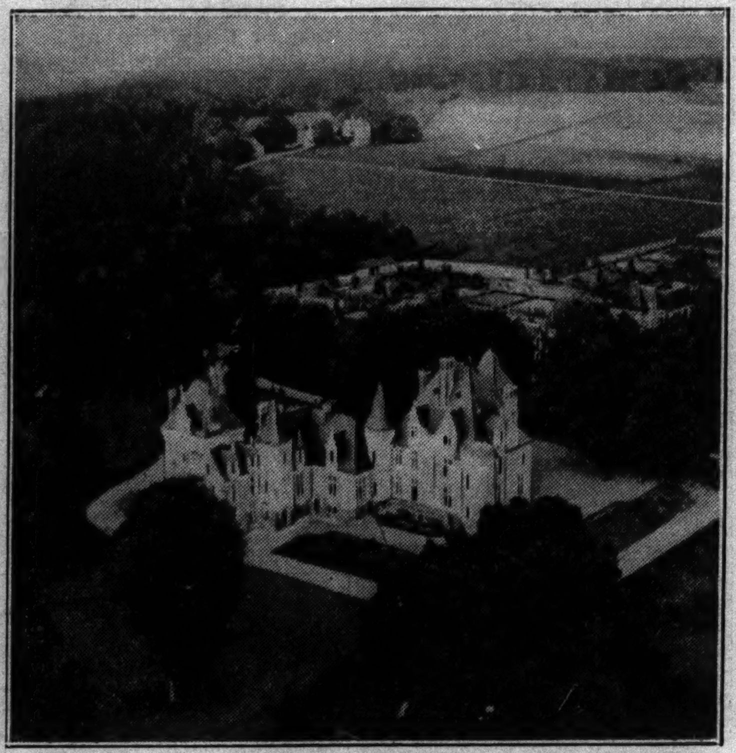
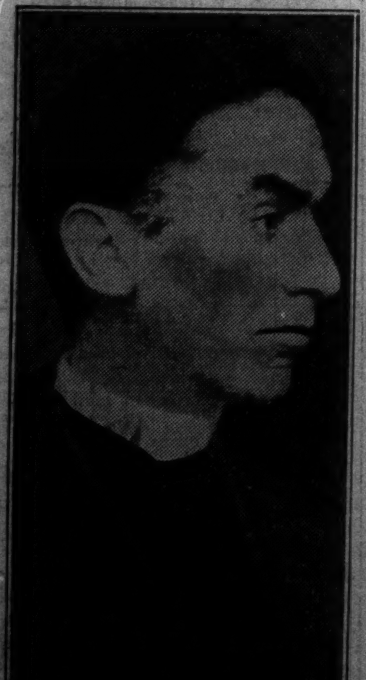
The duke of Windsor, formerly King Edward VIII., and Mrs. Warfield, whose marriage today climaxed what has been called the greatest romance of modern times. For her, "the woman I love," he gave up the throne of the world's mightiest empire. [Acme Photo.]

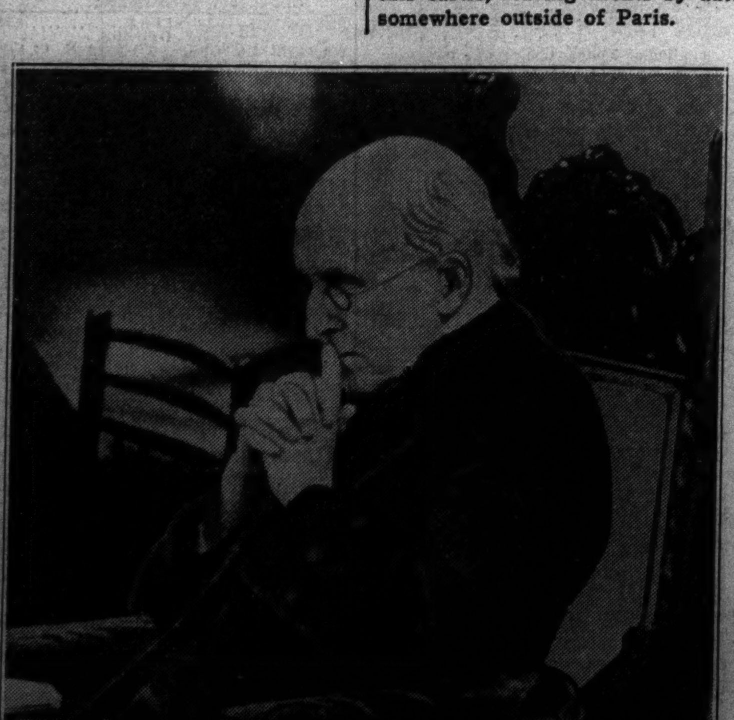


Aerial view of the Chateau de Cande, in music room of which the marriage was solemnized. There were both civil and religious ceremonies, the former performed by Dr. Charles Mercier, mayor of Monts. Extraordinary precautions were taken to protect the duke and his bride from the public during the ceremony. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

The honeymoon castle of Windsor and Wally. It is Wasserleonsburg in Carinthia, southern Austria. The newlyweds will go directly to this castle, leaving Monts by auto and boarding the Salzburg express somewhere outside of Paris. [Associated Press Photo.]



Dr. Herbert Henson, bishop of Durham, in whose diocese the Rev. Mr. Jardine holds office, passed the buck on hearing of the parson's arrival in Monts. He said he had no knowledge the vicar was out of the diocese.



Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, archbishop of Canterbury and outspoken opponent of Edward's romance, jumped into the breach at a conference with the bishop of Fulham, head of the Anglican church in France. A statement was issued in which the marrying parson was said to have acted as a "private person."

Dr. William Temple, archbishop of York, who has said little regarding the romance, held his silence in the face of the latest developments.

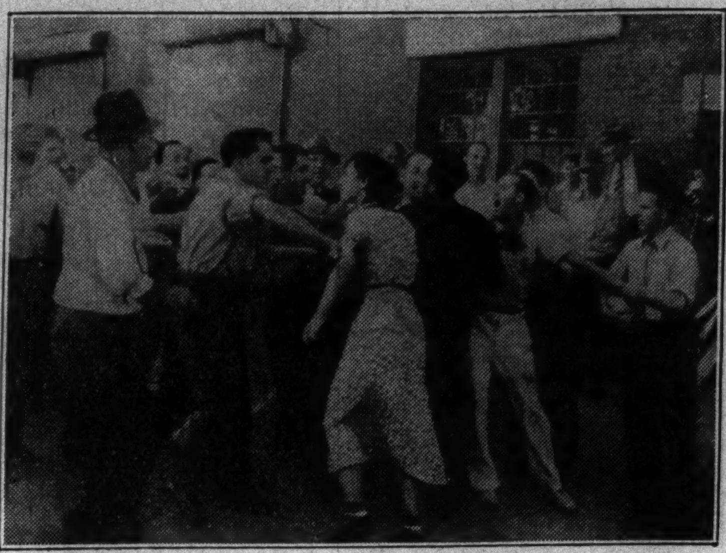
Battles Along the Labor Front



Fifteen women were injured yesterday at Little Falls, N. J., when nonstrikers attempted to enter a laundry through picket lines. This is a scene as men and women battled. Stones were hurled at those who wanted to work and some of them were taken from autos and beaten. Tear gas and high pressure hoses were used to restore order.

In Detroit Judge Ralph W. Liddy began a one man grand jury investigation of the disturbance at the gates of the Ford plant during which auto union organizers were beaten.
